Truman's Housing Bill Passes, 228 to 185, After See-Saw Battle

Leaders Predict Quick Approval In Conference With Senators

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The House last night passed the Administration's long-range housing bill by a vote of 228 to 185.

The action, announced at 7:12 p. m., sent the multibillion dollar program to conference with the Senate, which has cleared a similar bill. Main features are slum clearance, public housing and aid to farm housing.

House approval gave President Truman his biggest legislative victory of the Eighty-first Congress and assured realization for the Administration of one of the major "Fair Deal" campaign pledges. Leaders predicted the measure now will get a quick trip through conference and to the White House.

Speaker Rayburn's announcement of the final tally sent cheers rising from the Democratic side of the House.

Roll Call Vote Taken

Voting for the bill on the final roll call were 193 Democrats, 34 Republicans and one American Laborite. Voting against the bill were 54 Democrats and 131 Republicans.

Democratic leaders had just rescued by a narrow margin what they termed the heart of the bill—the title providing for construction of 810,000 public housing units over the next six years.

A see-saw battle raged around the public housing title. Representative Rees (R., Kans.) proposed it be stricken from the bill. At first, the House refused by a one-vote margin, 136 to 135, then it agreed by a teller vote, 168 to 165, tentatively to adopt Rees' proposal.

Finally, the tentative decision was overriden by a margin of five votes when the House, by a roll call, decided 209 to 204 to reject the Rees motion. The action kept the public housing title in the measure.

Then came a 241-to-170 vote refusing to return the measure to committee with instructions to substitute a program proposed by Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.)

Two Restrictions Added

For the District, the House kept in the bill two major provisions keying the Washington slum clearance and housing future to the national program. Two restrictions were added, however.

One section, already approved by the Senate, restores to the National Capital Housing Authority its site acquisition powers for public housing projects. To this, the House added an amendment by Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) specifying the sites bought are to be in the District, not outside.

The House approved also a

Anacostia Pool Is Closed 'Until Further Notice'

The Anacostia swimming pool was closed last night "until further notice."

The action was taken by Secretary of Interior Julius A. Krug after disturbances occurred at the pool on two successive days.

Special squads of Park and Metropolitan police surrounded the pool last night to prevent a recurrence of a disturbance during the afternon which resulted in the arrest of five persons and the injury of three others.

No incident occurred in the pool during the 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. night session. Outside the pool, a crowd of white youths chased a white girl they believed to be a Wallaceite for several blocks until she was taken into protective custody by police. She was not immediately identified, but was released.

The afternoon disturbance was quieted about 5 p. m. after about 50 police reinforced an initial detail of eight officers.

It involved Negro and white youths milling about the pool area while about 10 Negro and 10 white boys and girls were swimming in the pool.

Capt. Mark H. Raspberry, head of the Park Police, said scuffling broke out when a group of 70 Negro youths entered the swimming pool inclosure at the park in midafternoon. About 100 whites were there at the time.

The disturbance started initially when a Negro boy was cornered by a group of white youths. The Negro cut himself scaling a barbed wire-topped fence enclosing the pool area. Police separated the Negroes and whites who then left the pools. Fighting then developed outside the pool inclosure.

The eight policemen tried to keep the two groups separated. When they were unable to do so, sporadic fighting broke out until reinforcements arrived.

Police brought the situation under control by 5 p. m.

When order was restored, three persons were treated at Casualty Hospital for minor injuries and at least five persons were under arrest. Captain Raspberry estimated that 450 persons were involved in the affair altogether.

The Anacostia pool is one of six operated by Government Services, Inc., under a contract with the Interior Department which forbids segregation.

Half-Cent Qt. Rise in Milk Price Seen

A half-cent-per-quart increase here in the retail price of all kinds of milk appeared imminent yesterday, following a Virginia Milk Commission order authorizing such a boost in nearby Virginia.

Although the commission's jurisdiction actually extends only to Alexandria, Arlington County and part of Fairfax County, spokesmen for Chestnut Farms and Thompson's dairies told reporters at a price hearing last week that they would have to "fall in line" if the Virginia increase developed.

The commission's order, to be effective Friday, was transmitted to Bernard Speer, secretary of the Arlington-Alexandria Milk Board. He said the commission provided for no change in the $5.56-per-hundredweight price paid to producers.

Faced with evidence of mounting dairy production costs, the milk authority had been weighing the proposed retail price increase against a reduction in the price paid by the dairies to producers. The Chestnut Farms and Alexandria Dairies, which originally asked the increase, had requested that the producer price remain unchanged "for the present."

Under the new order, Speer said, home-delivered Grade A milk now selling for 20 cents a quart will be boosted by half a cent, as will the price of milk sold in stores.

Transit Talks Deadlock in Night Session

Negotiators for Capital Transit and its AFL employes broke up a 1½-hour session last night in a deadlock over arbitration procedures. No further meetings were set for today.

The 4300 members of the union, Division 689 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway, Electric and Motor Bus Employes of America, have scheduled a mass meeting at 12:01 a. m. Friday to consider strike action.

The contract between the company and the union ends at midnight tonight.

Federal Mediator James Holden, who called last night's sesion, admitted after the meeting that both sides are far apart. He said he had not as yet planned any further action but it is expected he will call at least one more conciliation meeting before the strike meeting tonight.

Both sides last night rejected proposals to continue negotiations for another 30 days. The union based its offer on the condition that if no new contract is agreed upon, the company will accept arbitration of all issues by a three-man board.

The company offered to make any new employe benefits agreed upon during the extension of negotiations retroactive to July 1. But the company stuck to its previous proposal that arbitration should take place before a five-man board.

Capital Transit thus "refuses to live up to the agreement," Union President W. F. Simms charged.

He called the company's arbitration proposal "a demand that the employees surrender unconditionally." He said the company had "determined upon and declared war," in order to affect the course of legislation now pending in Congress.

In a statement after the meeting, the union charged that the three-man board had been used before and was provided for in the current agreement.

The company denied the charge that it was breaking its agreement

New Greek Premier Renames Old Cabinet

Athens, (Thursday) June 30 (U.P.).—New Greek Premier Alexander Diomedes early today reappointed the same coalition cabinet that served under Liberal Premier Themistocles Sophoulis before his death June 24.

Diomedes, who served as a non-party Vice Premier under Sophoulis, said the new cabinet would be sworn in at noon today.

Talk With Blonde Leads to Arrest Of Tax Collector

New York, June 29 (AP).—A Federal tax collector was under bribery indictment today after United States Treasury agents eavesdropped on a conference he allegedly held with a blonde model in her apartment.

The collector, James A. Bessell, 49, is accused of demanding and getting a $5000 bribe from Marie Powetz after he heard she had not reported a $50,000 profit made on the stock market.

White House Terms Baruch Misinformed on Mobilization

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

A White House official said yesterday that Bernard M. Baruch was "badly informed" when he accused President Truman of blocking action on a mobilization plan.

In New York, Baruch told a reporter bluntly:

"My statement goes. I'm not misinformed. I won't reply any further until I see who makes the statement. They've got to get rid of this vested interest in error."

President Truman is to have a press-radio conference at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and will be asked to comment on Baruch's charge.

The controversy grows out of a speech the 77-year-old Baruch made Tuesday at exercises here commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. He said that, with the cold war dragging into its fourth year, the United States has no plan for swift mobilization of its resources.

"Additional delay," he said, "is a needless gamble with our national security—a needless invitation to disaster."

Baruch said that when World War II ended, Congress created an agency to draw up and recommend mobilization plans.

Repeal Fight On T-H Law About Over

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Administration leaders yesterday practically gave up the fight to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act this year.

Earlier, organized labor itself tossed in the sponge and announced it will take the issue to the polls in 1950.

What was tantamount to a dual surrender came as the Senate was still in the act of considering a second Taft substitute bringing the Administration bill further into line with the Taft-Hartley Act.

Start Voting Today

The Senate will start voting on this, and amendments to it, at 2 p. m. today, with every indication of another sweeping victory for Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio).

The new strategy was plain. Both the Administration and organized labor plan to put the onus on Taft, and Republicans who voted with him, in the 1950 campaign. Meanwhile the Taft-Hartley Act would stay on the books for at least another year without change.

Might Be Rejected

There was a remote possibility the Senate might reject the second Taft substitute, in which event some Senators argued it still might be possible to present the President a bill he could sign.

In separate statements, however, the two major labor organizations served notice they will have no part of the Administration bill as it has already been amended by Taft to permit antistrike injunctions and plant seizures in national emergencies.

1. AFL President William Green, in a letter to Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), termed the bill as already amended by Taft "absolutely unacceptable." Urging the Senate to defeat the second Taft substitute, and then kill the bill itself, Green said amendments to make it "more palatable would be useless and a waste of time."

Murray Calls it "Punitive"

2. CIO President Philip Murray later issued a statement saying the Taft injunction amendment has converted the Administration bill "into a new Taft edition of the Taft-Hartley Act." Murray called the provision "vindictive and punitive" and said the CIO will ask the voters to pass judgment on its supporters.

Lucas sent Green's letter to the Senate clerk to be read after making a flat prediction that the President would veto any bill carrying the second Taft installment of amendments. He did not say Mr. Truman would veto the bill as it now stands.

Taft apparently thought he did, for he took the floor to attack the whole argument that addition of injunction authority, which the President thinks he already possesses, should make the bill unacceptable.

Predicts No Veto

"I venture to say that the reasons for such a veto are so tenuous and so ridiculous that he (Mr. Truman) will not veto the bill," said Taft.

Lucas said his information on what the President might do ought to be better than Taft's. He said he wanted to make clear that the President had never told him what he would do.

"The Senator . . . has stated he has no information," replied

Hiss' Wife Denies She Typed Data

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 29.—Mrs. Priscilla Hiss, testifying in a determined manner but several times on the verge of tears, today insisted she never typed State Department documents for her husband to turn over to a Russian spy ring.

While the prosecution failed to shake her on this key point, however, during her 3½ hours of intensive cross-examination the Government scored a number of potentially significant points challenging her testimony.

Prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy brought out conflicts in her statements to the grand jury and statements she has given here as a defense witness in the perjury trial of her husband, Alger Hiss.

These showed discrepancies about her first meeting with Whittaker Chambers, former Communist espionage courier and chief prosecution witness, and with Chambers' wife, Mrs. Esther Shemtz Chambers.

The prosecution also showed that while Mrs. Hiss said she did not see Mrs. Chambers in 1937, Mrs. Hiss in that year was contemplating taking a nursing course in Baltimore, which Mrs. Chambers has referred to in her own testimony.

Adding to the significance of this was the fact that Mrs. Hiss never actually took that course, which she planned to study at Mercy Hospital.

The 1937 date has particular importance in the trial. In the two perjury counts against him, Hiss is accused of lying when he said he did not pass secret documents to Chambers in 1938, or did not see Chambers after January 1, 1937.

On another matter affecting her credibility, Mrs. Hiss, in answer to questions, declared she was never a member of the Socialist Party, although she had voted for Norman Thomas for President in 1932.

Hiss yesterday denied unequivocally that John Foster Dulles—instrumental in getting him to join the Carnegie Endowment for Permanent Peace—asked him to resign last August after Chambers touched off his charges against Hiss.

A repetition of this allegation today in the New York World-Telegram, which said it was confirmed by William Marshall Bullitt—a Carnegie Endowment trustee—caused Chief Defense Counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker to charge it raised a possible question of contempt of court.

The article quoted Bullitt as stating in a "factual review" of the Hiss case that Hiss turned down a semi-official suggestion by Dulles that he should resign. This, said the newspaper, posed "the issue, "Who is lying, Mr. Dulles or Mr. Hiss?"

Seventy-five-year-old Bullitt, Solicitor General of the United States from July 15, 1912 to March 11, 1913, and now a Louisville, Ky., attorney, was in court today and Stryker asked that he remain while the matter was discussed out of hearing of the jury.

Judge Samuel H. Kaufman finally held that the incident was "unfortunate," but said any determination about it would have to be left until after the trial.

Dulles is scheduled to take the stand as a prosecution rebuttal witness, and the defense also is

Well-Known Architect

Wurster Slated to Succeed Grant as Park Plans Head

William Wilson Wurster is slated to be named to succeed Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d as chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Washington Post learned yesterday.

Robinson

It was also learned last night that President Truman is expected today to appoint Hilyard R. Robinson, Washington architect, to a six-year term on the commission to fill the vacancy caused by Grant's retirement.

Wurster, 53, was appointed a member of the commission in July, 1948, to fill an unexpired term that runs to 1950. He is dean of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology school of architecture and planning and lives in Cambridge, Mass.

A graduate of the University of California, Wurster has been in architectural work for nearly 40 years, the last 25 years in the East. In 1943 he was appointed a fellow in the graduate school of design at Harvard, and in 1944 he became dean of the MIT school. He is also engaged in private practice.

Robinson, who lives at 3531 New Hampshire ave. nw., served as technical director of the Liberian Centennial Commission in 1946.

An architect in private practice here for the past 14 years, with offices now at 1927 11th st. nw., Robinson has studied at the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia University School of Architecture, and the University of Berlin in Germany. In the early 1930s he made an extensive study of low-income housing in Europe.

Before entering private practice, he was head of the department of Architecture at Howard University for more than 10 years. At preesnt, he serves as the university architect and has designed a number of its buildings, the latest being Cooke Hall, a men's dormitory.

Grant served as chairman of the commission since 1942. He recently stated he had asked President Truman in February not to reappoint him when his term expired April 30.

Unclassified D. C. Pay Hike Is Approved

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The House last night completed action and sent to the President the $330 retroactive pay bill for District unclassified workers.

The measure cleared the House at 7:30 p. m. after the Senate earlier had given it the green light in less than one minute.

In another pay action, the House Rules Committee cleared the long-stymied top Federal executive salary measure for one hour's floor debate. The bill would grant substantial increases to over 200 top-flight Government employes.

The District measure gives boosts to 8000 city police, firemen, teachers, per diem workers, United States Park police and White House police. It is retroactive to last July 1 when Federal employes won the same increase.

Unless the measure becomes law by midnight today, owing to one technical clause, 559 temporary District school teachers will not receive the increase.

After the Senate unanimously approved the House-passed local pay bill, it was returned to the lower body for agreement to a minor Senate-inserted amendment.

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.), House sponsor, called up the measure after the House had completed action on the national housing bill. It was approved by voice vote and promptly forwarded to the White House.

The bill states that only persons on the District payroll on "date of enactment" are eligible for the pay hike. Existing law requires that temporary teachers go off the District rolls by June 30. They are not rehired until later in the summer.

It was for this reason that

Pact to Reach Senate Today

Gold, Dollar Drop Deepens British Crisis

London, June 29 (AP).—The British nation was reported tonight facing a new financial shock in the form of an estimated 40 million to 50-million-pound drop in its gold and dollar reserves.

This is 160 million to 200 million dollars.

An official source gave out the information that bad news awaits the country when Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announces next week just how much Britain's reserves have declined in the three months ending Thursday.

Britain's reserves stood a little way under the 500-million-pound (two billion dollars) government-set dangerline at the turn of the year. In the first quarter they sagged by 20 million pounds.

The informant said: "The government was not much worried by that drop. It is, though, very concerned at the decline shown in the second three months of the

Steel Nationalization Postponed by Lords

London, June 29 (U.P.).—The overwhelmingly Conservative House of Lords voted 81 to 22 tonight to postpone nationalization of the steel industry until July, 1951.

Commons had adopted the government's plan to take over the steel industry next May. Unless a general election is called before then, the country will be in the midst of a campaign for a new Parliament. The Lords want the Conservatives to get a chance to attack the plan in the election campaign.

Slain Girl's Photos Exhibited In Scott's Trial at Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., June 29 (U.P.)—Photographs of Dana Marie Weaver's body, bloody and bruised and her clothes disarrayed, were shown the jury today as the State sought to build up a detailed case of premeditated murder against her schoolmate, Lee Scott.

For the first time in the three-day trial, Scott lowered his head while the pictures were passed around to the men weighing his fate.

The defense already has admitted Scott killed the girl but contends he did so in a fit of amnesia after they argued over her former boy friend, who was also Scott's high school "hero."

The Commonwealth has not yet specified a motive in the trial of the 16-year-old choirboy and wrestler for Dana Marie's slaying in the parish house of Christ Episcopal Church last May 8.

But today, Prosecutor C. E. (Buck) Cuddy laid down a barrage of evidence starting with Dana Marie's last afternoon alive when she went for a gay drive with young friends.

Other witnesses described the finding of the body the next day. Medical testimony matched Dana Marie's blood type with that found on the clothing allegedly worn by Scott the day of the slaying. Hair matching Dana Marie's long blonde locks also was found encrusted with blood on the knee of the trousers exhibit.

Jurors Hear Explanation By Judge of Word 'Intent'

After Deliberating For 12 Hours Panel Returns for Help On Key Definition

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The Judith Coplon jury returned to District courtroom at 11:03 o'clock last night to ask Judge Albert L. Reeves for further explanations of what is meant by the word "intent."

It was 12 hours since the jury had begun deliberations at 11:12 a. m.

"Intent is so intangible," one juror, rising in the jury box before a courtroom packed even near the midnight hour, said. "We feel this is a very important case and we don't want to make no error."

The jurors retired under lock and key in a hotel at 11:30 p. m., but before they did, Judge Reeves patiently sought to break down, in detailed explanations, the six-letter word on which he guilt or innocence of Judith Coplon as a spy dramatically hinges.

What Indictment Said

The Government girl took FBI documents "with intent and reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation . . ." the first count, the espionage count, of the indictment, charges.

Judge Reeves had said in his charge to the jury earlier in the day: "The only question before you on the first count (the espionage count) is for you to determine the intent of the defendant."

Foreman Andrew H. Norford, 1111 Holbrook ter. ne., 34-year-old central office repairman of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., rose in his place in the jury box before a tense courtroom to ask the white-haired jurist to break down the word, tell the jury exactly what it meant.

"All I can say," Judge Reeves replied, "is that if the jury believes Judith Coplon did obtain information relating to the national defense and did it believing it was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign country . . . it would be the duty of the jury to find her guilty on the first count."

Judge Defines Intent

The judge paused, leaned over the bench.

"Intent means purpose to do a thing. Under the law it is not necessary in this case that she passed the documents, gave them to anyone. Now does that answer the question you have in mind?"

Foreman Norford got slowly to his feet. For the space of a full minute he stood, his hands behind him, not speaking, his head cast down thoughtfully.

"I'm trying to form it, Your Honor, so . . . " the words finally came out, slowly.

"It is all right to take your time," Judge Reeves said patiently. "It is your duty."

Norford waited, then said: "I believe that that answers the doubts that were in the mind of the jury."

"Mr. Foreman," the 75-year-old jurist said, "if you're satisfied, you may go."

Norford waited: "Your Honor, one of the other jurors asked if he could say something."

From the back row there stood up Juror Joseph Gould, 4812 41st st. nw., 39-year-old toy and gift businessman.

"Your Honor," he said, "if you're speaking of intent you have to take the whole case and look at the whole . . . you can't pick out this little thing or that, you've got to look at the whole. Now, Your Honor, this intent . . . could you tell us in a little more everyday language . . . and maybe we can bring an ending to this case."

Judge Reeves sought for an illustration to explain the word on which the defendant's fate hangs.

"You usually get intent from actions or speech," he said, nodding his head in accent. "You take into consideration all the defendant's conduct, all her actions, especially on February 18 and March 4 (when FBI agents followed Miss Coplon and the Russian Valentin Gubitchev in New York, arresting them on the latter dat

House Passes Funds Stop Gap Resolution

The House last night rushed to passage a stop-gap "continuing" resolution designed to keep Government agencies in funds until Congress breaks the log jam on appropriations.

With seven big money bills still locked in the jam, the Government enters a new fiscal year at midnight tonight, without funds to meet expenses of most agencies.

House Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) voiced hope that the Senate would pass the emergency measure before Congress quits for a three-day July 4 recess.

VA Was Anxious

No big Federal payrolls have to be met for some days yet but Congress was getting anxious inquiries from the Veterans Administration. That agency has to mail out some 2,800,000 veterans checks in the next few days, and lacked the funds to do it, Cannon said.

The stop-gap resolution permits agencies which haven't yet been provided for to continue for one month on their old 1949 money basis, unless supply bills providing for them have passed both houses. In the latter case, they must operate with the lowest sum voted by either house.

The July 31 limit on the money extension was written into the bill by the Appropriations Committee when some members protested that an indefinite extension would provide no impetus to break conference stalemates.

Conference Report Adopted

One of the log-jammed bills meanwhile moved one step nearer to final passage when conferees agreed on a $3,090,528,904 Treasury-Post Office bill. The House adopted the conference report and the Senate is expected to act today.

What had held up the bill was a difference between the two agencies over how large a field staff the Internal Revenue Bureau should have to check income tax returns.

The Budget Bureau asked 7,000 additional employes for this purposes. The House cut the number to 1500 and the Senate backed up the Budget Bureau in two separate votes. Conferees compromised on 4,250 additional Internal Revenue agents by the end of the fiscal year.

Other Bills Piled Up

Other bills piled up behind the fiscal year deadline are the civil functions and State-Justice-Commerce bills, still in conference, and these four that haven't yet passed the Senate: Independent offices, Interior, National Defense and Foreign aid.

President Truman signed three of the completed money bills yesterday. The largest was a $2,253,529,385 measure to operate the Labor Department and Federal Security Agency. The amount is about 18 million dollars more than he requested in his budget.

He also signed a $715,601,607 bill for the Agriculture Department, about 11 million dollars less than he asked, and a $102,754,447 appropriation for the District of Columbia, about what he sought.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) meanwhile warned that tax revenues have dropped alarmingly in recent weeks and predicted the Government will be $1,500,000,000 in the red by tomorrow midnight when it closes the books on fiscal 1949.

Martin Echoes Crisis

His declaration that a "real financial crisis" is at hand was echoed in the House by GOP Leader Martin, who introduced a resolution which would order President Truman to reduce Federal spending enough to bring the 1950 budget into balance.

Martin said that because of "depressed conditions" the Government's tax collections during the coming 12 months probably will fall about two billion dollars short of the estimate made last January when Mr. Truman's budget was prepared.

Byrd asserted in a Senate speech that tax losses already have reached a "frightening" level. He predicted a Federal deficit of between three billion and five billion dollars for the coming fiscal year unless spending is cut.

Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, appealed to President Truman to make a "clear, positive, definite statement" that he no longer wants Congress to raise taxes at this time.

Farm Prices Off Nearly Two Per Cent

Farm prices declined nearly 2 per cent between mid-May and mid-June, the Agriculture Department reported yesterday.

Truck crops and food grains led the drop.

Prices paid by farmers eased off very slightly.

In mid-June, it was only 3 per cent above parity. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices, designed to be equally fair to farmers and consumers.

A year ago farm prices averaged 18 per cent above parity.

The mid-June farm price level was 252 per cent of the 1909-14 average. This compares with 256 per cent in mid-May, 295 per cent a year ago and a record of 307 set in January, 1948.

Prices paid by farmers in mid-June were 245 per cent of the 1909-14 average compared with 251 a year ago, which was the highest of record.

The department said the decline in farm prices was rather general. Hogs, the main exception, were up about 5 per cent from a month ago.

Wheat was off 14 cents a bushel, lambs were down 90 cents for 100 pounds and chickens were off about 2 cents a pound.

340 Laid Off by N. J. Telephone Company

Newark, N. J., June 29 (AP).—The New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. announced today it was laying off 340 plant department employes early next month because of a decline in demands for new phones.

"The demand for new telephone service has fallen off and the present outlook shows no indication of any increase in demand in the near future," the company announced.

Since the end of the war, the company said, more than 500,000 telephones have been added on New Jersey, representing a 52 per cent increase in the State's installations.

Wide Price Cuts Shown In New Ward Catalogue

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—Montgomery Ward and Company today issued a fall and winter catalogue which officials said contained the most extensive price reductions since 1938.

Ward's said the new catalog offered the most complete assortment of merchandise in several years, especially in lines heretofore hard to find. The book contains 1136 pages.

Included in the reductions, as compared with last fall's book, were: Women's and misses' coats and dresses down, 4 to 39 per cent; furniture, 10 to 15 per cent; radios, 10 to 20 per cent; auto batteries, 15 to 25 per cent, and men's work clothing, 13½ to 20 per cent.

the Eleventh Precinct Station House were:

Donald M. Long, 20, 5424 32d st. se., a white student. He posted $5 and elected to forfeit on the charge of distributing anti-segregation handbills.

Joseph Jackono, 30, a white student, poster $5 collateral and elected to forfeit on the charge of distributing antisegregation handbills. Jackono said he and Long belong to the Young Progressives.

Thomas Ralph English, 40, a white social worker of 3000 30th st. se. He posted $5 collateral and elected to forfeit on the charge of disorderly conduct apparently growing out of a scuffle with Jackono.

Toussaint P. Pierce, 22, a Negro student of 2564 Sheridan rd. se. He posted $5 collateral on a charge of disorderly conduct and is to appear this morning in Municipal Court. Pierce said he was arrested by a mounted policeman after he picked up a brick.

A 16-year-old Negro juvenile, who was released in the custody of his parents pending any action Juvenile Court authorities might wish to take. Police said he was arrested during a scuffle.

Among those injured was Joan Sexton, 17, of 1725 16th st. se., a white girl, who suffered a fracture of two toes when her foot was accidentally stepped on by a mounted Park policeman's horse. She fell beneath tht horse. She was treated at Casualty Hospital and admitted for observation.

The horse was ridden by Park Police Pvt. Powhatan Daniels, to whom witnesses gave much of the credit for quieting the disturbance as he rode between the two groups outside the pool.

Park Police Pvt. Julius Campbell, 32, Negro, of 920 T st. nw., was treated at Casualty for contusions of the right forearm and released. Police said he had been struck by a stone.

Charles Watson, 21, Negro, 1107 Sumner rd. se., was given first aid at the park building when he cut his leg and foot while climbing out of the pool inclosure over the wire fence.

Metropolitan Police Headquarters acted at 4:10 p. m. to retain on duty for five hours an estimated 100 members of the day shift and call in enough extra detectives to man available Detective Bureau cruisers. Off duty members of the riot squad were asked to stand by telephones.

Inspector William Cunningham, Captain Raspberry and Acting Assistant Superintendent Oscar J. Letterman were at the pool last night. Superintendent Robert J. Barrett appeared briefly.

GSI Alerted

Yesterday morning the Interior Department issued instructions to Government Services, Inc., to be prepared to take charge of the morning swimming periods "as and when the Recreation Board withdraws the program."

Morning programs have been supervised by the Recreation Department, which provides instruction and free swimming. The morning programs have been for whites in Anacostia and three other pools and for Negroes in the two remaining ones.

Starting Tuesday, however, the Recreation program has been turned over to GSI at McKinley pool, an action taken when Negroes appeared. The Recreation Board Monday decided to turn over to GSI for operation any morning program where segregation was not maintained.

The pools have been run by GSI on a theoretically nonsegregated fee basis during afternoons. However, until last week, the segregation pattern established during the morning periods was generally followed in the afternoons.

Indian's 5-Million Suit Dismissed by Judge

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—A Chippewa Indian's suit for five million dollars he claims is due members of his tribe for their fish was dismissed today by Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw, who ruled his court lacked jurisdiction.

Tom Cain, 40, Red Lake, Minn., brought the suit in behalf of nearly 100 tribesmen.

Filed under the Antitrust Act, the suit sought to recover the money from the Robbins, Inc., Fisheries of Chicago; the Red Lake Fisheries Association, Red Lake, and W. R. Kane, association manager.

It accused Kane of conspiring with Robbins to cheat the Indians by paying lower than market prices for their catch.

Crucial Move On Policy Due For Truman

By Robert S. Allen

President Truman is pondering one of the most fateful decisions of his incumbency.

Between now and July 15, when the report of his Council of Economic Advisers is made public, the President must decide whether to reverse his course on major economic policies or to sit tight.

The Council's report poses that momentous decision.

The report is neither pessimistic nor optimistic. It details both favorable and unfavorable economic factors. But the report does make one thing clear.

This is, that the Nation's economy is undergoing far-reaching changes that portend ominous consequences.

It is these disquieting trends that confront the President with his dilemma. One White House adviser, paraphrasing Hamlet's famed outburst, summed up the President's situation in these words: "He's got to decide whether to act or not to act."

The President will have to choose between two sharply divergent groups among his inner advisers.

One group, that has been labelled "the bulls," is strongly urging him to take a passive attitude. Leaders of this group are Treasury Secretary John Snyder, Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer and Dr. Edwin Nourse, chairman of the Economic Council.

They hold the current economic situation is sound and requires no remedial measures. Such unsatisfactory conditions as exist, they contend, generally will right themselves by fall.

Spokesmen of the other group are Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan, Leon Keyserling, member of the Economic Council, and Clark Clifford, White House legal adviser.

This group is advising a "dynamic" course. They want the President to initiate a program of "positive" economic props. Chief of these are abandoning his demand for an increase in taxes, and setting the machinery in motion for a large-scale public works program.

Congressional leaders who have talked to the President in recent days report he is disquieted by the economic situation. They say he indicates particular concern over growing unemployment, also, that he is spending most of his time on the economic problem.

In these deliberations, the President also is under a constant cross-fire of conflicting political counsel and recommendations.

Democratic leaders from industrial centers that have been hit by unemployment are pressuring him for recuperative measures. They are particularly opposed to any pruning of Government expenditures. Conservative party chiefs, on the other hand, are equally insistent on budget economizing. They are vigorously against pump-priming.

Truman Signs World Bank Bill

President Truman yesterday signed a bill authorizing national banks to deal in and underwrite bonds of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

The bill exempts securities issued or guaranteed by the Bank from the provisions of the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. It is effective immediately.

The World Bank pointed out that by permitting national banks to deal in and underwrite bonds of the International Bank, the bill would automatically extend the same rights to State member banks of the Federal Reserve System.

The amount of bonds of the International Bank any such bank is permitted to hold at any time is limited to 10 per cent of its paid-in, unimpaired capital and its unimpaired surplus.

Officials of the International Bank said they felt the legislation would create a broader secondary market for its outstanding bonds and facilitate the sale of any future offerings.

'Super' Joint Chief Plan Hit by Hoover

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Former President Herbert Hoover declared yesterday that creation of a chairman for the Joint Chiefs of Staff—as proposed in the Senate-approved unification bill—would be "dangerous to the country."

Testifying before the House Armed Services Committee, he strongly indorsed other features of the measure to more closely unify the military forces.

But the Administration-backed plan to set up a statutory JCS chairman, said Hoover, would put too much power in a military man. In practcie, he added, such an official would be "a single chief of staff . . . the voice and leader of all the military forces."

Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) declared he shared the former President's fears about the proposed chairman of the Joint Chiefs. He said the Nation must guard against the establishment of a powerful general staff for all the services, headed by one man.

Vinson disclosed that on June 21, Secretary of the Navy Matthews directed the Navy General Board to study the merits of creating a General Staff for the Navy along the lines of the Army system. This, he said, is a move toward such a dominant over-all staff.

"We want to see that it can't happen," Vinson added, indicating he would propose language in the bill to prohibit it.

Hoover said he and the Government Reorganization Commission favor legislation to legally establish the post of chairman of the Joint Chiefs. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower now acts in this capacity on a part-time basis. But the powers proposed for the post in the bill are too great, the former President said.

It would make the JCS chairman the "principal military adviser" to the President and Secretary of Defense—a position now held by the Joint Chiefs as a body. Furthermore, he would outrank all other members of the armed forces.

"Would Make Recommendations"

The bill, however, provides that such an official would not exercise military command nor vote in JCS, though he would make recommendations to the Defense Secretary when the Joint Chiefs are split.

"With such rank and power," said Hoover, "his voice to the country can override the responsible civil officials."

The former President said the Reorganization Commission felt the JCS chairman should be a retired officer, without advanced rank, who would handle the agenda and report to the Secretary the basis of disagreements where the chiefs are split.

Representative Short (R., Mo.) told Hoover he was also disturbed over the expanded powers given the Secretary of Defense under the bill. The former President disagreed.

Is Conclusive Check

"After all," he replied, "the Secretary of Defense must come before Congress every year for appropriations and that is a final and conclusive check."

Hoover said he believed the death of Secretary James Forrestal was "largely the result of frustration from trying to accomplish unification by persuasion."

Backing other features of the bill, Hoover said that the "present method of appropriations and accounts is such that Congress and the public and the military departments themselves have very little understanding of what they're doing."

"I don't believe you can even make a start toward economy without this bill," he added.

Hoover opposed a proposal of Vinson's to amend the bill to guarantee the three secretaries the right to "come to Congress" at any time on some issue. Congress now has ample power to send for any official, he said, while to "establish a right of appeal by statute" would be unwise.

"That would tend to undermine discipline and organization in Government," he said.

Vinson indicated he was concerned with the possibility that President Truman might use his authority under the recently passed Reorganization Act to do some of the things barred by the unification bill.

Recommended in 1945

Hoover noted that Mr. Truman had "warmly recommended" the latter, and doubted that he would use his reorganization power to go beyond that. The Georgia Congressman recalled that the President had recommended an over-all chief of staff for the armed forces back in 1945 and added that he is "worried" about the prospect.

Ferdinand Eberstadt, New York financier who headed the armed forces task force of the Hoover Commission, will testify this morning. Vinson said he hoped to wind up hearings and report out the bill —probably considerably modified, next week.

Speed Boat Cuts Her Legs Off

IMOGENE WITTSCHE
In boating accident

The speedboat which cut off 13-year-old Imogene Wittsche's legs at Lake Tahoe Monday violated the California safety code, a district attorney in Placerville said yesterday. The girl swimmer, who did not know that both her legs had been amputated below the knees, was in a grave condition in a Reno hospital. Phil Davis, wealthly Oakland automobile dealer, was named as driver of the boat. He said he was "flabbergasted" when told of the accident to act, it was, as you know, prevented from doing so," he continued. "It has still to be heard from."

Baruch Held Misinformed

Turned Down, He Says

Baruch explained to a reporter that he had in mind the mobilization plan drafted by the National Security Resources Board at the time when Arthur M. Hill was its chairman. He said the board—including seven Cabinet offcers—approved the mobilization plan, which emboded price controls and allocations of materials, but President Truman turned it down.

The White House official who commented on Baruch's speech yesterday—he would not permit the use of his name—said that no such mobilization plan was ever presented to Mr. Truman. Therefore, he said, Mr. Truman had nothing to reject.

"On that point," the official said, "Mr. Baruch appears to have had some pretty bad information."

He recalled a recent statement by John R. Steelman to the effect that mobilization plans are being worked on and "refined" at all times. Steelman, Assistant to the President, has been acting chairman of the National Security Resources Board since Hill resigned to return to his job with the Greyhound Bus Corp.

Mr. Truman nominated his friend, Mon Wallgren, to head the Resources Board, but the Senate Armed Services Committee refused to approve the nomination. Wallgren, former Governor of Washington, finally asked the President to withdraw his name.

Not There for Long Time

Elder Statesman Baruch, famed as an adviser to Presidents, served Mr. Truman in this capacity in the early days of his Administration. He played an important role in drawing up an atomic energy control plan for the United Nations.

It has been a long time now since he has been at the White House.

The same is true of another South Carolinian, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, who is close to Baruch.

Byrnes also took a crack at Mr. Truman recently, saying that if some of the Administration's plans are adopted the result will be a "welfare state," with everyone an "economic slave."

Mr. Truman will be asked about that, too, this afternoon.

Observers at the Pentagon noted that the Truman-Baruch dispute over mobilization planning seemed to be not over the existence of such plans but what to do about them. Mobilization blueprints are ready and kept up-to-date, but Baruch believes we should go further than this.

He has been urging for several years that the President approve a comprehensive program providing standby war powers and send it to Capitol Hill. Then, urges Baruch, Congress should hold hearings on and pass the legislation, ready to be invoked instantly in time of war by a vote of the Congress.

Mr. Truman apparently does not want another congressional battle over war powers now. Similar action was proposed before Pearl Harbor but shelved.

Maritime Bill Signed

President Truman yesterday signed into law a bill extending for a year the Maritime Commission's authority to sell, charter and operate ships. The authority was due to expire today.

D. C. Salesman Won't Reply To House Probers' Queries

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A former Washington schoolteacher yesterday not only refused to answer questions of the House Un-American Activities Committee, but declared he would not be "used as a stool pigeon" by the committee.

The witness was Pasquali Leonard James Branca, of 833 Allison st. nw., who once was on the faculty of Eliot Junior High School. He said he "couldn't recall" he ever had used the name "Carpenter."

Branca said he now is employed by the District Wholesale Drug Co. as a salesman. He once drove a cab, he said. But he refused to reveal who his acquaintances are. He gave two reasons: That such testimony might serve to "incvrimi-nate" him, and that he wouldn't be a "stool pigeon."

"A Ridiculous Question"

When asked to explain what he meant by "stool pigeon," Branca declared, "I refuse to become a party to build a blacklist of people in this city to deprive them of their economic livlihood."

After the committee counsel, Frank Tavenner, asked him if he knew Emmanuel Levin, Gertrude Herney, Thomas Herney, Joe Chuba, Bella Rodman and others, Branca shouted: "You sure want a stool pigeon, don't you." He refused to answer any of those questions.

Later, however, he admitted he knew his attorney, Joseph Forer. But, belligerantly, he declared: "That's a ridiculous question."

Branca told the committee he served in the Marine Corps during the war. When asked if he took an oath of allegiance when he joined, he shouted, "I certainly did."

Meaning of Oath Debated

Representative Case (R., S. Dak.), a Marine veteran of World War I, tilted with Branca over the meaning of the Marine oath. Case asked if it didn't mean that a Marine should help the Government in its investigations of 'subversive movements."

Another witness was John P. Anderson, a home builder and husband of Mrs. Rosa Edelman Anderson, who testified Tuesday. Anderson refused to answer nearly all questions, but admitted he had contributed "around $500" to the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. He testified he owns about $1000 worth of stock in Station WQQW. He was the third witness to testify to ownership in that station.

While questioning Anderson about his investments in WQQW Representative Velde (R., Ill.) asked how long Anderson has known his attorney, Clifford J. Durr, seated alongside him.

To Meet Again Today

Anderson replied he had known Durr about a year.

"Did you know when you got your stock in WQQW that Mr. Durr was on the Federal Communications Commission? Didn't he assist in getting a license for WQQW?" Velde asked.

Before Anderson had a chance to reply, Durr declared: "If this committee wants to go into my connections with WQQW, I'll be glad to give you any information you ask."

Durr's offer was not taken up.

The committee will meet again today to question three remaining witnesses.

Senators Curb 'Hazard Pay' In Services

The Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday wrote a change into the House-approved military pay bill limiting "hazard pay."

As voted by the House, the President would be authorized in time of war to suspend such "incentive pay" allowed airmen, submariners and paratroopers. Or he could extend the extra compensation to others—such as combat infantrymen or Marine assault troops.

Additional Data Asked

The Senate committee's amendment eliminates the latter provision. Thus, hazard pay could be suspended, but not extended, when actual war changes the relative danger of various types of duty.

Senators also asked Pentagon officials to supply them with additional data on overseas pay of privates and privates first class. They questioned whether cutbacks in such foreign duty would not offset increases in base pay.

Executive Session Today

The committee now has read through and tentatively approved Titles I and II of the Kilday pay bill. Title II deals with pay rates. Thus, unless a Senator wants to reopen the latter, the rate approved by the House probably will stand.

Title III, dealing with allowances, will be considered this morning, with the committee again meeting in executive session. The group then is expected to adjourn until next week. Sponsors of the bill hope the measure will be approved by the committee late next week.

AEC Says Only 37 Out of 4095 Were Fired After 'Clearances'

By the United Press

The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed yesterday that 37 of the 4095 persons granted "emergency clearances" for atomic work were later fired because of information unearthed in FBI investigations.

It emphasized, however, that none of those fired were "espionage suspects" and that only one case involved "reasonably well-confirmed evidence of membership or association with the Communist Party."

Eight others were discharged because the FBI found "some indication of association with persons or groups alleged to be subversive," it said.

The others were let go because of police records, alcoholism, sexual perversion or other character defects.

The commission laid the figures before the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee which is investigating mismanagement charges brought by Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) against Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal. Hickenlooper has accused the commission of abusing the emergency clearance procedure authorized by the Atomic Energy Law.

In a memorandum to the committee, the commission replied that the figures actualy are "a credit to the effectiveness" of its practice of obtaining a preliminary check of FBI files before granting an emergency clearance.

It said the figures also demonstrate "the limited nature of the risk involved in granting emergency clearances."

Lilienthal had previously told the committee that such temporary clearances have been found necessary on some occasions to prevent delays which would hamper the entire atomic program and thus seriously endanger national security.

The memorandum said 15 of those discharged were employes of the commission itself, while 22 worked for contractors who operate atomic installations. No names were given.

The lone worker accused of Communist associations was described as an accountant who was cleared to work in a processing plant. The commission said the material processed at the plant has "technical specifications of some security significance."

But it added that the FBI file contained "considerable evidence" the accountant was actually a "loyal citizen" and that there was no evidence whatever "espionage was attempted or even contemplated."

Mrs. Fredric March Is Named

New York, June 29 (AP).—The name of Mrs. Fredric March was mentioned in the Communist conspiracy trial today as a delegate who attended a 1945 meeting of the Women's International Democratic Federation in Paris.

Gilbert Green, of Chicago, defendant testifying at the trial, did not identify Mrs. March.

He named Mrs. Muriel Draper and Mrs. Elizabeth Gurley Flynn as other delegates. The former was not identified. Mrs. Flynn is chairman of the women's commission of the Communist Party.

The witness said the Paris meeting, at which the federation was organized, was an "historic event." The federation was cited before the California Committee on Un-American Activities as a "Red international" group formed "at the call of international Communist forces."

Earlier, Green had testified that women are guaranteed more rights in the Soviet Union than in the United States.

He said he taught a class of women in Chicago in 1946-47 that they must fight for their rights and that "only socialism could provide the final solution of their problem."

4 Communist Leaders Jailed in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, June 29 (AP).—Four Communist party leaders have been sentenced to a year to 18 months in jail for refusing to answer grand jury questions about the party in Los Angeles County.

Federal Judge Peirson M. Hall yesterday sentenced: Dorothy Ray Healey, county organizing secretary, to 18 months; Elvador Greenfield and Max Appelman, organizers, and Horace W. Newman, jr., education director, each to one year in prison.

purse, the manner in which they were packaged . . . the circumstances under which she met Valentin Gubichev . . . the fact he was a Russian national . . .

"All this determines intentions.

Question of Writing

"Or whether, as she said, her intention was to write a book and she had documents in her purse for that purpose."

The jurist leaned forward again to address the jury in these clearly formed words: "It is a matter for you to reason out, not me."

Juror Gould rose again at his seat.

"Intent is so intangible. They just can't grasp it, some of the jurors . . . if you could go a little further, as you very ably started this, Your Honor. We don't want to jump to conclusions too readily. Some jurors understand some things, some don't."

The defendant watched, her eyes moving from juror to judge and back again.

Defendant's Intentions

The judge reached for a glass of water, took a swallow, probed again into the meaning of the word:

"Purpose . . . intent. . . . Inquiring what was her purpose. . . . What were her intentions. . . . Whether to write a book, prepare for a civil service examination, or, as charged in the indictment, to use the material for the advantage of another country."

It was a great courtroom scene, as the clock crept towards midnight, this scene of a jury's honest gropings seen in open court, and of an able judicial mind, knowing but too well the burden placed on him, seeking to form into precise, unmistakable meaning the small word on which so much is at stake.

"Now does that make it clear?" Judge Reeves said at last.

The jury said it did, and they left to resume their deliberations.

Jury Is Locked Up

This act immediately spread the word through the peopled corridors that the moment of verdict was at hand, else the jury would not be returning to its deliberations at such an hour.

But in a matter of minutes it was told that the jury had decided to retire for the night, was going to a hotel under guard.

This same rumor, that a verdict was near, had spread when it was announced Judge Reeves was on his way to court.

It was 10:30.

The crowd of curiosity-starved spectators, the hanging around for the final word, jammed into their places in line and there were shouts of "Throw him out!" as one big youth made his way to the front of the line.

Judge Takes Bench

Judge Reeves, white-haired, black-robed, entered the court at exactly 10:59 p. m.

The first words to burst on his ears at this late hour were:

"In view of the fact that Mr. Kelley talked about fornication of these two people, denied by the girl . . ."

It was the roaring throat of Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer.

There was an article in a newspaper he didn't like, relating to the activities of H. P. Shapiro, Government attorney, and Miss Coplon in out-of-town hotels and Washington apartments . . . a bit of evidence which the prosecution used to slash into the main defense contention, that Miss Coplon was in love with Gubitchev.

"Like Caesar fed," Palmer was shouting before Judge Reeves was fully settled in his chair. "like Caesar . . . the things he fed on, according to the Bible.

Palmer Asks Mistrial

"Here's Mr. Kelley, here's Mr. Whearty, there's substantial justice and it's now 11 o'clock!" he roared in another scene that took the breath, and almost belief itself, away.

"I move for a mistrial!" he screamed . . . "on the grounds that misinformation has been made about this girl. . . ." His rotund form whirled and his arm shot out toward the defendant, his voice rose deafeningly on the next word . . . "fornicated with Mr. Shapiro, which she denies . . . I ask your honor in the interest of substantial justice . . ."

He asked His Honor to bring to the stand the newspaperman who had written the article.

Judge Reeves kept his quiet voice, but finally managed to get in:

"We have anothe rmatter here now."

Charge to Jury

It was at 11:12 a. m. that Judge Albert L. Reeves finished his charge to the jury:

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, you 12 will retire to the jury room and deliberate on your verdict. When you arrive at a verdict let the fact be known."

Archibald Palmer, the defense attorney, walked over and rubbed his hand over the back of Miss Coplon's neck. Then he went three more steps, and patted her sobbing mother on the back.

"This court stands recessed until the return of the jury," the marshal announced.

Outside a crowd immediately formed a long line to get seats in the courtroom should the verdict come quickly. One man leaned on crutches, and waited thus for hours unrewarded, for the jury had not returned last night.

The suspended Department of Justice girl, charged with using her job to give the Nation's secrets to Russia, waited until the courtroom was almost cleared before leaving.

Her mother, black-clad, seemed never quite to stop sobbing, but no tears marked the face of the defendant accused of espionage.

Outwardly, at least, there seemed hardly a more chipper person in the building than the 28-year-old Miss Coplon as the afternoon hours dragged away. The jury, under heavy guard, stayed in its room deliberating until 12:23, then left for lunch.

"Double line and keep close together," the marshal's voice came tersely to the jury as they emerged into the corridors, the four women first.

The jury had lunch, resumed at 1:30 p. m., stayed until 5:45, left for dinner. It was expected to continue deliberations until late last night.

A sharp hint as to the course their discussion was taking came around noon from the jury room.

The 12 men and women who will decide Judith Coplon's fate sent word that they wanted to see four sets of documents:

1. The entire contents of her purse when she was arrested March 4 in New York with Valentin Gubitchev, the purse jammed with FBI confidential data slips and other material taken from the Department of Justice.

2. The full FBI investigative reports back of the 34 dated slips in her purse.

3. The Canadian report on Russian espionage methods which the prosecution had read from at the trial in an effort to show that Miss Coplon used these established techniques in "character sketches" found in her purse, the Government charging these sketches concerned potential Soviet spy recruits.

4. The Civil Service examination papers, to fill out which Miss Coplon claims she had some of the slips with her on a New York weekend.

The jury was not allowed to see the Canadian spy report because it was not in evidence.

Palmer objected to the jury seeing the full FBI reports, which are in evidence, because portions of these had been marked with a red pencil to indicate the origins of the data slips.

Pending Judge Reeves' ruling on this matter, all three of the requested items were kept from jury inspection.

While waiting on the jury, Miss Coplon and Palmer stood by at times in the press room, joking and talking freely to newspapermen.

Defendant Kept Busy

"Are we coming back?" she asked as she left for dinner, when the jury had gone.

"Sure, we're coming back, Palmer said, slapping her on the back. "You're not free yet."

The Barnard College honor graduate wore a chocolate-hued, French-made lisle shirt, a beige gabardine skirt, silk stockings and brown alligator shoes. On the shirt was a silver fleur-de-lis pin. Miss Coplon said she bought the pin on a trip to Florence last year.

From time to time, as photographers called, she went out on the courthouse steps.

There she faced a battery of cameras, moving and still. Hundreds of pictures were made.

Miss Coplon obliged with repeated statements for sound movies and radio networks.

"The jury's out now," she said in one of these talks, speaking from the steps to an audience gathered below. "But I want all the world to know whatever the verdict is, I'm innocent of all charges. I'm a loyal American. I've never committed an offense against the United States, or anyone. I'm a victim of a horrible, horrible frameup."

Took Data, Judge Says

In his charge to the jury, Judge Reeves said there was no dispute about the fact that Miss Coplon took and, at the time of her arrest, had in her purse "data slips" containing confidential information from FBI files.

"When you go into the jury room," he told the panel, "you will ask yourself the question: 'Did the defendant, Judith Coplon, intend to deliver the data slips to Valentin Gubitchev?'

"If your answer is in the affirmative, then your next question would be whether she intended or had reason to believe that the information contained in such data slips was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign country.

"This latter question would not be hard to answer," he said.

Defense Information

"It cannot be disputed that such data slips did contain information relating to or connected with our national defense.

"From the evidence in the case you can easily conclude that such information could be used to the advantage of a foreign country and to the injury of this country.

"Moreover," he added, "if you should find that it was her purpose to deliver such data slips to the person known as Valentin Gubitchev, being a Russian national, then you will ask yourselves what her purpose was and to what use he would put them, if not for use advantageous to Russia.

"The law does not say that the injury (to the Unted States) must be great and momentous or that the advantage to the foreign country must be great. However slight the injury to the United States, and however little the advantage to a foreign country, would be sufficient.

"If you find the above fact to exist, then it would be your duty to render a verdict of guilty."

If Slips for Own Use

But if, Judge Reeves said, the jury should find that Miss Coplon took the data slips "for her own personal use and without any intent or without any reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of a foreign country, then you would return a verdict of not guilty on the first count."

The first count is the actual espionage charge and carries a maximum penalty of 10 years imprisonment and $10,000 fine. The second count of the indictment deals with the actual removal of documents from Justice Department files and under this one Miss Coplon is liable to three years' imprisonment and $2000 fine.

Removed 'Unlawfully?'

The question on the second count, Judge Reeves told the jurors, was whether the defendant removed "unlawfully and willfully," as the Government charges, these materials relating to espionage and counterespionage activities in the United States, or whether she took them "in accordance with accepted practice and procedure" as Miss Coplon suggests.

The FBI, he said, was "wisely" established to "protect the Government against subversive activities" and the statute under which Miss Coplon is charged was enacted to protect the material collated by the FBI.

He told the jurors that "there was no evidence that she gave such data slips to anyone.

"The defendant's intention becomes an important issue in the case. It is necessary before you can return a verdict of guilty on the first count to ascertain what her intentions were in this regard.

"This can only be done by circumstantial evidence."

Such evidence, he said, "is not direct, but indirect evidence, yet it is competent."

There was no question, either, he said, of the "clandestine" nature of the meetings of Miss Coplon and Gubitchev. The question to determine here, the jurist said, was whether the secretiveness was that of spies or for such reasons as Miss Coplon gave — that Gubitchev's wife's detectives were supposedly following them.

Soft Coal Contract Talks Stalemated

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 29 (U.P.).—John L. Lewis and the soft coal operators today reported "no progress" in their efforts to write a wage agreement to replace the contract expiring at midnight tomorrow.

They agreed to meet again tomorrow but neither side held out hope the deadlock would be broken.

Despite the stalemate, George H. Love, president of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., and chief operator spokesman, doubted Lewis would call his United Mine workers out on strike when the miners' annual 10-day vacation ends July 5.

The union already has informed the Southern Coal Producers Association in contracts talks at nearby Bluefield, W. Va., that the miners will adhere to their "no contract, no work" policy and refuse to report for work.

But Love said he expected soft coal mines in the North and West to operate at least until August 14, or 60 days from the date on which Lewis served contract termination notices on the producers.

The 60-day no-strike period is required by the Taft-Hartley labor management law.

Rejected by Union

Plan to End Hawaii Dock Strike Fails

Honolulu, June 29 (AP).—A union spokesman, rejecting a fact-finding board's peace plan, declared today that Hawaii's paralyzing waterfront strike may "go on at least another month."

Jack Hall, leader in Hawaii of the striking International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, made his statement after reading the board's proposal for a wage boost of 14 cents an hour. The union has asked for 32 cents.

Fred Low, jr., another union official, said the board plan offered "no basis for settlement." He declared the union would make a concerted drive for funds to carry on the strike.

The strike of 2000 stevedores is in its sixtieth day. Employers have not yet said what they think of the emergency board's findings, handed down yesterday. Neither side is bound to accept the findings.

In Washington, Gov. Ingram M. Stainback of Hawaii appealed to both sides to accept the recommendations of this board and end the strike "in the public interest."

"I don't see how they can do otherwise if they have the public interest at heart," he told a reporter.

"The interest of the public is paramount," Stainback said. "Even though either side may not be entirely satisfied, I think they should abide by the recommendation and save the Territory from further suffering and economic strangulation."

T-H Battle About Over

Taft, "so I don't see how he could have better information than the Senator from Ohio."

Then Taft, up for reelection in 1950 in an AFL State, proceeded to rip Green for writing the letter to Lucas. He termed it "the most presumptuous statement" any leader ever made to the Senate.

"Mr. Green is undertaking to veto the Senate bill before it passes," continued Taft. "His orders are, 'Vote against the substitute, and if it is defeated, vote against the bill.' Why? Because we have dared to include a 60-day injunction provision to enforce the Thomas bill."

Lucas objected to what he said was Taft's implication that he was following Green's "leadership." Taft said he was not implying that. He said he was simply questioning Lucas' forecast of a veto.

Earlier Lucas agreed with Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) that there was some room for belief the President might sign the bill if the second Taft substitute was defeated. Privately, however, leaders held out no hope for halting a complete Taft sweep.

Vote Seen as Conclusive

Senate Labor Chairman Thomas said as much on the Senate floor. He said the 50-to-40 vote by which Taft's injunction-seizure amendment was adopted was so conclusive that there was little chance of a break in the pattern on the second Taft substitute.

Thomas said it seemed to him the only bill the Senate would accept is the Taft-Hartley act "under a new title, which would be unfair."

Taft's second substitute, which will go to a Senate vote today, wraps up into a single package 27 other changes the Ohioan proposes to make in the Taft-Hartley law, in addition to the already adopted injunction-seizure feature.

These include a slightly modified form of the Taft-Hartley closed-shop ban, with a "State's rights" closed-shop guarantee, that labor has fought even more bitterly than it opposed emergency antistrike powers. Authority for temporary injunctions against secondary boycotts and unfair labor practices also are included in Taft's 27 points.

Promise to Quit Kissing Police Frees Woman

A 38-year-old woman was released yesterday in Municipal Court after she promised never again to get drunk—or try to kiss a policeman.

She is Nellie Louise Lee, convited of drunkenness, whose address was given as 1768 Columbia rd. nw. Police Pvt. G. S. Lindner of the First Precinct testified that when he ordered her to leave a restaurant in the 600 block of G st. nw., she lunged toward him and said, "I'll go home but before I do, I'm going to kiss you." He said he warded her off.

In releasing her on her personal bond, Judge Frank H. Myers declared, "I'll let you go if you promise to stop drinking and stop kissing policemen."

Bendix Strikers Vote To Return to Work

South Bend, Ind., June 29 (U.P.).—Bendix Aviation Corp. workers, on strike for 71 days in a dispute that had threatened automobile and jet airplane production, voted today to return to work immediately.

Agreement on settlement terms was reached in conferences in Washington yesterday.

Strike May Close Down 'Chocolate Town,' Pa.

Hershey, Pa., June 29 (U.P.).—A strike threatens to close "Chocolate Town" on Saturday.

Unless a union dispute is settled before the weekend, 4000 employes of the Hershey Chocolate Corp. and the Hershey Estates will go on strike.

Members of an AFL Bakery and Confectionery Workers local voted to strike unless agreement is reached on their demands for a union shop.

to arbitrate, stating that the three-man board is mandatory only in disputes under the current contract, not in negotiating a new contract.

E. D. Merrill, president of the transit firm, said the three-man board had been used before but he did not believe this procedure took the public interest sufficiently into account.

Terms of the new contract were hardly mentioned at last night's meeting.

The disputants had previously held a fruitless 3½-hour meeting with Holden earlier yesterday in the company offices.

The union originally sought 25 cents an hour increase in pay and unofficially lowered its sights to 10 cents.

The company—which originally asked for contract changes which it said would save $500,000 annually—has informally offered to convert the economies into 5 cents additional per hour to the employes.

Capital Transit, in newspaper ads, today urged its employes, at their meeting tonight, to vote for a 30-day continuation of the negotiations, promising to make any benefits finally negotiated retroactive to July 1.

This offer has already been rejected by union negotiators, who in turn offered to continue the negotiations for 30 days, if at the end of that time, there being no settlement, the company agree to the three-man arbitration.

Meanwhile, the Office of the Secretary of Defense issued a memorandum to the Secretaries of War, Navy, and Air Force suggesting in the event of a transit strike, a voluntary share-the-ride plan by Pentagon employes and personnel having parking privileges there.

"Pick up employes who signal you anywhere along your route to work," Pentagon car owners were urged. The car operators will be provided with big "Pentagon" stickers.

WFTU Parley Is Picketed By Anti-Reds

Milan, Italy, June 29 (AP).—Anti-Communists picketed the opening of the leftist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU) Congress today.

Handbills labeling the congress "a reunion of the Cominform in Milan" flooded downtown sections. They were signed "The Italian Committee for Labor Union Liberty."

There were no incidents, however, as hundreds of WFTU delegates claiming to represent 74 million workers in 74 nations and territories met for their two-week congress.

WFTU President Giuseppe di Vittorio, Italy's Communist labor boss, said an economic crisis now is facing many capitalist countries. He said such crises do not exist in the Communist-ruled nations.

WFTU Secretary General Louis Saillant of France said James B. Carey, national secretary of the American CIO, split the ranks of the four-year-old WFTU.

"We do not believe that this rupture, which is a product of an international syndicalist movement, is definite," Saillant declared.

Carey led the CIO out of its alliance with the WFTU after an executive committee meeting in Rome in May, 1948. He claimed the WFTU was dominated by Communists.

The eight-million-member British Trade Unions Congress also withdrew from the WFTU, along with Norwegian, Swedish, Belgian, Dutch, French and Italian anti-Communist labor organizations.

Girl to Receive Award for Essay On Handicapped

Miss Genevra Shockey, 18, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Mark H. Shockey, 6307 3rd st. nw., will be honored at a Junior Board of Trade luncheon in the Burlington Hotel today for her winning essay on "Why Not Hire the Handicapped?"

A June graduate of Calvin Coolidge High School, Miss Shockey will receive a certificate of merit from Admiral Ross T. McIntire, chairman of the President's committee on National Employment of the Physically Handicapped Week.

The award entitles her to compete for national prizes ranging up to $1000. In her essay, Miss Shockey pointed out that disabled persons can be employed "with every assurance that employers will get more per unit of manpower than they do generally."

The prize winner's father is pastor of Roberts Memorial Free Methodist Church.

Lost Pay Not NLRB Matter

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that it has no power to force a striking union to make up wages lost by nonstriking employes during a walkout—even if the strike is illegal.

The board, in an unanimous opinion, found the CIO United Furniture Workers guilty of "illegal restraint and coercion" during a 1947 strike at the Colonial Hardwood Flooring Co., Hagerstown, Md.

But the board tossed out arguments of the company and Labor Board General Counsel Robert N. Denham that the union should be assessed for wages lost during the strike by several nonstriking workers.

Denham and the company had contended that nonstriking employes were unable to work during the strike because union officials turned them away from the plant by physical violence and threats.

In the first ruling of its kind, the board said it had no "mandate from Congress" to require unions to make up lost wages except where it is proved that the union discriminated against a nonunion employe.

British Press Given Generally Clean Bill

By Ned Russell

London, June 29 (NYHT).—A Royal Commission vindicated the British press today of various charges of corruption and monopolistic practices but urged it to set up a general council to guard its own interests and raise its standards.

It rejected the few proposals advanced for various forms of state control of the press.

"Free enterprise in the production of newspapers," it said, "is a prerequisite of a free press."

The commission, which spent two years and about $85,000 interviewing 182 witnesses, examining documents and correspondence and compiling its findings, issued its report in a 363-page booklet. It was probably the most comprehensive study ever made of a nation's newspaper business.

Set Up in 1947

The commission was set up in April, 1947, primarily at the instigation of the National Union of Journalists, similar to the American Newspaper Guild, which laid out many charges against wide sections of the British press.

There was widespread support for the inquiry among members of the Labor Government and Labor members of Parliament who frequently denounce the press.

The commission's general vindication of the press with remarkably few reservations was displayed with great prominence in this afternoon's newspapers.

Lord Beaverbook's Evening Standard used the report to taunt Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, and Aneurin Bevan, Health Minister, for criticisms they have made of the press. Morrison has referred to "suppressions, misrepresentations, and inventions" as daily occurrences which "are a disgrace to British journalism." Bevan has described the Conservative press as "the most prostituted in the world."

"Inferior to None"

Although the commission indorsed some criticisms, particularly those alleging political bias, it did not seem to feel the charges were too serious.

"It is generally agreed," the commission reported, "that the British press is inferior to none in the world."

The policies of British newspapers are dictated by the men who own them and they are all well-known public figures in the country, the commission said. Neither the government nor outside financial interests influence policies. Nor is there any corruption, the commission added.

"The public can dismiss from its mind any misgiving that the press is mysteriously financed and controlled by hidden influences," the report said, "and that it is open to the exercise of corrput pressure from self-seeking outside sources."

Council Urged

Main recommendation was for voluntary establishment by the newspaper industry of a general council of 25 members with only the chairman being paid. The council would consist of publishers, editors and other journalists and five members from outside the business.

The council would be charged with safeguarding the freedom of the press, encouraging the growth of the sense of public responsibility and public service in the business and increasing the efficiency and well-being of newspaper workers.

In addition it would guard against restrictions on the supply of information of public interest and importance, improve the methods of recruitment, education and training for the business, promote a proper functional relation among all sections of the business, build up a code of conduct and deal with complaints.

It would also consider a pension scheme, promote technical and other research, study developments which might tend toward greater concentration of monopoly and represent the press in its relations with the government, the United Nations and similar foreign organizations.

Probably the most interesting section of the report dealt with the charges of monopolistic practices in the ownership of newspapers and distortion and suppression of news to fit the policies of certain publishers.

The commission reported there is no monopoly but there is "some concentration of ownership." At the same time, it warned against any extension of the present five big newspaper chains, the biggest of which is owned by Viscount Kemsley and which includes three Sunday newspapers and one daily in London and 11 newspapers in other parts of the country.

The charge that political bias finds its way into most newspapers apparently was the most common complaint heard, and many examples were submitted. The commission acknowledged the widespread political factor in the national newspapers, as distinct from the provincial press, but found many reasons for it, including "legitimate differences of opinion on news value."

'Daily Express' Criticized

At the same time, it cited instances involving such newspapers as Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, which it accused of "gravely" distoring some stories to fit Lord Beaverbrook's policies. In the case of a by-election at Gravesend two years ago, the commission said there was "complete absence of objectivity" in the national press with the exception of The Times of London.

The commission also examined allegations that the development of newspaper chains had squeezed out many small independent newspapers. From 1921 and 1948, it reported, the number of national morning newspapers dropped from 12 to 9, provincial mornings from 41 to 25, London evenings from 4 to 3, provincial evenings from 89 to 75, and Sundays from 21 to 16. The main reasons for the deaths of these newspapers involved intense competition and high production costs, the commission said.

Of the 44 provincial dailies which ceased publication during the period, 20 were not killed by the chains, "either because they died before the chains had begun to develop, or because they were remote from any chain activity." Of another six, it was considered "unlikely" that they were killed by the chain. Sixteen newspapers, however, were "amalgamated" with chain papers during the period.

Fairfax Groups to Poll Members on Annexation

Maryland League Calls For Scott's Resignation

Baltimore, June 29 (AP).—The Young Republican League of Maryland is calling for the resignation of the National Party Chairman Hugh D. Scott (R., Pa.).

The league last week lost out at the National Young GOP Convention as the State's official organization. The convention seated instead a rival delegation, the Maryland State Federation of Young Republicans.

'Giant' Strikes Hinted by CIO Organizer

Columbus, Ohio, June 29 (AP).—The CIO director of organization predicted today "there may be some giant strikes."

The statement came from Allan S. Haywood, a vice president of the CIO, in a talk to the convention of the American Newspaper Guild.

"American industry must meet its responsibilities," said Haywood. "We are determined to bring into industry something human, something necessary."

Discussing the labor unrest of recent months, Haywood said, "I'm afraid there may be some giant strikes."

"The only way you can cure unemployment," he continued, "is to put profits into circulation by putting them into the pockets of workers in the form of higher wages.

"Private enterprise can destroy itself with its own hoggishness. I call on industry to meet labor's rights and distribute their excessive profits."

Primary CIO aims in 1949, said Haywood, are the shorter workday, the shorter work week, higher wages, better houses, better hospitals, better pensions—better pensions that come "before we are ready to die."

Haywood told of his efforts to organize the Nation's telephone workers. He said his Communication Workers of America could change the political complexion of New York and Pennsylvania, and said: "I can promise you that we are going to."

He called for repeal of what he termed America's "slave laws" dealing with labor.

ILO Adopts Record Budget for Next Year

Geneva, Switzerland, June 29 (U.P.).—The annual conference of the International Labor Organization today adopted a budget of $5,983,526 for 1950, an increase of 15 per cent and the highest budget in ILO's history.

The United States contribution to the 1950 budget was raised from 18.5 per cent to 22 per cent of the total.

House Set to Move Into New Quarters

The House yesterday formally agreed to move from its permanent chamber to the New House Office Building caucus room to make way for roof renovations.

It adopted a House resolution stating that tomorrow will be the last business day in their regular quarters and Tuesday will be opening day in their temporary home.

The Senate is also slated to move over the July 4 weekend into the old Supreme Court room in the capitol.

Carnal Knowledge Case Dismissed

A charge of carnal knowledge against Booker T. Marshall, 30, of 645 Orleans pl. ne., was dismissed for lack of evidence yesterday in District Court. The case involved an 11-year-old girl according to the charge.

In another sex case, Howard G. Malone, 34, listed as residing at 716 Florida ave. nw., was adjudged to be a sexual psychopath in District Court and was sent to St. Elizabeths Hospital for treatment. He had been accused of taking indecent liberties with two girls.

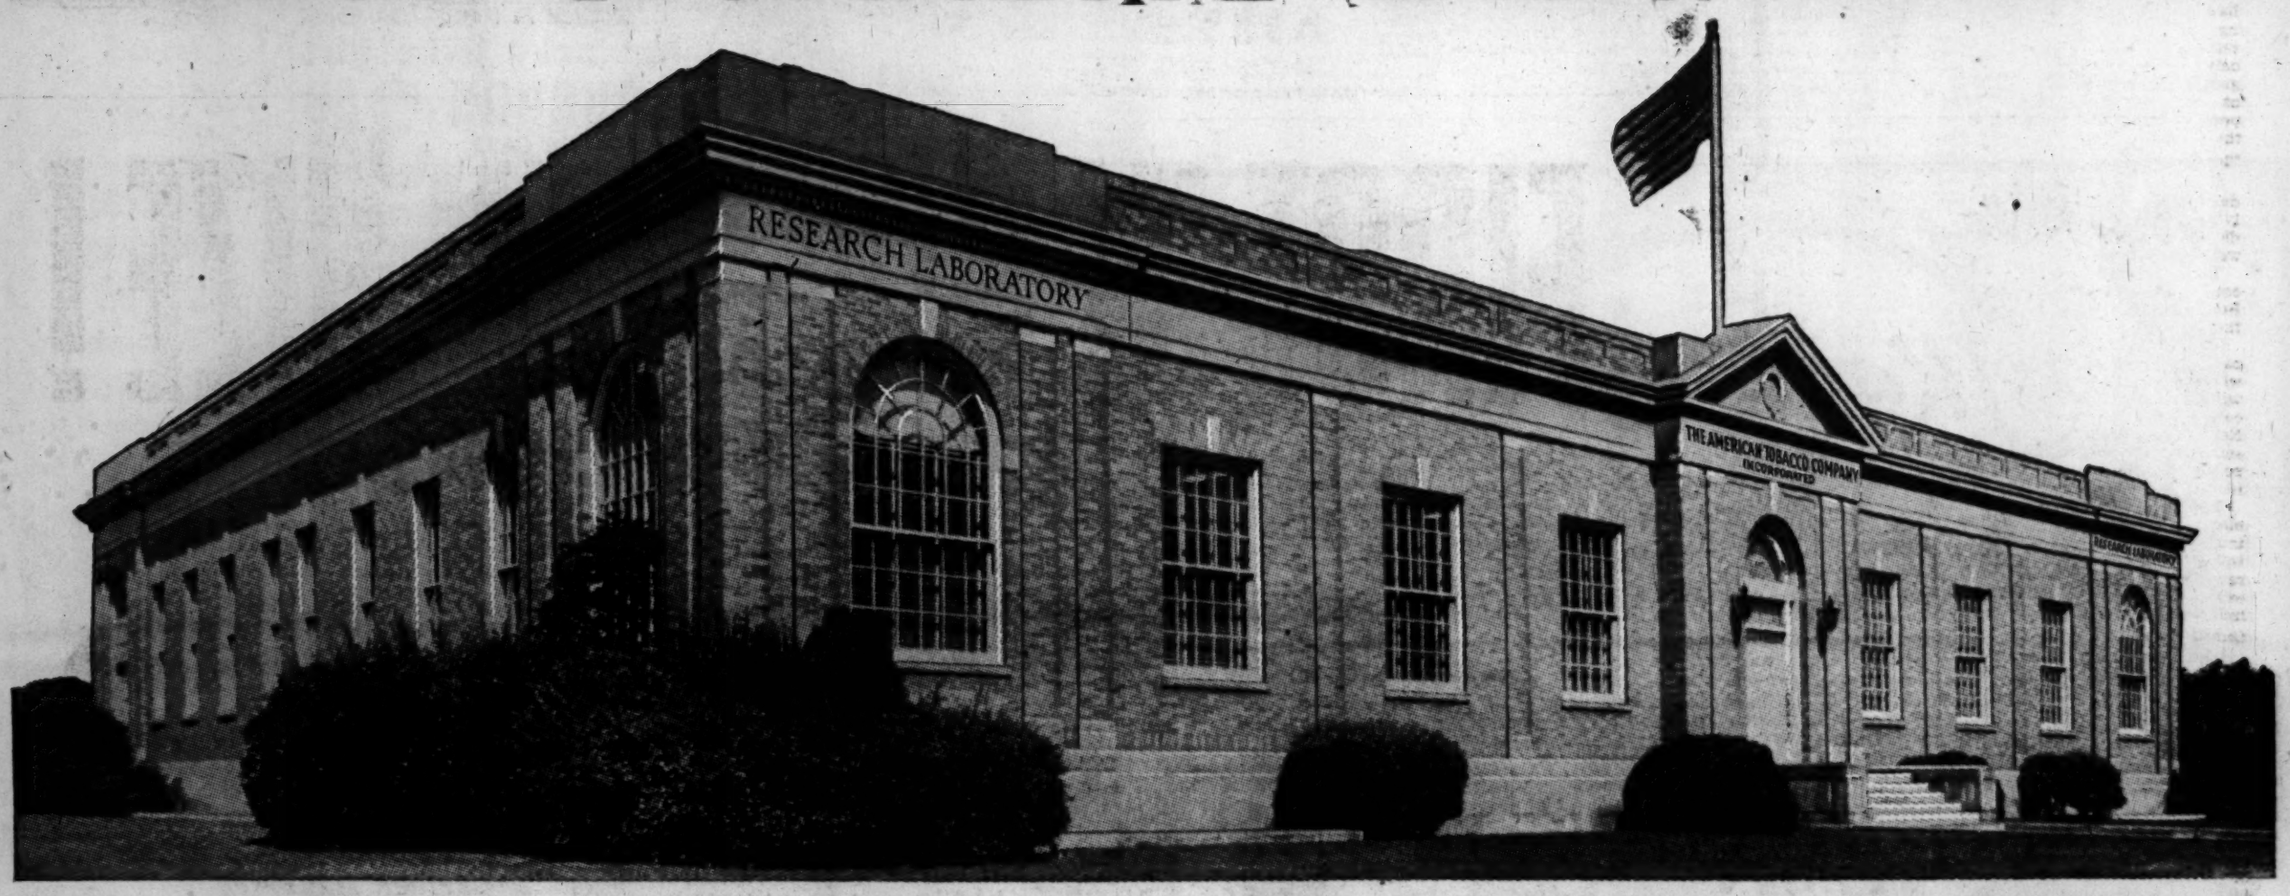
Lucky Strike maintains America's

FINEST CIGARETTE LABORATORY

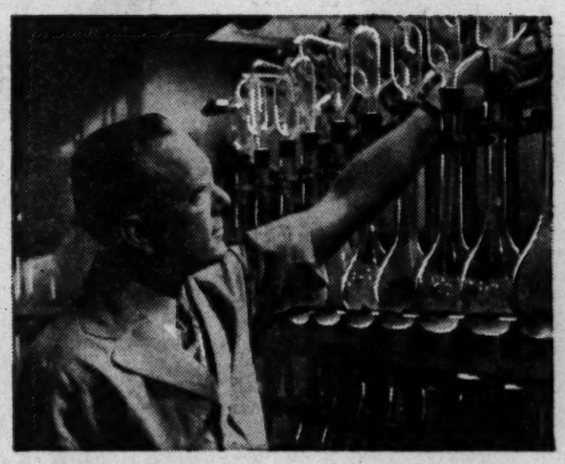


Largest and most fully equipped cigarette research laboratory in America is your guarantee that Luckies are a finer cigarette!

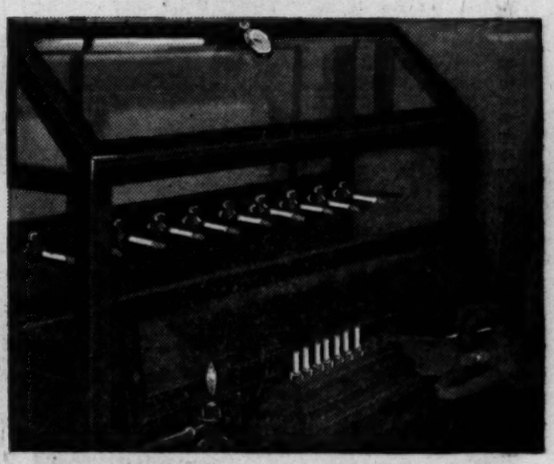
YOU SEE HERE the largest and most complete laboratory of its kind operated by any cigarette manufacturer in America.

For many years Lucky Strike scientists have delved into cigarette research on an extensive scale. Out of this has grown an elaborate system of quality control. Every step in the making of Luckies—from before the tobacco is bought until the finished cigarette reaches you—comes under the laboratory's watchful eye. Literally hundreds of precision tests are conducted daily to make certain that the Lucky Strike you smoke is a finer, milder, more enjoyable cigarette. As you read this, a constant stream of tobacco . . . samples from every tobacco-growing area . . . is flowing into the laboratory in Richmond, Virginia. These samples are scientifically analyzed, and reports of their quality go to the men who buy at auction for the makers of Lucky Strike.

Armed with this confidential, scientific information—and their own sound judgment—these men go after finer, lighter, milder tobacco. This fine tobacco—together with scientifically controlled manufacturing methods—is your assurance that there is no finer cigarette in the world today than Lucky Strike!



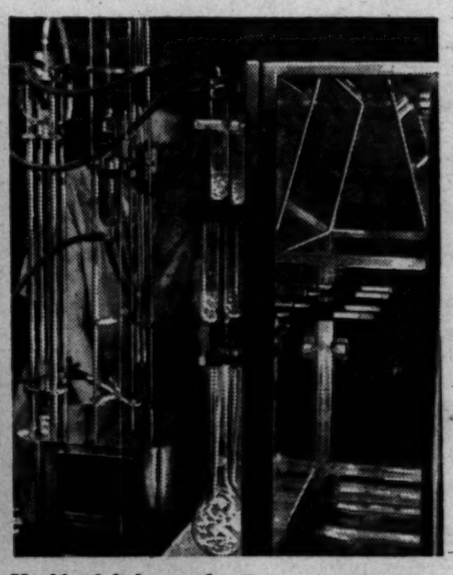
Testing tobacco. Samples from every tobacco-growing area are analyzed before and after purchase. These extensive scientific analyses, along with the expert judgment of Lucky Strike buyers, assure you that the tobacco in Luckies is fine, light and mild.



Why Luckies smoke evenly—not too fast, not too slow. This apparatus, together with many other technical devices, evaluates the smoking qualities of a cigarette—guarantees that your Lucky Strike smokes properly—smoothly and evenly.

So round, so firm, so fully packed. Typical of many special devices designed to maintain the highest standards of cigarette quality, this mechanism helps to avoid loose ends . . . makes doubly sure your Lucky is so round, so firm, so fully packed.

So free and easy on the draw. This meter draws air through the cigarette, measures the draw. Samples are tested to see if they are properly filled. Tests like this one are your guarantee that the Luckies you smoke are truly free and easy on the draw.



Machine inhales smoke. Once a minute this automatic smoking machine takes a two-second puff of a Lucky. Yes, even smoke is studied in the never-ending work to make sure Luckies are a smoother, milder smoke. So smoke a Lucky—today!

We know:

COPR., THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY

Reds in Berlin Area Seize 2d Truck

Berlin, June 29 (AP).—Russian guards today seized another truck on the autobahn just outside Berlin.

This was after Soviet authorities had returned seven tons of power plant machinery seized yesterday at the outskirts of the city.

The guards took a Siemens Company truck and two trailers with $135,000 worth of electrical equipment and radios consigned to Frankfurt in the American zone. They hauled it off to their headquarters at Prenzlauerberg without explanation.

Power plant machinery seized yesterday was bound from Frankfurt to Berlin. American and British authorities protested the act was a violation of the blockade-lifting agreement.

Traffic Still Stalled

Today the Russians returned the shipment with the explanation the papers were not in order. What they meant was that the German trucks were not carrying Soviet shipping orders. The Western Powers never have admitted such papers were needed.

The cargo was for construction of a new power plant for West Berlin to make that sector independent of the Russian sector.

Meanwhile, rail traffic between West Germany and Berlin remained stalled despite the ending of the 38-day strike of 14,000 anti-Communist workers yesterday.

The Russian-dominated Reichsbahn (State Railway) said damage to some major switches, transformers and signals was more extensive than had been anticipated. Lengthy repairs were needed.

The Reichsbahn said elevated train service for West Berlin's million daily passengers would start Thursday. Two hours later, the Soviet-controlled news agency eliminated the announcement without explanation.

No announcement was made on when freight train movements between Berlin and West Germany would start. A U. S. transport officer who examined the railyard situation said he thought Allied military passenger trains should start Thursday.

Officials of UGO, the non-Communist union that called the strike, charged the railway management was violating settlement by carrying out reprisals against strikers. They said 375 men were fired without notice for active participation in the strike.

Australia Moves To Freeze Union Funds

Sydney, Australia, June 29 (AP). A bill to freeze the funds of labor unions was passed by the House of Representatives and Senate tonight in a blow at striking coal miners.

It was designed to prevent the 24,000 striking miners from receiving financial aid from their own and other unions and upset plans for a long strike.

The miners walked out three days ago in a demand for a 15 per cent pay raise and a 35-hour week.

Catholics Save Slovak Priests From Arrest

Prague, June 29 (U.P.)—Rioting Catholic peasants of four Slovak villages rescued their priests from arrest in fights with Communist police Sunday in the first popular uprising of the church-state dispute, a Catholic informant said tonight.

Police who sought to arrest the priests were beaten and fled. Provincial authorities imposed martial law and a strict 10 p. m.-9 a. m. curfew. Communist militiamen armed with Tommy guns moved in Sunday night.

Martial law, which extended over an area of 100 square miles, was lifted today, the informant said. He reported the priests still were at large.

The informant said men of numerous villages were patrolling to guard their priests. He said he had heard unconfirmed reports the army had been called in to suppress riots in some villages, but that the soldiers refused to move against the people.

Fears that Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague might be under house arrest intensified among Catholics when he failed to appear today at graduation exercises of Vojtech Seminary, of which he was formerly in charge.

The Archbishop has not left his police-controlled palace since June 19, when he was howled down by Communists in St. Vitus Cathedral.

For sentimental reasons the Archbishop always has conducted the seminary's graduation mass. The mass was scheduled for St. Vitus' this morning. An hour before it was to begin worshippers were told it would be held at the seminary church.

The mass was started an hour late. The church bells pealed as the Archbishop's car approached but his deputy bishop Antonin Eickner arrived to act for him.

New Charter For Germany Published

The charter under which John J. McCloy will operate as one of the three Allied High Commissioners in Germany yesterday was published by the three Western Governments.

The High Commission, which will supplant the present Military Government in September, will consist of McCloy, Sir Brian Robertson as the British member and Andre Francois-Poncet as the French. Each will serve as chairman in rotation.

General agreement on the powers and functions of the High Commission was reached and announced when the Foreign Ministers of the three countries were in Washington for the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty in April.

Document Signed June 20

The general principles now have been embodied in a detailed and carefully drafted document signed by Secretary of State Acheson, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman in Paris on June 20.

The charter provides that the High Commission will exercise supreme Allied authority in the new Federal Republic of Germany, now being formed in the three Western zones. Berlin will cease to be the center of Allied authority in Germany, for, according to the charter:

"The headquarters of the High Commission shall be at the seat of the German federal government which, together with the surounding area to be defined, will constitute a special area directly under the High Commission and excluded from any individual zone of occupation."

The new capital, and therefore the headquarters of the High Commission, is expected to be the ancient university town of Bonn, on the Rhine, where the new German constitution was written and signed.

Six Committees Set Up

The charter provided for a "Land Commissioner" acting for the High Commission in the capital of each of the 11 leander, or states, of the new republic.

In the state capitals of the American zone, the Land Commissioner must be American; elsewhere he must be British or French, depending on the zone in which the state is located.

The charter provides also for six committees to assist the High Commission, for subordinate committees set up on a basis of parity among the three Allied powers, and for a tripartite secretariat.

Indonesians In Capital

Jogjakarta, Java., June 29 (AP). The little army of the Indonesian Republic peacefully took over this capital city from Dutch forces today and ran up its red-and-white flag.

The last of the Netherlands army pulled out and encamped in the town of Medari, 8 miles from here. They will push on to Magelang Thursday, leaving the Jogjakarta residency to the Republic. The residency comprises territory within 20 miles radius of the city.

The dusty streets were practically deserted as the army, which gave over to the Dutch "police action" six months ago, marched back in irregular columns. Most of the one million citizens disappeared into their homes as the occupation progressed.

The return of Jogjakarta to the Republic was arranged through conferences between Republicans and Dutch representatives under the auspices of the United Nations Commission on Indonesia.

The Dutch agreed to the return of the capital, under a guarantee that Indonesian guerilla fighting will stop. A round table conference at The Hague will discuss the future status of the Netherlands East Indies, which the Dutch propose to transform into a United States of Indonesia under the Dutch crown.

Reds Delay Talks On Austrian Pact

London, June 29 (AP).—The deputy foreign ministers, agreeing to a request by Russia, delayed for a day the four-power talks on an Austrian independence treaty. Originally the negotiations had been scheduled to begin Thursday.

The talks here are designed to produce a draft Austrian treaty by September. The Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference apparently settled the major differences between Russia and the West over an Austrian pact.

Russia's call for a delay in the deputies' talks was said to be due to the fact that Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin has not yet returned from Moscow. Zarubin, the Soviet deputy on Austria, went to Moscow last week from Paris for a policy briefing.

WHAT PRICE FREEDOM?

by ROBERT M. HUTCHINS
Chancellor of Chicago University
—at the 237th convocation—

We hear on every side that the American Way of Life is in danger. I think it is. I also think that many of those who talk the loudest about the dangers to the American Way of Life have no idea what it is and consequently no idea what the dangers are that it is in.

You would suppose, to listen to these people, that the American Way of Life consisted in unanimous tribal self-adoration. Down with criticism; down with protests; down with unpopular opinions; down with independent thought. Yet the history and tradition of our country make it perfectly plain that the essence of the American Way of Life is its hospitality to criticism, protest, unpopular opinions, and independent thought. A few dates like 1620, 1776, and 1848 are enough to remind us of the motives and attitudes of our ancestors. The great American virtue was courage.

We ought to be afraid of some things. We ought to be afraid of being stupid and unjust. We are told that we must be afraid of Russia, yet we are busily engaged in adopting the most stupid and unjust of the ideas prevalent in Russia, and are doing so in the name of Americanism. The worst Russian ideas are the police state, the abolition of freedom of speech, thought, and association, and the notion that the individual exists for the state. These ideas are the basis of the cleavage between East and West.

Yet every day in this country men and women are being deprived of their livelihood, or at least their reputation, by unsubstantiated charges. These charges are then treated as facts in further charges against their relatives or associates. We do not throw people into jail because they are alleged to differ with the official dogma. We throw them out of work and do our best to create the impression that they are subversive and hence dangerous, not only to the state, but also to everybody who comes near them.

The result is that every public servant must try to remember every tea party his wife has gone to in the past ten years and endeavor to recall what representatives of which foreign powers she may have met on these occasions. A professor cannot take a position on any public question without looking into the background of everybody who may be taking the same position on the same question. If he finds that any person who is taking the same position on this question has been charged with taking an unpopular position on another question, the professor had better not take any position on this question, or he may be haled before some committee to explain himself.

Is this the American Way of Life? The great American word is freedom, and in particular, freedom of thought, speech and assembly. Asserting the dignity of man, and of every man, America has proclaimed and protected the freedom to differ. Each man is supposed to think for himself. The sum of the thoughts of all is the wisdom of the community. Difference, disagreement, discussion decided by democratic processes are required to bring out the best in the citizens. America has grown strong on criticism. It would be quite as consistent with the American Way of Life to offer prizes for the most penetrating criticism of our country as it would be to offer prizes to those who have done the best job of advertising it.

The heart of Americanism is independent thought. The cloak-and-stiletto work that is now going on will not merely mean that many persons will suffer for acts that they did not commit, or for acts that were legal when committed, or for no acts at all. Far worse is the end result, which will be that critics, even of the mildest sort, will be frightened into silence. Stupidity and injustice will go unchallenged because no one will dare to speak against them.

To persecute people into conformity by the non-legal methods popular today is little better than doing it by purges and pogroms. The dreadful unanimity of tribal self-adoration was characteristic of the Nazi state. It is sedulously fostered in Russia. It is to the last degree un-American.

American education has not been constructed on such un-American principles. In general, the practice has been to give the student the facts, to try to help him learn to think, and to urge him to reach his own conclusions. It is not surprising that the heart of American education is the same as that of Americanism: it is independent thought. American education has not tried to produce indoctrinated automatons, but individuals who can think, and who will think always for themselves. The basic principle of American government, and one that accounts for the importance of education in this country, is that if the citizens learn to think and if they will think for themselves, the Republic is secure. The basic principle of the Russian dictatorship is that the people cannot think or cannot be trusted to think for themselves.

The American doctrine rests on the proposition that it is the individual in himself that counts. It is not who his father was, or how much money he has, or what his color or creed is, or what party he belongs to, or who his friends are, but who and what is he? So the test of a teacher is whether he is competent. The professional competence of a teacher is hardly a question on which lay bodies, or even administrators or trustees, would wish to pass without the advice of persons professionally competent in the teacher's field.

If we apply any other test than competence in determining the qualifications of teachers we shall find that pressures and prejudice will determine them. In 1928 it was said that Al Smith could not be President because he would be subservient to a foreign power; and today in many places, and if not today it may happen tomorrow, anti-Catholic or anti-Jewish campaigns may mean that teachers who belong to those churches will not be able to practice their profession.

Teachers may be expected to obey the law of the land. But it is still permissible, I hope, to ask whether a law is wise. To discriminate against teachers —to act as though they were all disloyal —and to put them under special legal disabilities seems injudicious if we want able, independent men to go into the teaching profession.

The assumption appears to be that American education is full of Reds, an assumption that is the precise reverse of the truth. All the excitement of the last few years, all the hearings, investigations, and publicity releases, have not turned up more than four or five Communist professors, even though membership in the Party has been perfectly legal up to now. To require oaths of loyalty from all because of the eccentricity of an infinitesimal minority is an unnecessary and derogatory act. And of course it will not effect any useful purpose; for teachers who are disloyal will certainly be dishonest; they will not shrink from a little perjury.

The way to fight ideas is to show that you have better ideas. No idea is any good unless it is good in a crisis. You demonstrate the failure of your ideas if, when the crisis comes, you abandon them or lose faith in them or get confused about them to the point of forgetting what they are. The American idea is freedom. Freedom necessarily implies that the status quo may come under the criticism of those who think it can be improved. The American idea is that the state exists for its citizens and that change in society must occur to meet their developing needs. The whole theory of our form of government is a theory of peaceful change. Many of the changes that Marx and Engels demand in the Communist Manifesto have taken place in this country, and they have taken place without communism, without dictatorship, and without revolution, thus disproving, incidentally, one of the central theses of Marx and Engels, that such things cannot be accomplished without communism, dictatorship, and revolution.

These reflections on the Communist Manifesto lead me to say that labeling some thing or some man communist because communists happen to favor it or agree with him, that easy process by which one disposes of different views by applying a dirty name to them, involves the negation of thought of any kind. If it had been applied consistently in American history it would have deprived us of some ideas and some men that we are proud to think characteristically American. For example, the Communist Manifesto demands free education for all. Are we therefore to recant, and renounce the American doctrine of free education for all?

And what would the F.B.I. say of Thomas Jefferson, who calmly remarked in his First Inaugural, "If there be any among us who wish to dissolve this union, or change its republican form, let them stand undisturbed, as monuments of the safety with which error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it."?

Jefferson was not in favor of revolution; he was serene in the face of talk of it because he had confidence in our people, in our institutions, in democracy, and in the value, power, and results of independent thought.

We are now in the midst of a cold war. We must protect ourselves against external enemies, their representatives in this country, and any citizens who may be conspiring to overthrow or betray the government. But the statute books are already filled with laws directed to these ends. It has never been shown that there are so many spies or traitors in this country, or that the external danger is so great and imminent that we have to divert the entire attention of our people into one great repressive preoccupation, into one great counter-revolution in which the freedoms of our citizens must be thrown overboard as too burdensome for the floundering ship of state to carry.

It is useful to remember that Jefferson spoke in 1801, when our Constitution was twelve years old, and when the infant republic was in dreadful danger from deep divisions within and from the wars that were raging between the great powers. If he was right in speaking in such a way at such a time, we cannot be far wrong if now, when America is the most powerful nation on earth, we seek to recapture some of his sanity and courage.

How is the educated man to show the fruits of his education in times like these? He must do it by showing that he can and will think for himself. He must keep his head, and use it. He must never push other people around, nor acquiesce when he sees it done. He must struggle to retain the perspective and the sense of proportion that his studies have given him and decline to be carried away by waves of hysteria. He must be prepared to pay the penalty of unpopularity. He must hold fast to his faith in freedom. He must insist that freedom is the chief glory of mankind and that to repress it is in effect to repress the human spirit.

Spaak Seeks to End ECA Differences

Paris, June 29 (AP). — Belgian Delegate Paul Henri Spaak tonight offered an eleventh-hour compromise between British and American views on how Europeans can help themselves under the Marshall Plan.

Officials and cabinet ministers who heard the detailed plan said they were encouraged. A decision probably will be made Thursday when the 19-member Organization for European Economic Cooperation meets again.

At stake was the "Little Marshall Plan," formally known as the intra-European payments scheme, which expires Thursday midnight. Something must be devised to replace it.

For Matching Grants

Under this plan American funds were used to match grants by European countries in their own currencies to hard-up neighbors. By the plan these countries created about 810 million dollars of extra business for themselves last year because the recipients could use the grants of European currency to square accounts in intra-European trade without scraping up scarce dollars.

Spaak, long known as an expert compromiser, is trying to stimulate trade competition in Europe. At the same time he is willing to agree that Britain should not lose any of her scarce gold or dollar resources in the process.

When the time came for renewal of the payments plan, the criticism was heard that it encouraged only bilateral trade—barter. Greece, receiving a credit from Italy, could spend it only in Italy. She couldn't spend it in Belgium.

France and Belgium, especially, proposed that such credits be made convertible into dollars. This would encourage multi-lateral trade and freer competition. A country could use dollars to buy anywhere it could get the goods at the cheapest price.

Held No Incentive

Under the old plan a country extending credit had no incentive to cut production costs or speed up delivery since the debtor country had to spend the money there anyway.

The United States is for multilateral competitive trade.

Britain, however, would have none of the new scheme. She said it would draw heavily on her already draining gold and dollar resources, threatening the stability of the pound in all countries based on sterling.

Ministers at the meeting today said Spaak's compromise ruled out convertibility of these credits into dollars.

At the same time it proposed that the credits be transferable within the European area. A country holding such a credit thus could use it to buy anywhere in Europe.

A third point in Spaak's compromise was that a means be found to limit the risk of gold loss feared by Britain.

As chairman of the council, Spaak appointed representatives of France, Britain, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland, The Netherlands and the U. S. to probe the idea tonight and Thursday. Their report will go to another council meeting Thursday.

Art for art's sake

American producers care more for the "almighty dollar" than their European counterparts who are wholeheartedly in favor of art for art's sake.

That is the opinion of Miss Elisabeth Bergner, noted Austrian actress now appearing here at the Meridian Hill Park Theater in "Amphitryon 38."

But, amended Miss Bergner, the American theater at last is emerging from that unhealthy state and, she said, the public is becoming educated to the finer things of life, and is now mature enough to enjoy a play (like "Death of a Salesman") that does not have the traditional happy ending.

'Unpleasant Experiences'

The red-haired, vibrant 5-foot 3-inch actress made her observations during a press conference in her suite at the Hotel 2400 yesterday afternoon.

"The Americans," she said, "haven't had much of a theater, but more of a 'show business'," she said. "They even refer to the theater as 'show business'."

Has she any desire to make more movies? (She had made one Hollywood film several years ago—"Paris Calling.")

"None at all," crossing one slim slack-clad leg over the other.

"Why not?"

"Don't ask me that. I like to forget unpleasant experiences."

"What roles in the theater have you enjoyed playing most?"

"It all depends . . . there were different periods . . . I enjoy playing in Amphitryon . . ."

"Which role did you dislike most?"

"I've never had to play a role which I disliked," she said simply.

TV of No Interest

"How about television?"

"It does not interest me in its present state. But it will grow up. I believe it has the germ of something great."

Miss Bergner admitted she had appeared in one play on TV, but she could not recall the name.

"I remember it had something to do with my running through the woods and someone running after me. It was several months ago."

Throughout the interview, Miss Bergner, tensely clenching her tiny fists, interjected the idea that newsmen and others should continue to harp on the importance of restoring the legitimate theater to Washington.

British Face Deeper Crisis

year. The position today is not good."

As he spoke crucial talks were going on, or being scheduled, between the highest financial and economic chiefs in the councils of the Western world.

The "cabinet" of the 19-nation OEEC (Organization for European Economic Cooperation) met in Paris for a debate on the immediate future of western Europe's financial and trading policies.

Britain's Ambassador to the United States, Sir Oliver Franks, was told to speed a scheduled trip home for talks with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Cripps on the economic situation.

The American Secretary of the Treasury, John W. Snyder, is expected next week to confer both with Cripps and Prime Minister Attlee on Britain's monetary plight.

[Secretary of State Acheson said in Washington yesterday he was hopeful of a solution of the British payments problem, and added that the combined statesmanship of the Western powers ought to be able to work it out.—Editor's note.]

The British government called upon seven Commonwealth governments and Southern Rhodesia to send finance ministers to London by mid-July to study the situation brought about by the diving dollar resources of the whole sterling area.

At home another crisis—an industrial one with grave economic implications—loomed before Attlee and his colleagues. The nearly 500,000 strong National Union of Railwaymen announced it will begin a slowdown policy on the country's railroad system Monday until its claim for a $2 wage increase for 150,000 lower-grade workers is met.

Nationalist Fliers Bomb Teeming Shanghai Tenements

Shanghai, June 29 (AP).—Chinese Nationalist heavy bombers made their first raid on Shanghai today. First reports were that two Chinese were killed and possibly 100 injured in the populous Chapei district.

Authorities roped off the area and would allow no one to enter. Associated Press Correspondent Seymour Topping said bombs smashed a path across the district and casualties undoubtedly would be heavy.

[The United Press said rescue workers estimated more than 200 civilians were killed and 400 wounded.—Editor's note.]

At least two four-engine Liberators flew in low and leisurely. They ignored machine-gun fire from the ground and dropped sticks of bombs in the crowded district of tenements and factories.

They seemed to be aiming at the railroad yards around Shanghai's North Station. Is so, their aim was poor. The bombs fell to the northeast into the tenement district.

Police and soldiers dug victims out of wrecked buildings and houses. Hospitals reported they knew of two dead and many were seriously injured.

Some reports said as many as six planes took part. No observers were found, however, who saw more than two planes in the sky at once.

(Meanwhile, a press dispatch to Hongkong said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had arrived at Canton, refugee government capital in south China. He came by plane from Formosa.)

U. S. Soon to Publish Wedemeyer Report

The long-suppressed Wedemeyer report probably will be made public as part of the State Department's forthcoming White Paper on China, Secretary Acheson said yesterday.

Opponents of the Administration's policies in China have long demaned publication of the report, submitted by Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer after a special mission to China. Both President Truman and Secretary Marshall withheld it last year on the ground that publicaton would not be in the natonal interest.

The White Paper is expected to be a documentary record of American dealings with China over the past several years. Acheson declined to say yesterday when the compilation would be published.

At his press conference yesterday the Secretary repeated that the State Department and other Western powers were not activeiy considering de facto recognition of the Chinese Communist regime. His statement was promptly challenged by Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), who accsued the Secretary of spreading "inaccurate and misleading information."

Knowland told the Senate he was ready to "state on my own responsibility as a United States Senator that discussions have been going on in the State Department for a considerable period of time" looking toward American recognition of the Communist regime.

Acheson also made public yesterday the text of a note to the Chinese Nationalist government, objecting to the announcement of June 20 that certain Communist-controlled ports were "temporarily closed" to foreign shipping.

"Despite the friendliest feeling toward the Chinese government," the note declared, "the United States Government cannot admit the legality of any action" in declaring ports and waters closed unless the Nationalists "declare and maintain an effective blockade of them."

"In taking this position, the United States Government has been guided by numerous precedents in international law," the note went on, "and has noted that the ports referred to are not under the actual control of the Chinese government."

Acheson added, however, that United States Government ships would not attempt to run the so-called blockade of Communist-held waters in China.

Irish Reported Urging 'Point Four' Parley

Paris, June 29 (NYHT).—A proposal for implementing President Truman's "Point Four," involving investment in underdeveloped areas of the world, has been made by Foreign Minister Sean MacBride to Eire to W. Averell Harriman, ambassador at large for the Marshall Plan, and will be presented to the 19-nation council of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, it was learned today from Irish sources.

An ambitious investment program, in which the United States Government and private American capital would participate, is the only way of bridging the "dollar gap" that is plaguing Europe, in the Irish view.

The British idea that the gap must be closed by expanding exports to the United States and at the same time reducing imports is unrealistic, the Irish say. They add that this is proved by the difficulties European countries are currently facing in selling goods in an American buyers' market.

Eire will propose that a conference be called of the United States, a number of the European countries, and such producing nations as Australia, New Zealand and Canada. This conference would consider ways of utilizing surplus production in both the United States and Europe for development of backward areas.

Such an investment program would encourage multilateral trade, the Irish believe.

New Handicapped Offices

Jennings Randolph, chairman of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, will open new offices of the federation at noon today in the National Press Building, 14th and F sts. nw. An "open house" will be held at the offices following the opening.

French Air Construction Authorized

Paris, June 29 (NYHT).—The National Assembly authorized the French government today to draw up a five-year construction program of fighter, light bomber and training planes. The authorization was a part of Premier Henri Queuille's program to reorganize the deficit-laden, nationalized aircraft industries.

In the process of the Assembly debate the government lost a decision on one phase of its project. A 308-to-292 vote denied Paul Ramadier, Minister of National Defense, the right to liquidate unprofitable holdings on 15 days notice.

There was no vote of confidence, so the government's existence was not at stake. The defeat on the single issue was not vital to the intention to sell government properties already reconverted to the manufacture of nonaviation commodities. These reconverted properties now must be held until the five-year program is drafted.

Former CIO Official Seized on U. S. Warrant

Buffalo, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—Charles A. Doyle, former international vice president of the CIO United Chemical Workers, was seized last night on a warrant charging illegal entry into the United States.

The Government has sought for more than a year to deport Doyle to his native Scotland as an alien with alleged Communist connections. He was denied reentry to this country at Niagara Falls in January, 1948, when returning from a labor meeting at Windsor, Ontario.

Beulah Overell Set To Marry Policeman

Los Angeles, June 29 (U.P.).—Beulah Louise Overell, 20, tried and acquitted two years ago with a boy friend on charges of slaying her parents, obtained a license today to marry Policeman Robert Cannon. The couple said they would be married sometime this week.

Alabama Beatings Described on Hill

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A Birmingham newspaper reporter said here yesterday that indictments would be returned "in a few days or hours" in cases of terrorism by hooded nightriders in Jefferson County, Ala.

Clancy Lake, city hall reporter for the Birmingham News, asked a House Judiciary Subcommittee not to press him for detailed information for fear of jeopardizing successful prosecution.

He said four Alabama State policemen had been working on the cases two weeks "day and night with hardly any sleep," and were ready to go before the grand jury.

"I can guarantee," he told the subcommittee, "there will be a batch of indictments for the Jefferson County incidents."

Jefferson County includes Birmingham. Other incidents occurred, he said, in adjoining Walker County, where State investigators will move in after finishing in Jefferson.

Editor Tells of Threats

Another newsman, the youthful editor of the weekly Jasper (Ala.) Union News, Paul Trawik, described his fight by editorial and radio with the nightriders, and recounted threats he had received as a result. So far, he said, he has not been physically molested, in contrast with still a third newsman who testified to an attack upon him by two men in the small town of Sumiton, Ala.

Trawick appealed to the subcommittee to give the people of his State an opportunity to solve their own difficulties before enacting Federal restraints. He was asked for his recommendations on pending civil rights and antilynching legislation and said he had none, but did have some opinions.

'Give Us Chance'

"I'd like to ask you," he said, "to give us a chance to settle this at home. I think we can do it.

"I believe all our people are opposed to these violations except that infinitesimal minority which is committing them."

Twice the committee was addressed from the audience by Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro Council. Brown rose first to declare that white poeple of Alabama were not concerned with mob violence until their own race was involved. The second time he denied the people of Alabama would put down violence if left to themselves, and demanded that Alabama Negroes be called as witnesses.

Lake and Trawick, together with Clarke Stallworth, jr., a Birmingham Post reporter, gave the committee vivid and dramatic accounts of wild night forays by hooded men. Lake told of one occasion on which the nightriders were thrice led in prayer for their victims in a clearing deep in the woods of Walker County.

Lake said the victims told him a mother, her teen-age daughter and two men were flogged with a heavy "mining belt" while another daughter and a third man looked on. The nightriders, Lake said he was told, prayed fervently for their victims' "souls" before the four were beaten, once midway through the "ceremony," and after it was over.

Stallworth related how he had gone to the small mining town of Dora, Ala., to interview the victims of the same attack for his paper and talked also with Mrs. Fred Hoaglund, a taxi driver. Mrs. Hoaglund, he said, told him a cross had been burned before her home, but she thought it was the work of competitors in the taxi business. He said the woman told him:

'We're proud of the klan. It is the only law we have in Walker County."

All three witnesses agreed that, except in one case of a threat and one in which a restaurant proprietor was warned, race or religious issues were not involved in the outbreak of violence which began June 1.

Attack on Newsman

Stallworth described to a deathly still hearing room how he was attacked by two men, both above 200 pounds, after being told one of them had information for him. He went into a service station at Sumiton, he said, and approached a man sitting at a desk, whom he identified as Roscoe Fowler. Fowler asked him what he wanted and Stallworth explained he was seeking information about Klan or any other violence.

"He said, 'Call me a Klan, will you, you——,' and struck me in the face with his fist."

While Subcommittee Chairman Byrne (D., N. Y.) clucked sympathetically, the reporter described how he wrestled with Fowler until another man, Glenn Godfrey, approached with "what looked like a wrench."

Fowler then pinned his arms, Stallworth said, and told Godfrey: "Let him have it." He managed to overturn a counter, Stallworth said, and ran out of the front door, followed by a wrench or hammer thrown by Godfrey.

The reporter said he obtained warrants for the two men charging assault and assault with a weapon, and both were arrested. They are now under $300 bond each, he stated.

Lake and Trawick praised highly the work of State law enforcement officers. Trawick, in answer to a question, said the work of the Walker County sheriff's office wasn't as "satisfactory," but attributed that condition partly to lack of competent assistance.

Byrne adjourned the hearing indefinitely after the three witnesses testified.

Birmingham, Ala., June 29 (AP). A grand jury will begin an inquiry Friday into mob violence by robed and hooded bands in this area.

The jury was called for the special session today by Judge J. Russell McElroy at the request of Solicitor Emmett Perry, Circuit Prosecutor.

Story Incoherent

Lie Test Set For Escort in Girl Slaying

Chicago, June 29 (U.P.).—A wild-eyed man who told police that two men seared his throat with a mystery potion and killed his 17-year-old sweetheart will be given a lie detector test, authorities said tonight.

Joan

Arthur Marino, 27, burst into the police station in suburban Riverdale early today and motioned the desk sergeant to his car parked outside.

In the back seat police found the brutally beaten body of pretty Joan Coward, a high school senior.

Sergt. Walter Rusin, an investigator for the State's attorney, said Marino's story was "incoherent and incomplete." He said Marino was "reluctant to agree to a lie detector test."

Marino ran into the police station early today clad only in shoes and a shirt wrapped around his waist. His throat was burned so badly he could not talk, but in scribbled notes he said that he and the girl were attacked by two men in a lover's lane.

He said the men forced him to "drink something that burned."

Three Boys Arrested Robbing Grocery Store for 30th Time

Three teen-age youths who police said admitted breaking into one grocery store 30 times in about two months were caught early yesterday by Montgomery County police, who were waiting for them.

Asked by Owner Arrel U. Godfrey, of Godfrey's Drive-In Market, Wheaton, to maintain an all-night vigil, Detectives Stanley Harding and Charles Pearson obliged.

About five minutes after they arrived the second night, police said, one of the three youths dropped through a skylight a few feet from them. The other two were detained in quick succession.

Police said the trio, aged 14, 15 and 16, admitted breaking in every other night to steal small amounts of cash. All three were turned over to county juvenile authorities.

The 14-year-old, who lives in Glenmont, served three years in Loch Raven Training School, near Baltimore, for staging 10 housebreakings in two days when he was 11, police said. The other two boys are from Wheaton, Md., they reported.

Crosses Burned On Roads Leading To Suffolk, Va.

Suffolk, Va., June 29 (AP).—Crosses were burned last night on each of the four roads leading into Suffolk.

About 5 feet high, with 3-foot cross beams, the crosses stood on Christmas tree light stands. The crosses were wrapped in kerosene-soaked burlap.

Sheriff J. Frank Culpepper said he was out of town last night and had not completed his investigation. Eyewitnesses said no ceremony attended the cross burnings.

Jury Clears 24 Policemen

Norfolk, Va., June 29 (AP).—Twenty-four policemen were acquitted today of charges of taking bribes to protect the numbers racket.

A Corporation Court jury that spent three days hearing the case deliberated less than an hour before returning its verdict.

So ended another chapter of the story that began December 2 with a police raid on a numbers joint. The raid yielded lists bearing names of more than 100 policemen.

A special grand jury indicted Carvel Benson, often arrested on a charge of bribing policemen. A subsequent regular grand jury indicted the 24 patrolmen on charges of taking bribes.

Benson was convicted at his third trial—the first two ended in hung juries—and was sentenced to three years in prison.

The Commonwealth's chief witness in the Benson trials, and in the trial of the patrolmen, was C. A. Withrow, former patrolman. He testified that as a go-between he accepetd $240 from Benson and distributed it to the 24 policemen.

Attorneys for the patrolmen based their defense chiefly on attacks against Withrow's character and credibility. They also sent to the stand a long parade of character witnesses for the defendants.

Judges For The District

We have a good deal of sympathy with the thought behind Senator McCarran's amendment to the bill creating additional District and Circuit Court judgeships. As adopted over Senator McGrath's strenuous objections on Monday, the Senate version of the bill specifies that of the 15 judges now to be provided for the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, at least three shall have been in private practice for three consecutive years just prior to their appointment and two of them for five years in the District.

Our sympathy does not extend, however, to the means used to accomplish a worthy end. The McCarran amendment may well be an unconstitutional limitation on the President's appointive power. And, as Senator McGrath declared, it is "bad law, bad practice, and bad precedent." The bill contains no such restrictions on appointments to the Circuit and District Courts elsewhere in the country.

The trouble is that a very real problem exists in the District Court here. Of the 12 present judges, only 2 were practicing lawyers at the time of their appointment. Two were members of Congress; one was a legal assistant to the President and seven were Justice Department attorneys. The clear trend in recent years has been to use the District Court bench as a haven of reward for service by Government attorneys.

By this we do not mean to say that Government attorneys may not make excellent judges. By and large they do. But the practice of choosing almost solely from among them is as dubious on grounds of wisdom as Senator McCarran's corrective is on grounds of constitutionality. The proper method of handling the situation is available without legislative restriction. The President should exercise a wider scope of selection in making his appointments.

Mr. Taft's Victory

Senator Taft's striking victory on the injunction issue was not due to any inclination on the part of the Senate to follow his leadership. On the contrary, there seems to be a strong desire in Congress to get away from a labor law that bears the Taft name. The Ohio Senator's amendment prevailed only because of the paucity of the arguments against it and the weakness of the substitutes offered.

Majority Leader Lucas came within an ace of striking out the injunctive powers from the Taft amendment. But his proposal was so self-contradictory that it commanded no enthusiasm. While inveighing against use of the injunctive power in any kind of labor dispute, Senator Lucas contended that if Congress would only give the President the right to seize plants of employers when a strike imperils the national health and safety the injunction could be used against unions without any legislative sanction. The soundness of that argument is open to question on two counts. In the John L. Lewis case the Supreme Court sanctioned use of the injunction to restrain a strike because, under the War Labor Disputes Act, the miners had negotiated an agreement with Secretary Krug and were actually employes of the Government. Should the Government take over a plant for 60 days to avert disaster while the employer and union attempt to settle their differences, it could scarcely be said that the workers would be employes of the Government in any real sense. Use of the injunction without specific legislation would therefore be of doubtful legality. No less potent is the argument that if the injunction could be used without legislative sanction and without statutory limitations, it would be open to the gravest sort of abuse.

Once this illogical appeal for a camouflaged injunction was rejected, there was no place for the Senate to go except into Mr. Taft's arms. A majority of the Senate and, we suspect, a large majority of the people insist that the Government retain some means of protecting the public interest against industrial tie-ups which threaten health or safety. Use of the injunction for this purpose is distasteful. So is the seizure of plants, as Senators Holland and Schoeppel pointed out. But this double-barreled weapon is the only one that has been devised to date by which the President can deal equitably with management and labor in national emergency strikes and at the same time save our highly integrated economy from disaster. It is not an antilabor measure; it is simply a for-the-people measure.

Whether the anti-Administration coalition now in control can produce a satisfactory labor bill to supplant the Taft-Hartley Act is another question. We think it should continue to try. While politics is never quiescent on Capitol Hill, legislation is less likely to be colored by partisanship in the year after an election than in the year of an election. If, however, the Senate decides to recommit the bill to the Senate Labor Committee, it will at least be on notice that it cannot revert to any one-sided legislation of the past but must produce a measure that will protect the public interest as well as facilitate the adjustment of disputes between labor and management.

Military Savings

Senator Flanders has tackled the vexing dilemma of how to balance military security with the needs of the civilian economy in a time of declining revenues. The Vermont Senator believes that a cut of three billion dollars could be made from the budget and contractual authorizations for 1950 without harming security and with considerable benefit to the economy. He would do this by holding the Air Force to the 48 groups requested by the President, by cutting the over-all strength of the armed forces from a projected 1,600,000 to 1,300,000 and by enacting the Tydings bill to augment the powers of the Secretary of Defense.

It ought to be recognized at the outset that there are no positive criteria by which to judge what constitutes an adequate military establishment. Absolute security is unattainable; and relative security always involves a calculated risk. Senator Flanders proceeds on the assumption that more of a risk is warranted, and some of what he says makes good sense. Where he runs into trouble is in singling out specific items for economies.

He speaks, for example, of the folly of becoming overloaded with obsolescent aircraft—with which we agree—and he advocates emphasis on developing prototypes. But an Air Force that is to mean anything as an instrument of retaliation must have a striking force in being. As long as five years may be required between prototype development and quantity production. Moreover, the number of military purchases is still far below the level adjudged essential by the various air policy studies to keep a healthy aircraft industry ready for expansion. This is not to say that economies could not be achieved in the aircraft program by eliminating duplication of function between the services, or that the emphasis on particular types has been proper. It seems to us, for example, that notwithstanding the important role of strategic bombing, it may have been stressed to the detriment of tactical support and transport planes. But irrespective of emphasis, it is apparent that there must be a balance between production and future planning; to rely solely on one is to court disaster.

A reduction in the numbers of military personnel is also something that must be handled with the utmost caution. No one can say how much the accent on American preparedness has contributed to the stiffening of the moral fiber of Europe and the halting of Russian aggression. Pains must be taken to insure that any contemplated reduction does not appear to the world as a relaxation of American determination to resist aggression.

It is the enactment of the Tydings bill that should be stressed. This bill, which is still bottled in the House Armed Services Committee, offers the best hope of genuine economy within the armed forces. For Congress is ill equipped to legislate in terms of specific military programs. If additional cuts are to be made, they ought to be made in over-all terms, with authority for Secretary Johnson and his team to work out the details for the most balanced and effective defense.

D. C. Swimming Pools

Two weeks ago the Recreation Board announced a policy of gradual abandonment of segregation. We applauded this as "a discreet but a statesmanlike compromise," likely to be criticized by both extremes. As specific steps away from segregation, the Recreation Board has placed two interracial playgrounds under the supervision of the Society of Friends and opened public schools and recreation buildings to interracial meetings. Both steps are supported by those elements necessary for orderly community adjustment. They were launched by the local agency in charge of recreation; they were adopted in an atmosphere conducive to general public acceptance; they will be carried out by staffs anxious to make them successful.

Just the opposite seems to us the case in regard to the Interior Department's insistence on immediate nonsegregation of swimming pools under its jurisdiction. The department's representative on the Recreation Board failed to win support of its position in the board. Instead of educational preparation to win public acceptance, the policy appears to the average citizen to have resulted from a disorderly fight between Federal and District government agencies. Instead of having a staff sympathetic to its policy and capable of carrying it out, Interior has no staff at all.

Despite these circumstances, the good sense of the great majority of our white and Negro citizens and the alert work of the Metropolitan and Park Police had kept disorders in the category of minor disturbances until fighting broke out yesterday in Anacostia. We hope that good sense will prevail—despite the provocations of Wallaceites and their counterparts, the bitter-end bigots. But, in view of what happened, the wise course for the time being is to do what Secretary Krug has just done—close the pool.

The community also deserves more thoughtful handling of its affairs at the policy-making level. In the past we have urged the Federal Government to take the lead in lowering segregation barriers, but when it does so it should obviously act in those fields where its responsibility is clear and its facilities adequate. The Interior Department, along with other friends of orderly interracial progress, could properly insist that the Recreation Board honestly pursue its announced policy of making "every possible and realistic effort toward the removal of racial segregation in public recreation in such sequence and at such rate of progression as may be consistent with the public interest, public order and effective administration."

Hawaiian Frenetics

Tempers have flared over the effects of the longshoremen's strike in Hawaii, and one of the worst manifestations of distraction has been a boycott against the Honolulu Star-Bulletin. This boycott, now fortunately waning, has consisted of a campaign by housewives against advertisers to pressure the Star-Bulletin into a more extreme stand on the strike. The Star-Bulletin, published by Republican Congressional Delegate Joseph R. Farrington, has denounced the injury to Hawaii but has not approached the daily blasts of its contemporary, the Advertiser, which has printed a series of front-page editorials against the union addressed "Dear Joe" (presumably Stalin).

Such an assault upon editorial integrity is, of course, bound to fail against a newspaper that has the courage of its convictions. Nevertheless, the very existence of such a campaign illustrates the urgent necessity of ending the blockade that has cut off Hawaii since May 1. An opportunity for settlement before attitudes congeal further is contained in the report of the fact-finding board appointed by Gov. Ingram M. Stainback, which Tuesday recommended a 14-cent hourly wage boost.

The people of Hawaii have been the innocent victims of the struggle between the so-called "Big Five" industries and the International Longshoremen's Union, and it is the welfare of 540,000 persons that today ought to be the main concern. Irrespective of any responsibility of the employers for forcing the strike, it is the strike itself which now jeopardizes Hawaii. The charges of Communist leadership in the ILWU and of efforts on the part of the "Big Five" to break the union—true as they may be—are secondary to the problem of obtaining an immediate accommodation to relieve the Hawaiian economy. The ILWU announced in advance that it would be bound by the fact-finding report if the employers would also; the employers refused. This is no time for recalcitrance on either side. A determination by both parties to accept this basis for settlement in the larger interest of the people they both serve would make more extreme emergency measures unnecessary.

Senator Wagner Resigns

For more than two years, illness has kept Senator Wagner away from Washington. That is much too long a time for any State to be deprived of its full representation in the Senate, and we think that the friends who advised Mr. Wagner to retain his seat in the hope of achieving a full recovery gave him poor advice. Fortunately he has at last followed his own wiser counsel and handed in his resignation, refusing to rely longer "on a hope so long deferred."

Senator Wagner's case emphasizes the need of some definite plan for dealing with the problem of absenteeism, such as compulsory retirement after a designated period of nonattendance. A Senator who is forced by illness or incapacity to give up his seat would be spared needless embarrassment—sometimes damage to his reputation—if a rule of this kind were impartially enforced. Certainly the interests of the country at large as well as the States represented would be better served by promptly filling seats made vacant by chronic absenteeism.

Senator Wagner has a long record of achievement behind him, particularly in the field of social legislation. His political opponents as well as his supporters pay tribute to his ability and his capacity for hard work. For that very reason his absence has added to the burden of work thrust on others, making it all the more necessary for a younger and more vigorous man to take over the duties of an office that he filled so ably for many years.

THE DEFEATED

I have stared red-eyed into sunlight—
Hating—
Hating the serenity of the sun people
Who move in calm assurance
Under its golden glare.

I have looked through hot mist
At the sun people.
I have struck out at them
And clawed at nothingness,
Until I am hung like a fly
In the web of my own futility.

I have stared at the sunlight
Until I am blinded by fury,
Until I am mad with negation,
Until I am weakened by hatred
Of the golden ones
Who, all unaware of my anguish,
Walk from me
Clothed in radiant garments
I cannot touch.

Tyler's Marriage

Mr. George Laird's letter of June 27 regarding the second marriage of President John Tyler errs in several incidents. Tyler was not a widower when he entered the White House; his first wife died while he was President. His marriage to Julia Gardiner (not "Gardner") took place in a New York church, and not in the White House. The bride was a daughter of the New York State Senator, not his niece. J. J. PERLING.

The bride of President Tyler's second marriage was Miss Julia Gardiner. Tyler was talking with Miss Gardiner on board the U. S. S. Princeton in February, 1844, when the Navy's biggest gun exploded on the deck. Miss Gardiner's father, David Gardiner; the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Navy, and three other leading friends of Tyler's were killed.

A few months later, President Tyler and Julia Gardiner were married—but not in the White House. The wedding took place on June 26, 1844, in New York City, at the Church of the Ascension. It was a secret wedding. (Dictionary of American Biography, Johnson; Thirty Years in Washington, Mrs. John A. Logan; Our Capitol on the Potomac, Helen Nicolay; The American Past, Roger Butterfield; Virginia Portraits, Gordon.)

"The wedding took place quietly in New York," writes Helen Nicolay, "the President and his son, John, having made the journey from Washington with as little publicity as possible. But the matter could not be kept out of the newspapers. The very fact that the unpopular President desired secrecy was enough to stir all the young reporters in New York to greater vigilance; and the ferryboat Essex, on which the couple made a honeymoon tour of the harbor, was greeted with a pandemonium of whistles and salutes. When the pair returned to Washington, society went to the White House to offer congratulations and found the bride and her elderly husband dispensing liberal champagne and cutting a magnificent cake."

"Germany And ERP"

I have just read in S. L's letter of June 15, "Germany And ERP" certain passages which he would "like to present" as quotations from a letter received from a young German interpreter for the British. I would like to present that it seems utterly silly that any such phrases and modes of expressions came from the mind of any 30-year-old German. The idiom is 100 per cent Americanese, not German, not English.

Could it be that "the German interpreter" could have been influenced by an item in Time magazine of April 11 entitled "America's Answer." Time speaks of ECA as "cranking . . . industries into booming production;" S. L. speaks of ERP as "cranking industries into production;" Time says (quoting a Frenchman) that without Marshall aid people would be "rioting and bashing each other over the head." S. L. says ERP has prevented people from rioting and from bashing each other over the head. It seems the voice of Esau is not the voice of Esau. W. A. C.

Support For Hongkong

So Mr. Bevin has asked Mr. Acheson the sixty-four dollar question, to wit, what armed help will the U. S. A. give to the United Kingdom in the event the Chinese try to retake Hongkong?

Our answer should be an emphatic: "None!"

We are not at all concerned with any attempts to defend crown colonies wrested by force of arms from the Chinese. We hold no brief for the radical or Russian-influenced element in these Chinese forces—but we hold even less respect for the forcing, some years ago, of opium on China resulting in the opium wars and the seizure of Hongkong as a result of those wars. It is one of the blackest pages in the history of the British Empire and, at this late date, it ill behooves us to support that action.

Hongkong should have been returned to the Chinese by the time the U. S. A. surrendered all of its so-called extraterritorial rights in Cathay. We want no American blood spilled to support a follow-up action resulting from the opium wars.

Parents' Petition

Representing the Consolidated Parent Group, I presented a statement to the Washington (D. C.) Board of Education on June 22. In your report of my statement to the board you stated, "Prior to adopting the report the board received a statement signed by 10,000 Negro residents demanding that the board end segregation in the schools."

The petition presented to the board is signed by 10,000 residents of the Nation's Capital, but several hundred of the residents who signed the petition are "white." Although the Consolidated Parent Group believes that segregation in the public schools should end now, at this meeting the group asked for relief by September 15, 1949, from several unjustifiable conditions in the public schools which are seriously retarding the progress of colored children.

The six points listed below were given in my statement, none of which appeared in your account. We asked the board to: (1) Accommodate all children of kindergarten age; (2) make available to all children vacancies in schools nearest them; (3) make available to all children schools designed for their specific age level; (4) make available to Divisions 10-13 space comparable to number of children served; (5) provide for problem children and slow learners in ungraded classes on junior high school level in Divisions 10-13; (6) eliminate overcrowded classes without resorting to double shifts.

Federal Aid To District Schools

We believe one point concerning the Federal aid to education bills now pending action in Congress deserves the attention of every District citizen, as a taxpayer concerned with the schools of his community.

HR 4643, sponsored by Mr. Barden of North Carolina, specifically omits the District of Columbia. Hearings by the Education Subcommittee of the House Committee on Labor and Education have been concluded. A report to the full committee is expected soon; and it is our understanding that no provision for the District appears in HR 4643. Remarks made by Mr. Barden on May 18 during the hearings throw some light on the subject.

To quote Mr. Barden, "If the schools of the District of Columbia are now getting a direct appropriation from the Federal Government, then why should we build up a superstructure on top of that and say we are going to give two appropriations? Why not just incorporate the needs of the District of Columbia into the first appropriation?"

This statement, of course, is based on a misunderstanding of District finances. The schools of the District of Columbia do not receive a direct appropriation from the Federal Government. Congress appropriates the funds necessary for the operation of the government of the District of Columbia, including the schools. The larger part of the funds, however, does not come from the Federal Government, but from local taxes levied in the District. In discussing the contribution of the Federal Government to the District of Columbia, it should be noted that 48 per cent of the lands of the District are tax-exempt; and that the District of Columbia provides many essential services to the Federal Government.

County and municipal governments' services are financed from revenues from local, State and Federal sources. Here in the District the Federal Government acts as our State as well as Federal Government; and by omitting the District from a Federal aid program, it is placing a double burden on the District taxpayer. District citizens pay more Federal taxes than each of 25 States, yet it appears they are to be denied Federal funds for education.

In view of the fact that over a period of years there has been a steady decrease in the amount of the annual contribution made by the Federal Government to the District, it is completely unrealistic to expect an increase. In 1922, the contribution was 50 per cent of the total budget; this year it is only 14 per cent. The District of Columbia participates in the established grants-in-aid programs (such as the welfare ones) on the same basis that a State does. Should these be eliminated in hopes of an increased Federal contribution?

Mr. Barden does not believe further monies would be necessary for he has stated that "I think the appropriations are fairly adequate for the District of Columbia. They have the finest public school teachers and the finest schools I know anything about."

Yes, we may have the "finest public school teachers" but certainly not the finest paid. The "pupil load" in too many instances exceeds the desirable number of pupils per teacher. There is particular disparity here between the Negro and the white school systems.

Overcrowded facilities strained often to the breaking point are evident in some of our schools. Basements, sidewalks, corridors are used for school functions. An estimated 40-million-dollar program is needed to bring our school facilities up to satisfactory standards.

Surely, the District should participate in any program of Federal aid to equalize educational opportunities—just as will the 48 States and the Territories. (S426 passed by the Senate provided for about $580,000 for the District of Columbia.)

Lawmaking In The Rough

By Malvina Lindsay

American Heritage

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Two women sightseers came out of the Lower House of the Legislature here where a rough and tumble debate interspersed with horseplay was on.

"What did you think of it?" asked one.

"It was all right, only—well, they seemed so ordinary."

I thought of my own disillusionment when as a young reporter I had seen at this spot my first Legislature in session. I thought of similar remarks I had heard in Washington from visitors to the House and Senate galleries. Well, it seemed we were still hoping to find demigods making our laws.

The scene in the House here was, to put it mildly, casual. Every desk was heaped with a disorder of newspapers and books. Legislators lounged comfortably in their chairs, read papers, conferred with one another, while an orator at a microphone held his own with interrupting opponents.

Visitors wandered in and out the entrance to the floor, stood around the sides of the chamber, or sat on long black leather couches. Nobody bothered to go to the gallery.

The Senate was more orderly. Desks were clear, the atmosphere quieter. Visitors "looked in" the same way as in the House. Here were the national House and Senate in miniature, only a little more informal, a little more democratic, a little closer to the people.

IN THE Representatives' lounge, sightseers inspected Thomas Hart Benton's realistic murals of Missouri life. The storm of criticism over these that raged for half a dozen years, and that reached a climax when the 1941 Legislature asked that Benton either efface the murals or explain why they should not be removed, has now abated. Occasionally a woman visitor sniffs at a scene showing a mother changing a baby's diaper at a political picnic.

But legislators no longer worry over the frankness with which Benton has depicted Missouri pioneers, farmers, businessmen, politicians. Even a scene showing a bloated, political boss, resembling the late T. J. Pendergast, apparently laying down the law to two tight-lipped Kansas City business sachems, doesn't raise any blood pressure. In fact, there is some talk in Kansas City of running Benton for the Democratic nomination for Senator in 1950.

Down the street at the Cole County Historical Society's headquarters are some of the paintings of George Caleb Bingham, who sat in this Legislature in 1848, and who retired from politics disillusioned to devote his life to putting politicians on canvas. Everyone has now forgotten that Governor Marmaduke challenged Bingham to a duel because he recognized himself as the fat, pompous platform sitter in Bingham's masterpiece, "Stump Speaking."

The stock figure of the politician goes on and on despite the Binghams and the Bentons. In fact, there are charges made that this Legislature has a goodly quota of those who are "log rolling" or yielding to political pressure. Alleged vote trading here even includes the bill to make the Missouri Waltz the State song. Yet defenders of the Legislature insist it has passed much good legislation.

CRUDITIES and inefficiencies of legislative bodies show up more in State versions than in national. Yet human warmth and equality are also more emphasized in them.

As I entered both House and Senate here I felt a lift of pride in the system that makes such bodies possible. Here were assemblages of men who might be anybody's neighbors, sitting, moving, speaking, arguing in a completely relaxed and free manner. Here were the people for whom the laws were being made wandering in and out, listening, watching, saying what they pleased about the process. Here were officials giving the humblest onlooker courtesy, hospitality, friendliness. I thought of the Congress at Washington, where despite the greater formality, much of the same easy, friendly atmosphere prevails.

Then I visioned the 1200 delegates to the Supreme Soviet, sitting in regimented orderliness in their chamber in the Kremlin, listening to set speeches without debate, voting "yes" generally with precision. I saw the uniformed guards standing at the doors and at 6-foot intervals along the walls.

My mind flashed back to the House of Commons, small, crowded, informal, with its rugged debate, its heckling from back benches, its pointed questioning of public leaders. Yes, I decided, a State legislature was a symbol of a great heritage.

Marriage To Foreigners

Commenting on the marriage of noble Princess Cecilie Viktoria Anastasia Zita Thyra Adelheid, granddaughter of Kaiser Wilhelm, to Mr. Clyde Harris of Texas, your editorial of June 24 states that "by virtue of her marriage, she has acquired American citizenship."

In the Naturalization Act of 1922, Congress decreed that foreigners would have to apply for citizenship, even though married to Americans.

Washington Calling

Loans And Influence

ONE OF the most conscientious men in Government in recent years was Wilson Wyatt. As Housing Expediter in the critical months immediately after the war, Wyatt fought hard to get public assistance for home builders.

Childs

He believed that Government should do everything possible to get more dwellings built so that GI's returning from the war would have decent housing. In line with that conviction he backed a corporation setting out to make a new type of steel and enamel prefabricated house.

Wyatt urged that the War Assets Administration lease to the Lustron Corp., which proposed to make the prefab houses, the giant B-29 engine plant at Chicago. The plant had cost the Government 70 million dollars and the machinery in it is worth an estimated 100 million dollars.

Wyatt was overruled. WAA had given the lease to Preston Tucker and the lease was the base of Tucker's fabulous promotion of his rear-engine Tucker Torpedo. Tucker and seven of his associates were recently indicted for fraud.

Although he has never said so publicly, that was one of the reasons Wyatt resigned as Housing Expediter. Short of an all-out attack to get prefabricated houses moving rapidly off an assembly line with the aid of allocations of steel and scarce commodities, Wyatt doubted that such an undertaking could succeed. This was at the time when shrewd promoters were finding loopholes in the housing law so that they could build race tracks and roller coasters.

WYATT resigned to return to private law practice in Louisville, Ky., his home. Not long afterward, in June of 1947, Lustron got a loan of $15,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. WAA had leased to the company a former Curtiss-Wright plant at Columbus, Ohio.

Lustron retained as one of its Washington representatives Herschel Young. Young comes of a Jackson County, Mo., family long close to the family of President Truman.

At the same time Herschel's brother, Merl, was employed as an examiner in the RFC and was passing on Lustron's application for a loan. Merl, who began with the RFC in November, 1945, after service with the Marine Corps, rose rapidly from accountant at $4500 a year to examiner in the loan division at $5130 and finally to a classification paying $7193. Merl was 32 when first employed by the RFC.

In July of last year Lustron got a second loan of 10 million dollars. That same month Merl Young resigned from the RFC to take a position with Lustron at $18,000 a year in charge of their Washington office. He still holds that position.

IN FEBRUARY of this year Lustron got a third loan of seven million dollars. Last week Director Harvey Gunderson of the RFC, testifying before a Senate committee, said the corporation would shortly apply for a fourth loan of three million dollars.

The company, Gunderson said, is making about 15 houses a day and losing about one million dollars a month. The RFC's directors, according to Gunderson, believe that the company, with equipment installed in the last 30 days, can make a profit and get up to 100 to 125 houses a day. Senators got the impression, however, that before this point was reached still another loan beyond the three million dollars would be necessary.

Herschel Young says he was employed briefly by Lustron to help put up a model house in Washington. That may be the fact, yet it would be hard to convince the skeptical observer that "pull" and "connections" did not enter in here.

Merl Young, after he became Lustron's representative, was closely associated with William M. Boyle, jr., in the Democratic campaign of last fall. He also worked as an unpaid assistant to Boyle in Democratic national headquarters before Boyle became the full-time paid executive director of the committee.

The pattern of influence that is evident on the surface of all this is decidedly unhealthy. Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas has put in a bill which would forbid any employe of the RFC who had participated in making a loan to a company to accept a position with that company for five years after the loan was granted. In at least two other recent instances the RFC loan examiner has turned up immediately after the granting of the loan at a much higher salary with the company. Adoption of the Fulbright proposal would be a much-needed step in the right direction.

Hiss' Wife Denies She Ever Typed Documents

The prosecution brought in a New York election register for 1932 showing the designation "Soc" beside her name, and Murphy declared that records of the Socialist Party, Morningside (N. Y.) branch listed her as a member in 1932.

He asked her if she knew that.

"I certainly do not know that," declared the prim, 45-year-old witness, insisting she was never a Socialist Party member.

Her cross-examination is not yet completed, and when she is re-examined later by defense attorneys they are expected to attempt to counter some of these contentions.

Other Developments

Today's trial session was spotlighted by other unusual developments.

Among them was the disclosure that Thursday the prosecution plans to call to the stand John Foster Dulles, prominent Republican foreign policy expert and a trustee of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Dulles presumably will be called to challenge testimony of Alger Hiss, who served as the $20,000-a-year president of that foundation from 1947 until last May.

The defense, it was learned, will try to put on the stand Dr. Carl Binger, a psychiatrist who was present in the courtroom during the seven days that Whittaker Chambers appeared on the witness stand, "observing" Chambers as he testified.

The defense contends that Whittaker Chambers' charges against Hiss are "fantastic," and seeks to have Binger support its claim that Chambers' accusations are a result of emotional instability.

Dr. Binger, a member of the faculty of Cornell University medical school, was in the courtroom today.

Apparently in preparation for his testimony, Stryker gained permission to interrupt the cross-examination of Mrs. Hiss to bring to the stand Edward L. Edstrom, who described himself as a school acquaintance of Chambers. His testimony, some of the strangest yet heard in this unusual trial, went into the record over the repeated objections of Prosecutor Murphy.

Chambers 14 at Time

Edstrom, a Valley Stream, L. I., lawyer, said Chambers was about 14 years old when they first met at Southside high school, Rockville Center, L. I.

Seeking to portray Chambers as a youth given to eccentricities, Edstrom—a hefty man himself—said he was very active in sports while Chambers took no part in athletics.

While the rest of the schoolboys walked home across a railroad trestle over a brook, Edstrom said, amid chuckles from the courtroom spectators, Chambers would "walk through the brook, with his shoes and stockings on."

When he asked Chambers, whom he referred to by his middle name, Vivian, why he did this, Edstrom said with a surprised expression, "He told me it cooled his feet."

Prophecy Displeased

Once, said Edstrom, Chambers who liked to "deride" the teachers, read a class prophecy that was disapproved. Ordered to write another, he said, Chambers did so, but in delivering the prophecy "Vivian read the one that had been disapproved."

He said Chambers could write "somewhat better . . . than the rest of us," and once wrote an essay about a "couple meeting in a cemetery . . . and they caressed . . . at the end it said one went one way and one the other, both wagging their tails."

"That's the first I knew," said Edstrom gravely, that "it was about dogs."

Chambers, he said, was an untidy dresser and frequently in need of a haircut. Stryker started to ask a question about religion and said:

"And knowing you were a Catholic . . ."

"Now there's no testimony that he said he was a Catholic," cut in the protesting Murphy. "I can see this one coming!"

Didn't Believe in Religion

Stryker rephrased the question and Edstrom replied. "He knew I was a Catholic . . . Vivian did not believe in religion."

Chambers, former $30,000-a-year senior editor of Time magazine, has testified under cross-examination that he belonged to no church until after he left the Communist Party in 1938.

Under the same type of questioning intended to show mental disturbance, Chambers admitted once writing erotic poetry and said he was deeply affected by the suicide of a younger brother. Yesterday, Murphy was prevented from questioning Hiss about suicides in his family. According to newspaper reports, both Hiss' father and sister committed suicide.

The defense attack on testimony of both Chambers and Mrs. Chambers today brought detailed denials from Mrs. Hiss on numerous alleged incidents which Mrs. Chambers said involved the two families.

Mrs. Hiss challenged Mrs. Chambers' account of a rug-wetting by the Chambers' daughter in the Hiss home, in which Mrs. Chambers said Mrs. Hiss gave her "a lovely old linen towel" to use as a diaper.

Never Happened, She says

"No, nothing of the kind ever happened," Mrs. Hiss replied firmly in answer to Stryker's questions.

Mrs. Hiss similarly denied that Mrs. Chambers had ever visited the Hiss homes at 1245 30th st., Georgetown, in 1936-37, or 3415 Volta pl., in late 1937. She said she knew the Chambers only by the name "Crosley," as Hiss has testified, and said she "never attended any party at the home of the Crosleys in Baltimore."

Mrs. Chambers has said that the Hisses once came to her home for a wedding anniversary, when Hiss "brought a bottle of champagne."

Mrs. Hiss also challenged Mrs. Chambers' and Chambers' descriptions of her 30th st. and Volta pl. homes, as to the color of the wallpaper, placement of rooms, and exteriors of the houses.

On the stand for the second day, Mrs. Hiss apeared tense but determined under the direct examination of Stryker.

In the cross-examination by Murphy, which began at 11:45, however, she displayed much more nervousness.

As the 6-foot 4-inch Murphy hammered at her with questions which leaped from subject to subject, she frequently grew pale under the attack.

She occasionally pressed her lips together as though she were about to break down. Once her tears seeme dabout to flow, but she straightened up, adjusted the white straw hat which topped her green costume, touched her nose with a white-gloved hand, and braced herself until Judge Kaufman called for a recess.

Hiss, seated about 25 feet from her, watched her closely throughout this period, and when she left the stand and walked out of the courtroom, he handed her a cigarette, saying softly, "We won't talk now."

Throughout the day she spoke in a scarcely audible whisper except on a few occasions.

One of these was when Stryker, referring to Mrs. Chambers' testimony that "Mrs. Hiss, by the way, does not like ice cream," asked.

"By the way, Mrs. Hiss, do you like ice cream."

"Yes, I do like it," she replied with a broad smile.

Chambers charges that in 1938, when Hiss was an assistant to Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre, Chambers came to the Hiss home about every 10 days or two weeks to pick up copies of the secret documents which were typed by Mrs. Hiss.

Most Important Items

These documents are the most important items in the prosecution's case against Hiss, and an FBI agent has testified that 64 of them were made on a typewriter owned by the Hisses.

The agent gave this testimony in comparing them with four "standards of comparison," documents admitedly typed in the Hiss home on an old Woodstock typewriter. The latest of these "standards" is a letter dated May, 1937, and the defense contends the Hisses could not have typed the papers because sometime before 1938 they gave the typewriter to two boys who worked for them.

A typewriter, located by the defense last April and now in evidence, is said by the defense to be the missing Woodstock.

Denies Giving Them to Chambers

Stryker today asked Mrs. Hiss if she ever gave Chambers any of these typed documents, or four handwritten memoranda of State Department information which Hiss admits are in his handwriting.

"I certainly did not," she replied.

Q. "Did you ever agree in the summer of 1937 to make typed copies or summaries of State Department documents for the purpose of transferring them to Mr. Chambers?"

A. "No, Mr. Stryker, I did not.

Q. "Did you husband ever ask you to do this?"

A. "No, Mr. Stryker.

Q. "Did you ever see your husband hand them to him?

A. "No, Mr. Stryker."

Stryker asked her if in December she had not told the grand jury which indicted her husband that she believed the Woodstock typewriter was still in her Volta pl. home in 1938, and was given to the "Salvation Army or the junk man."

Confused With Portable

She said she had, but had it confused with a Corona portable typewriter which she received in 1937, and later disposed of in that manner, in 1943.

When defense attorneys recently turned up the information that the two boys who formerly worked around the Hiss home—Raymond and Perry Catlett—said they received the typewriter when the Hisses moved to Volta pl., she said, she realized her error in testimony.

Stryker, at one point in her testimony, asked if she had ever given Chambers "a key to Volta pl."

"No, I didn't," she replied.

She then testified that sometime in the first seven months of 1938, she lost a pocketbook containing keys to the Hiss home and automobile.

Murphy, in cross-examination, asked, "Did you report it to the police?" She said she did not.

Murphy questioned her at length about her typing ability, the reason she disposed of the Woodstock typewriter, and why she now feels that it was the Woodstock typewriter she gave away before 1938.

"Did you use this (Woodstock) typewriter to type Government exhibits 5 to 47?" he demanded.

"Certainly not," she replied. "I'v already said that, Mr. Murphy. I repeat that I did not type them."

"You would rather not have me ask any more questions about them?" he said, leaning toward her.

"Fair-to-Middling" Typist

Mrs Hiss straightened up in the witness chair. "No, you may ask me as many questions as you wish about them."

Asked if she is a "fair-to-middling, expert, or amateur" typist, she replied, "fair-to-middling—that's the closest."

Murphy pressed her to get an answer to whether she believed it was easier to type on a portable or standard machine, like the Woodstick, but she insisted, "I just don't know."

He asked if she had not told the grand jury in December that she believed a former maid, Mrs. Clytie Catlett, was dead.

Mrs. Catlett, mother of the two Catlett boys, has testified here that she worked for the Hisses at their home at 2905 P st. nw. in 1935-36 and at their later homes on 30th st. and Volta pl.

"When did you think Mrs. Catlett had died?" asked Murphy. Mrs. Hiss replied "some time prior to September, 1937."

"Had you attended the wake?" Murphy asked sarcastically.

Mrs. Hiss explained that sometime before the date she gave she met another one of Mrs. Catlett's children, "Bucky," and "he said, 'we lost our mommy.'"

Thought She Died

He also told her, she said, that 'they didn't know how they'll get along without her."

"To me," said Mrs. Hiss, "it established the fact that she was dead."

Pointing to other conflicts between her grand jury testimony and statements here, Murphy asked when she first met Chambers.

She said she first met him at the Hiss home at 2905 P st., when he came there alone to inquire about an apartment at 2831 28th st. which Hiss sub-let to him for several weeks in 1935.

Murphy confronted her with testimony she gave to the grand jury on December 10, 1948, in which she said she "must have seen him two or three times . . . before he and his wife came to see our apartment."

"Was that statement true when you said it?" he demanded.

"Certainly," she said after some hesitation, "it was my best recollection."

He then showed her grand jury testimony in which she said that in Chambers' visits those first two or three times "he was simply calling upon my husband."

To Murphy's question whether this or the statement that Chambers' visit concerned the apartment is the true one she replied:

"I don't think they're very inconsistent . . . I think my present reclection is more correct."

At another point on the same subject she told the grand jury she thought Chambers "simply dropped in" at the Hiss home, "I think he's a dropper-inner."

Withdrawal Questioned

Earlier, Mrs. Hiss was questioned at length about $400 which she withdrew from a joint savings account in the Riggs National Bank on Nov. 19, 1937.

The prosecution has introduced evidence showing that in that month the Chambers' bought a car in Maryland. Chambers charges, and the Hisses vigorously deny, that he obtained the $400 from them.

Mrs. Hiss today was asked to list what she bought with the $400 and where she made the purchases. She detailed what she described as cash purchases, for chairs, draperies, end tables, a bed and mattress, cocktail glasses, silver candle sticks and other items.

She also said she believed she used some of the money to buy a dress for the "President's reception . . . a diplomatic reception" that December.

Some of the purchases, she said she believed, were probably made at Lansburgh's, the Palais Royal, an "antique shop on Wisconsin avenue" and Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Recalls Background

In recounting details of her background in addition to those she gave yesterday, Mrs. Hiss said in cross-examination that she was born October 30, 1903, married Thayer Hobson, her first husband, on July 25, 1925, and said her first son, Timothy, was born September 19, 1926.

She was divorced from Hobson in Mexico in January, 1929, she said, and married Hiss on December 11, 1929.

In 1924, she continued, she obtained her A.B. degree from Bryn Mawr College, took an advanced English course at Yale, and then received her master's degree at Columbia University in 1929.

Then, she said, she taught for a time at Bryn Mawr, and later worked in a Boston book store. In the winter of 1927-28, she said, she joined Time Magazine (11 years before Chambers worked there) and after working as a checker or research worker, became an assistant to publisher Henry Luce.

From 1931 or 1932, to 1934, she said, "I wrote a book . . . under a grant from the Carnegie Foundation," called "Research in Fine Arts in American Colleges and Universities."

From 1939 until early 1941, she said, she worked for the Library of Congress. At one time, she said, she taught at the Potomac School in Washington, and "I did and do teach at Dalton School" here.

She will resume the witness stand at 10:30 Thursday.

She said she had belonged to tht Bryn Mawr Club of Washington, of which she was president in 1936-37, the Square Dance Clul of Washington, a Washington ice skating club, the Friends of Music, the Washington Chamber Music Society, and no others that she could recall.

Asked if she ever was a member of the National League of Women Shoppers, she said she attended what she believed was a first meeting of the group, but was never a member.

Briton Finds U. S. Well Advanced On Socialism Road

Stillwater, Okla., June 29 (AP).—The Attorney General of Great Britain, Sir Hartley Shawcross, told an audience at Oklahoma A. and M. College here today that America is practicing socialism.

"But," the Attorney General added, "it is a type of Socialist mingled with democratic methods."

Sir Hartley said England has never been self-sustaining in modern times and that her greatest need is the flow of trade between his country and the United States.

"This is the only possible way of readjusting our economy in order to be independent by 1952," he said.

He said Britain came out of World War II 25 per cent poorer since her contribution to the war effort consisted of selling most of her profitable world holdings.

'133-Year-Old Son' Of U. S. President Dies In Florida

Jacksonville, Fla., June 29 (U.P.).—Wizened, old Maj. James Edward Monroe will be buried Thursday and, with him, his claim of being the 133-year-old son of a United States President.

He will be buried in a plot set aside by a friend who relished the Major's tales. Monroe died Tuesday in a nursing home here.

The Major said he was the son of President James Monroe. He was never able to prove his claim, and no one took the trouble to disprove it.

He insisted he fought in the Civil War, the Franco-Prussian War, Boer War and Mexican War.

Mr. Monroe said he was born in Ashland, Va., on July 4, 1815. That would have made him 134 years old Monday. Most people believed him, particularly the kids.

Italy's Colonists Facing Dilemma

Tripoli, June 29 (AP).—The human tragedy of nearly 75,000 Italians in Africa seems to be forgotten as diplomats wrangle over the future of Italy's former colonies.

In lands where once they were masters these Italian men, women and children live with insecurity as a constant companion.

Dynamic Arab nationalism menaces their future.

Not even the Italians seem to know what they want. Here in Tripolitania, where 40,000 live, it is estimated more than half the Italians are afraid of a return of Italian rule.

British and American sources give these reasons:

1. Arab nationalism is stronger than ever before. Local Italians fear they might be massacred by outraged Arabs despite efforts of the British occupation forces.

2. Many young Italians feel all the good jobs would be taken by metropolitan Italians and they would be regarded as colonials fit only for second-class positions if Italian rule returned.

3. Under the peace treaty Italy has only three divisions and no bombers. Many Italians fear there would be no safety for them with Italy so weak militarily.

Many Italians are getting out and going back to Italy.

But others, their roots too deep in Africa to leave, are living in a political limbo.

Fortified Milk Found Life-Supporting

Ithaca, N. Y., June 29 (U.P.).—Life, from birth to old age, can be supported on an exclusive diet of fortified milk, Cornell University Professor C. M. McCay said today.

Experiments just completed with white rats, McCay said, showed the animals could live to ages comparable to 70 and 90 years in human beings with just cow's milk and a few necessary minerals added.

Patagonia Garbage Dump Yields Traces of Ancient Race

Buenos Aires, June 29 (AP).—Scientists digging in a prehistoric garbage dump have found new traces of South America's oldest civilization.

Milciades Alojo Vignati, professor of anthropology at La Plata University Museum, and a group of other scientists discovered the ruins which tell a new story of prehistoric Indian culture.

The discoveries were made in Patagonia, a vast, desolate tableland and mountainous region stretching from the territory of Chubut to Tierra del Fuego, Argentina's southernmost territory.

The lost civilization probably was the forerunner of the tribes which once formed the powerful Patagonian Indian nation whose warriors were known for their extreme height and big feet.

Poking through a pile of mollusk shells which turned out to be an age-old garbage dump, the scientists found broken dishes and other utensils made of stone and bone.

Along the edge of the Charcamac Ravine, the party found seven shelters carved in rock. Their walls were covered with pictographs and paintings depicting life of the Indians and their guanacos—a type of llama used for food, clothing and beast of burden.

Vignati and his companions found one pictograph more than 600 feet long which told a vivid history of primitive life, love and the hunt.

Vignati said the explorers were excited when they found an aged Indian woman able to speak the Teshuen tongue, the language used by the Chehuache-Kenks, one of three tribes which long ago flourished in Patagonia.

With her help, he said, the scientists were able to reconstruct a large part of the Teshuen vocabulary which he had believed lost to modern civilization.

Germany to Get 1000 Students Of Other Lands

Frankfurt, Germany, June 29 (U.P.).—More than 1000 students from 15 Western nations will join with tens of thousands of German youths at West German universities this summer in "Operation Democracy."

The foreign students, all on German invitations, also will bring lecturers and professors to discuss international problems.

Half of the students will come from Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, France and Switzerland and the rest from the United States, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Austria, Spain and Eire. No students from the Iron Curtain countries have been invited.

Expenses will be paid either by the students, or by the German state, business and church officials. The program will include building new homes for some bombed-out families in Hamburg.

5 Ways World May End Are Shown on Artificial Planetarium Sky

New York, June 29 (U.P.).—Five ways in which the world may come to an end were shown tonight in a spectacular demonstration at Hayden Planetarium.

The first "World's End" depicted on an artificial sky, saw a dramatic explosion of the sun, such as happens sometimes to stars.

If such a cosmic catastrophe should occur, Gordon Atwater, curator of the planetarium, said, the earth would be shriveled up in sudden, hot death.

Having once "destroyed" the earth, the Hayden scientists then did it again. This time they depicted a cooling sun, leaving the earth as a bleak, frozen planet with all forms of life gone.

"This cooling of the sun is an almost certain eventuality unless it has some unknown and inexhaustible means of renewing its energy," Atwater said. "But even at its present enormous rate of emitting life-giving heat and energy, the sun is good for many billions of years."

The scientists then destroyed the world by depicting a hit-and-run star crashing into the sun, with the debris knocking out all the planets in the universe.

The fourth "sudden death" demonstration showed a giant comet, with a fiery, flaming tail, crashing into earth.

"A head-on collision between the earth and a comet is possible, but not probable," Atwater said.

Climaxing the demonstration, the moon in the artificial sky was drawn closer and closer to the earth by the earth's gravitation. All romance of the moon was gone. The satellite bore on the earth, causing great tidal waves, volcanoes and flames. Finally, the moon—as depicted—broke up into small moonlets which circled the "dead world."

Johns Hopkins Gets $93,490 In Polio Aid

A grant of $93,490 in March of Dime funds has been awarded to Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, to continue its researches in infantile paralysis, it was announced yesterday.

The award was among the highest in grants totaling two million dollars allocated to more than a score of leading medical research laboratories and institutionss in the Nation.

The money, university officials said, will be used to continue long-time investigatinos under way at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health.

These projects, under the direction of Dr. Kenneth Maxcy, professor of epidemiology, include polio immunity studies and nerve cell metabolism investigations. The immunty investigations are carried out both in the laboratory, with monkeys exposed to polio virus, and in careful case history studies of persons known to have been normally exposed to the human polio virus.

The metabolism investigations, it was explained, delve into characteristic differences in cell structures of nerve cells which resist virus invasion and those which are overcome.

Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said the latest grants bring to more than $2,500,000 the sums allocated for research and education projects this year, or a total of more than $25,600,000 since start of the foundation in 1938.

Night Clinic For Cancer to Open Thursday

A night-time cancer detection clinic, first such facility planned here, will open next Thursday at the Southwest Health Center, it was learned yesterday.

The service, to be available on Thursday evenings only, will be restricted to medically indigent residents unable to schedule daytime appointments.

It will supplement daytime cancer detection service slated to begin operations at the Georgetown Health Center on Wednesday, said Dr. Charlotte Donlan, director of cancer control for the District Health Department.

Both services, she explained, were arranged to continue the District's free cancer detection tests doomed to close July 1 at Gallinger Hospital for lack of nurses. Dr. Donlan said operations of the Health Center clinics were made possible only through the loan of one nurse from the District's Public Health Nursing service.

Though the Gallinger Hospital clinic scheduled patents five days weekly, the new daytime services at the Georgetown Health Center, 3246 P st. nw., will operate only on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, accommodating about ten patents each day. The evening clinic, at the Southwest Health Center, Delaware ave. and I st. sw., will handle but three patents each session.

Dr. Donlan said appointments for the cancer detection tests may be made by telephoning the Cancer Control Bureau, NA. 6000, extenson 2697. By last night, she said, no appointments had been made for the evening service, and daytime tests were being scheduled for about one month ahead.

Teeth Studied At 2 Schools Found Good

The teeth of at least 584 Arlington and Alexandria elementary school youngsters are in "superior" shape, results of a survey made public yesterday reveal.

The children—312 at John Marshall School in Arlington and 272 at Maury School in Alexandria—had their teeth checked last year in a survey made by the U. S. Public Health Service in cooperation with State and local health officials.

In Arlington, only 1.2 per cent of the children checked had permanent teeth missing. At Maury School, the figure was 7.7 per cent.

In Arlington 58.7 per cent of the teeth surveyed were decayed, missing and filled. In Alexandria, the figure was 65.5 per cent.

In some sections of the country, the Public Health Service said, the percentage of youngsters with decayed, missing or filled teeth sometimes runs as high as 90 per cent.

Private Sale Of Gas Light Bonds Sought

Evidence of a tighter corporate bond market was presented yesterday during a hearing by the District Public Utilities Commission on a request by the Washington Gas Light Co. to sell two million dollars worth of bonds.

Robert C. Owers, vice president and treasurer, submitted a study of 23 "A" bond issues sold in the past six months by utility firms. All except two firms had to pay more than 3 per cent interest to sell their issues.

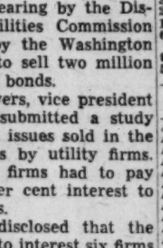
Owers also disclosed that the firm attempted to interest six firms in buying the issue at 3 per cent and were unsuccessful with four who felt the interest was inadequate. The two interested firms were the Aetna Life Insurance Co. and the Bankers Trust Co. of New York City which each agreed to handle half the issue.

The official asked the commission to waive the competitive bidding requirement on the sale in order that the firm may save an estimated $34,500. Owers said a public offering would involve added costs in printing a registration statement, legal and accountancy fees.

The commission's executive accountant and auditor, V. A. McElfresh, said the proposal was "very favorable" for the firm since a public offering would cost more.

The commission took the matter under advisement.

NUCLEAR ENERGY: Dr. Miles C. Leverett, former director of the technical division of the Clinton Laboratories, has been appointed technical director of the nuclear energy project for the propulsion of aircraft of Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corp. at Oak Ridge, Tenn., it was announced yesterday.



Leverett

J. Carlton Ward, jr., Fairchild board chairman, said Dr. Leverett will be directly responsible to Turner A. Sims, general manager and vice president of the Fairchild corporation. Dr. Leverett will direct the technical program under Fairchild's contract with the United States Air Force. Dr. L. R. Hafstad, director of the reactor division of the Atomic Energy Commission, said he was "delighted" ot hear of the appointment.

Pepco Would Acquire Braddock Light Issue

Potomac Electric Power Co. asked the Federal Power Commission yesterday for authority to acquire up to 13 million dollars in 3½ per cent promissory notes from its subsidiary, Braddock Light and Power Co.

Purpose of the loan, the company said, is to enable Braddock to complete construction of a steam generating plant in Alexandria. The Public Utilities Commission of the District and the Virginia Corporation Commission have authorized the loan.

N. J. Standard Oil Plans $150,000,000 Issue

New York, June 29 (AP).—Standard Oil Co. (N. J.) today announced it planned to file with the Securities and Exchange Commission either today or Thursday a new issue of 150 million dollars of debentures.

The securities will bear 2¾ per cent interest and mature in 25 years.

If and when the registration statement becomes effective, the company said, it would sell the securities publicly at a price yet to be determined through a banking group headed by Morgan, Stanley & Co.

New Building Asked For Miner College

A new building for Miner Teachers College and construction of other new schools here were urged last night by citizens at a Board of Education budget hearing.

The meeting at Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw., was called by the board to hear 1950-51 budget requests.

'Dangerous' Overcrowding

The union asked also that funds be sought for additional teachers and classroom space to reduce classloads in Negro high schools to 25 students, that kindergartens be provided for all children and that "immediate relief" be provided for "dangerous" overcrowding at Cardozo School.

Erection of a modern, fully equipped 24-room building on the site of the Lovejoy School, 12th and D sts. ne., was urged by Mrs. Rosina Tucker, president of the Public Interest Civic Association.

Mrs. Tucker said that Lovejoy is one of the oldest schools in the Northeast and that it has no auditorium, although 800 pupils are enrolled there. She cited District regulations as providing that all schools with more than 500 students must have an auditorium.

C. Melvin Sharpe, board president, notified Mrs. Tucker that plans for such a program are already under way.

Vandalism Funds Asked

Charles Gordon, president of the Benning Parent-Teachers Association, called for immediate construction of River Terrace School and urged that additional play facilities be provided at Benning School playground.

Accent on school health programs as advocated in the Strayer report was urged by Mrs. Gwen Hurd Hempel, secretary of the Neighborhood Councils of Washington.

Funds were asked also to provide protection of school buildings from vandalism.

A representative of the Kenilworth Parent-Teachers Association asked a fence be erected around Kenilworth School, 44th and Ord sts. ne. The school, it was pointed out, has been broken into four times since December.

Dr. E. F. Harris, president of the Lincoln Civic Association, urged lights be installed in the rear of Francis Junior High School, 24th and N sts. nw., and that a watchman be assigned there seven nights a week.

Club Banquet Today

The annual banquet of the Club de las Americas will be held at 6:30 p. m. today at the Casa Chilena, 1735 F st. nw., marking the seventh anniversary of the club.

Bill Proposed For Theater At Belasco

A bill authorizing the Government to lease the Belasco Theater in Lafayette Square to the American National Theater and Academy was introduced in the Senate yesterday.

Cosponsors of the measure—Senators Douglas (D., Ill.) and Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.)—at the same time appealed for its support as 'an honorable and just solution to the complete disappearance of the professional living theater from our National Capital."

Under the bill, the Federal Works Agency could lease the Government-owned theater to ANTA under these lease terms:

1. Only theatrical and musical productions could be staged (no motion pictures).

2. No person could be barred from performing, or admission on grounds of race, color, creed, religion or national origin, and (3) the Government would receive one half of the net profits from the theater's operation.

Douglas and Baldwin yesterday expressed confidence that the theater group could easily raise the necessary funds to convert the building—now used as a government warehouse—into "an intimate playhouse of beauty and distinction."

The measure was referred to the Senate Public Works Committee.

Housing Bill Gets Approval

section, not yet studied by the Senate, to let the District Redevelopment Land Agency participate under slum clearance sections of the national program.

But it added an amendment by Representative McMillan (D., S. C.) to make clear the local agency is not to be given Federal housing funds for projects previously disapproved by either congressional Appropriation Committee.

McMillan's amendment dealt another blow to the proposed Marshall Heights redevelopment project in East Washington. Protests of residents paved the way for House Appropriations Committee refusal last week of $2,180,000 to start the project.

Only remaining chance for Marshall Heights funds now appears to rest with the Senate Appropriations Committee.

It will consider today or tomorrow the proposed special Marshall Heights fund and a request by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) to make 20 million dollars available at once to the fundless District Redevelopment Land Agency. The agency was set up in 1946 to clear Washington slums.

McMillan, with backing of Appropriations Committee members, said his amendment was needed to prevent District housing agencies from by-passing Congress in getting funds.

Representative Case (R., S. Dak.), foecast an effort in conference to make the McMillan plan cover slum clearance projects that may be rejected in the future by the Appropriation Committees, as well as the Marshall Heights and Barry Farms projects previously turned down.

In their big aims the Senate and House bills for the national housing programs are either identical or close together. There are many lesser differences.

Both represent a scaling down of the Administration's first housing bill, in that the total public housing units to be built is fixed at 810,000 compared with the Truman proposal for 1,050,000. The public housing program would be supported by Government funds up to 308 million dollars a year for 40 years.

The bill authorizes also a $1,500,000,000 slum clearance program, and $262,500,000 farm housing program. The Senate figure for farm housing is five million dollars more than the House figure.

The surprise preliminary vote to knock out the public housing title came after Representative Gwinn (R., N. Y.) shouted to the House that the section was "socialism."

Representative Spence (D., Ky.) leading the Administration fight for the bill, fired back that "socialism is a fake issue here, and it has no merit. This bill is aggressive democracy."

Action trimming the public housing program to the size of the Senate bill was by a voice vote on Representative Spence's motion.

In other decisions, the House:

1. Defeated, 162 to 146, an effort to remove the farm housing aid section from the bill. Representative Whittington (D., Miss.) proposed the move, saying he favored legislation aiding people to buy their own homes, but not Government-subsidized farm houses.

2. Knocked out of the bill by a vote of 158 to 99 a provision for continued Government operation of housing for migratory farm workers.

3. Swung two ways and finally adopted a provision by Representative Jensen (R., Iowa) to bar payment of salaries under the bill to any person who advocates forcible overthrow of the Government or claims the right to strike against it.

At first the plan was turned down by a 141 to 124 standing vote, then aproved by a 166 to 163 teller vote, and finally placed in the bill by a 283 to 129 roll call.

4. Rejected by 173 to 122 an anti-segregation amendment proposed by Representative Marcantonio (A. L., N. Y.).

5. Overrode 90 to 54 a proposal by Representative Cole (R., Kans.) to limit the annual Federal payment for public housing to 160 million dollars.

George Harried, 65, of 1524 8th st. nw. and Mary E. Wood, 60, of 1406 S. Carolina ave. se. were awarded service pins for their long period with Loew's Theaters in Washington. Harried has been employed as a porter at the Palace Theater for 34 years, while Mary Wood has been the matron at the same theater for 20 years

Bankers Told Reserve Board Is Too Strong

Hot Springs, Va., June 29 (AP).—A change in the philosphy for operating the Federal Reserve Board is concentrating banking power in that body, Virginia bankers were told today by Evans Wollen, jr., president of the American Bankers Association.

And while bankers are interested in maintaining the power and prestige of the board, Woollen said, they want its authority kept within "normal statutory limitations."

Woollen spoke at the final session of the 56th Virginia Bankers Association convention here.

The ABA head hailed the "probable defeat of the Regulation W, which would require nonmember State banks to place reserves in the Federal Reserve System, as "a victory for private banking." Regulation W now is before Congress.

Woollen emphasized, however, that defeat of Regulation W will not mean that the trend toward greater centralized banking control has been checked.

He pleaded for an "American conviction" in the United States to combat political ideologies which the Nation is fighting.

Charles W. Williams, Richmond banker, told delegates there is no cause for alarm in the current "slight recession" of American economy. The trend, he said, is "normal and healthy" and will be succeeded by a return of "greater economic solidarity."

Wolf at Door Pays $2.50

Nevada, Mo., June 29 (AP).—When the wolf howled at the door of beauty shop operator Lucille Herring's farm home, she shot him. The County Clerk paid her $2.50 bounty today for the animal's ears.

Action Waits In Multiple Unit Parking

The District Zoning Commission yesterday deferred final action on proposed changes in zoning regulations affecting parking space in connection with residential and multiple housing.

The proposals would reduce the parking space in ratio to the housing capacity, and add other housing classifications.

Several million dollars' worth of residential and multiple housing is being held up pending the commission's decision, a commission aide said.

Not Ready to Vote

The commission deferred action after several members said they were not ready to vote. Another meeting to discuss the changes will be scheduled within two weeks, it was stated.

The commission approved rezoning of seven acres from industrial to commercial and residential, part of a 13-acre tract in Northeast Washington extending just off Benning rd. to East Capitol st., to Minnesota ave. and to the railroad.

The rezoning of 17 acres in the area bounded by 15th st. ne. and se., G st. ne. and Pennsylvania ave. se. has been deferred until the next meeting.

Cleaning Shop Ruling

The commission approved amendments requiring dry cleaning establishments to be set back 75 feet from a residential district and the same distance from any existing dwelling unit. The amendment is not retroactive.

The board approved a controversial proposal for changing land on the east side of Connecticut ave., between Livingston and Morrison sts. nw., from residential to commercial, and denied another proposal calling for a similar change in property on the west side of 19th st. between N st. and Sunderland pl. nw.

Blind Peddler, Seeing-Eye Dog Part for Keeps

Atlanta, June 29 (AP).—Big Boy and his blind master parted for keeps today.

W. C. Knight, pencil-peddler, and his dog guide have been in and out of court because of the master's alleged drunkenness and mistreatment of the pet.

Today Knight sold Big Boy, a part-German shepherd without formal Seeing-Eye training, to a businessman for $10.

Neighbors in the hotel where the blind man and his dog lived complained that they made too much noise. Knight said he and the dog had not been a successful "team" because Big Boy wasn't trained to stand by while he played his banjo.

3 Employes Purchase 104-Year-Old Weekly

Moorefield, W. Va., June 29 (AP). Copublisher Ralph E. Fisher announced today that the 104-year-old Moorefield Examiner, Hardy County's only weekly newspaper, will be sold to three employes.

The employes purchasing the weekly are W. W. Vance, foreman; G. C. Charlton, linotype operator, and L. J. High, pressman, engraver and stereocaster.

Senate Passes Pay Raise

District leaders on the Hill pressed for final action yesterday.

The top-flight Federal pay bill would raise salaries of Cabinet officers from the present $10,000 to $25,000 and grant increases to other agency heads ranging from $500 to $5000. It covers 244 officials.

It faces opposition from a coalition of economy-minded Republicans and Southern Democrats.

The similar House-approved pay bill for District classified employes is slated for Senate Civil Service Committee action next Tuesday, Chairman Johnston (D., S. C.) said yesterday.

Bond Set for Youth

Vance C. Nessly, 18, of 518 Missouri ave. nw., was held yesterday in Municipal Court under $1000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of $9 armed robbery June 10 of a High's Ice Cream Store at 1732 Trinidad ave. ne. The youth also was charged with illegally carrying a .32 caliber pistol on a bus on June 14. Bond was set at $500.

Fatal Scalding of Baby Declared Accidental

Hammond, Ind., June 29 (AP).—Police said today an investigation of the fatal scalding of an 18-month-old girl left in charge of a 9-year-old baby sitter showed it was accidental.

The child, Carol Gora, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gora, died Monday. Carol's twin brother, Robert, was burned critically.

The sitter explained she tested the water for their bath with her elbow. She left the water running while she went for their pajamas. Police believed one of the twins may have changed the water adjustment in her absence.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

JAMES DYKES, the actor, has stowed away his Hollywood laurels for the more exciting profession of coaching the second-place Athletics as the trusted aide of Connie Mack. Some day, maybe, he'll return to Hollywood, he says.

"A star of my stature really shouldn't commit himself to more than one picture a year," says Dykes, who played the role of Manager Jimmy Dykes in The Monte Stratton Story. "That was a role I could live," said Dykes. "In fact, I lived it for 51 years before they discovered I could act it."

POVICH

Maybe next year he'll be interested in resuming his movie career. "Income taxes, you know," grins Dykes. "That's what all the one-picture-a-year men say, and now I'm one of 'em. You ought to hear the rest of my routine, about how many scripts I have rejected on account of the fact that they don't do my talents justice, and I can't afford to associate myself with a bad picture."

Meanwhile, Dykes is trying mightily to associate himself with a pennant winner, and he's thinking he has a chance with the A's this season. "We could," he says, "take it all."

DYKES IS, indeed, high on the A's chances. "I don't see anything else in the league that should scare us. The Yankees are no solid ball club, the Red Sox are operating with a bat and a prayer, and Cleveland isn't the same good team it was last year. There are lots to be said for the A's."

One of the nice things to be said for the A's, Dykes says, is the pitching of young Alex Kellner, the lad who beat the Nats the other night. He has won 11 and lost only 3 now, and can't miss being the rookie of the year, at that pace.

"We hadn't even counted on Kellner. He couldn't win a game for us last year. Was wild and everything. Then, he came along all of a sudden. Would pitch every day if we'd let him. He gets in a spot now, and just rears back and fires that ball.

"No other club can match our pitching. Brissie's terrific. Coleman has only won six, but he should have won 10 by this time. Fowler's doing a nice comeback. If Phil Marchildon ever gets squared away, we can throw a tremendous pitcher at the opposition every day.

THE CASE of Fowler, Dykes says, is interesting. "The guy had bursitis all spring. He was looking pretty useless." Lost three of his first four starts and seemed on his way out of the league. Then he got desperate and started fooling around with a knuckle ball. He's won six in a row with a new pitch."

The A's bosses, at the start of the season, were trembling lest any of their regulars be injured. They knew they were thin on reserves. Yet three supposedly key guys have been hurt and are out of the lineup, and they have found sensational replacements. Pete Suder was spiked on the ankle, and Rookie Second Baseman J. Nelson Fox has been hitting .400 ever since.

Barney McCosky was retired with a lame back, and Taft Wright and Wally Moses have filled in nobly. Catcher Buddy Rosar hurt his leg, and Mike Guerra hasn't weakened the team a bit. Guerra wasn't even supposed to be with the A's at this point. Connie Mack was disgusted when he failed to report on time at training camp, and asked waivers on the little Cuban. Nobody wanted him, so Mack was stuck with a good catcher.

THE A's up there in second place despite the fact that Eddie Joost is their only .300 hitter, and despite also the worst year of his career being experienced by First Baseman Ferris Fain. The A's haven't been hitting for fancy averages, but four of their guys, Joost, Valo, Sam Chapman and Hank Majeski have been murder with men on bases.

They've been making more double plays, 94, than any club in the league. They've held the Yankees even in eight games, and beaten Cleveland 7 out of 11. Strangely enough, the Browns are the club that has been giving them trouble.

"We have one guy who could win the pennant for us," says Dykes. "He's Sam Chapman. If he had one of his good years with the stick, we'd be in front right now. And there are signs that he's coming around. Over one stretch, he made only four hits in 44 times at bat, but he's still hitting .270. When Chapman hits .300 I expect us to be leading the league."

Nat Errors Give Macks 2d Straight Win, 7 to 4

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Carl Scheib brought his pitching problems to Griffith Stadium last night and the Nats solved them by presenting him with a 7-4 victory.

Until this happy turn of events, the big Philadelphia Athletics right hander had lost six straight games. Even as late as the sixth inning against the Nats his chances of perpetuating his string of misfortunes were 50-50.

But the Griffs would be no party to such dastardly doings. They came up with two errors in the seventh with the score tied, 3-3, and gave the As four unearned runs and their second straight game here.

Scheib did nothing to warrant consideration as a prospect for the Hall of Fame. He yielded 11 hits, including Ed Stewart's fifth homer of the year, but his deficiencies were more than counterbalanced by errors by Sam Dente and Al Kozar.

Hittle the Loser

The inability of Dente and Kozar to hold on to the ball brought Rookie Lloyd Hittle his second defeat of the season, this one in a relief role. The $65,000 lefthander came to the rescue of Dick Welteroth, who had come to the rescue of starter Ray Scarborough, who had hurled the Nats into a 3-1 deficit before Welteroth bailed him out of trouble.

Scarborough, Welteroth and Hittle were succeeded, in order, by Mickey Haefner and Rookie Dick Weik, who worked the eighth and ninth innings, respectively. They had absolutely nothing to do with the eight hits the A's made.

Ferris Fain started the mess that brought the Nats their third straight lacing. He banged out his second single to launch the seventh against Hittle. Sam Chapman drove a double play grounder to Dente, but Sam permitted the ball to go through his legs and then's when trouble started.

Kozar Kicks One

Sherry Robertson gobbled up Hank Majeski's grounder and erased Fain in a rundown between third and home, but that was only temporary relief. Al Kozar stepped into this crisis by kicking Elmer Valo's grounder around to load the bases.

Rookie Nelson Fox partially unloaded them with a two-run single. Mike Guerra produced his second single to drive in the third run of the inning and Scheib himself paddled across the fourth and final run with a fly to Clyde Vollmer.

Stewart, who cleared the right field wall in the eighth, grounded into a double play in the first to move Robertson in from third and stake Scarborough to a 1-0 lead.

Two Walks Score Run

Scarborough, trying for his eighth victory, lost it in the third on Fain's single, Majeski's double and Valo's fly. In the fourth he broke up the 1-1 deadlock by walking Chapman with the bases loaded after hitting Taft Wright and walking Fain.

The A's made it 3-1 in the sixth when Welteroth lost control and walked Valo, Fox and Scheib to walk himself out of the ball game and allow the throng of 7836 to get a glimpse of Hittle. Eddie Joost's fly to Vollmer scored Valo to make it 3-1.

Scheib's lead didn't last long as the Nats charged into him for two runs in their half of the sixth to stalemate the issue again. Stewart's triple to right started it. He scored as Vollmer lashed out his third straight hit, a double, and Vollmer checked in with the tying run on Kozar's Texas leaguer.

Stewart's homer started what appeared to be a big Nat eighth inning, but appearances were certainly deceiving as pinch-hitter Sam Mele popped up with the bases loaded and two away to ease Scheib out of the jam.

IN SHORT—Celebrities of one sort or another were all over the place . . . Golf was represented by Sam Snead and Dick Metz, here for the National Capital Open. Jim Tatum of Maryland represented football and sports announcer Harry Wismer, still resting on laurels won in The Washington Post's Celebrities tournament, took in all unrepresented sports. . .Two of Schieb's three victories have been scored at the expense of the Nats . . . Joe Haynes goes against Dick Fowler, who's won six in a row, in tonight's finale . . .

HE'S STILL JOLTIN' JOE—Joe DiMaggio, Yankee star centerfielder, can't restrain a big grin as he crosses the plate after smashing a three-run homer in the fifth inning of yesterday's game against the Red Sox in Boston. Giants' Scout Digs Up Hot Prospect In St. Joe Cemetery

Pittsfield, Mass., June 29 (AP). Baseball scouts go to odd places to land talent, but Willie Schaeffer of the New York Giants may have made history today when he went to St. Joseph's Cemetery to dig up a pitcher.

He interviewed grass-cutter Bill McMahon, aformer St. Joseph's High School pitcher who possesses a fast fireball.

McMahon has done little twirling this season due to an arm ailment, but with a few more weeks' rest he hopes to cut loose the speed that attracted major league scouts a year ago.

Tribe Splits With Tigers On 6-Run 9th

Cleveland, June 29 (AP). — The Cleveland Indians rallied in the ninth inning tonight and scored six runs to defeat the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 7, in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader.

Hal Newhouser beat the Tribe in the first game, 4-0.

Bob Feller left the Indians in grim shape after allowing the Tigers to score seven times in the fifth inning before he was relieved.

But with two out, the bases loaded and the score 7 to 5 in the ninth, righthander Bob Lemon batted for Pitcher Steve Gromek and swatted a double to left field.

That scored Bob Kennedy and Mickey Vernon, and when Pat Mullin fumbled the ball, Thurman Tucker ran in with the winning run.

A sweltering crowd of 65,243 watched the world champs pull their neatest comeback of the season. Ted Gray, who started for Detroit, left the game with the bases loaded and two out.

Then Dizzy Trout came in and was tagged for two runs before Lemon won the game. Trout was charged with the loss and Gromek credited with the win.

Newhouser stood the world champs on their heads for the third time this seaosn.

It was Newhouser's 10th victory against six defeats.

Bosox Lose 7-1 Lead as Joe Knocks In 4 Runs

Boston, June 29 (AP).—Jolting Joe MiMaggio pounded out two home runs and drove home four runs today to spark the New York Yankees to a thrilling 9-7 triumph over the Boston Red Sox before 29,563 fans.

DiMaggio, who played his first game of the season last night and led the Yanks to a 5-4 triumph over Boston with a two-run homer, hit for the circuit with two on in the fifth and with the bases empty in the eighth.

His eighth-inning blast, off Lefty Earl Johnson, turned out to be the winning blow. The Yanks added another run in the ninth when Phil Rizzuto beat out a bunt with the bases loaded.

The Red Sox piled up a 7-1 lead in four innings against Tommy Byrne and Clarence Marshall. The Sox drove Byrne out in the first with a four-run drive on three walks, three doubles and a single.

Marshall yielded two more runs in the second when Vern Stephens followed Ted Williams' bunt single with his seventeenth homer of the season. The Sox added their final run in the fourth on a single by Williams, a walk, force-out and Gerry Colemah's wild throw.

Schroeder Meets Drobny

By Bill Macklin

London, June 29 (AP). — Ted Schroeder, the lion-hearted scrapper from LaCrescenta, Calif., stormed from behind to beat South African Eric Sturgess today and gain the final of the Wimbledon singles tennis championship.

Dowager Queen Mary and 17,000 other fans saw the last American survivor beat the classy empire hope, 3—6, 7—5, 5—7, 6—1, 6—2, by finally getting the jump at the net.

For the title on Friday, Schroeder will meet Jaroslav Drobny, the bouncing Czech, who routed Australia's John Bromwich, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2, in a faltering demonstration by the veteran from down under.

Schroeder Cheered

The crowd was silent as the demoralized Bromwich bowed, a contrast to the cheers that greeted the thrills supplied by Schroeder in another of his classic comebacks.

The fighting Yanks finish was so devastating that Sturgess, befuddled at his failure to keep Schroeder from the net, made a feeble submission in the stretch.

The South African champion got only four points after Schroeder broke his service to lead 3-2 in the fifth set. Ted was nimble as a deer when the tide swung in his favor.

He rushed in behind deep drives and poised on his toes to volley returns to the vacant reaches of St. Louis, June 29 (AP).—A four-run fourth inning attack at the expense of Warren Hacker helped the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-4 triumph over the last-place Chicago Cubs tonight.

Al Brazle, in trouble frequently, gave up 12 hits, but lasted the nine innings for his seventh victory of the year.

Mathias Takes Decathlon Lead

Tulare, Calif., June 29 (AP).—Defending champion Bob Mathias moved into the lead of the National decathlon competition tonight before a near capacity crowd of 6000 home town fans.

At the end of six events, 18-year-old Bob had scored 4869 points (Irving (Moon) Mondschein of New York, who took the lead after last night's five events, dropped back after the first event tonight, the 110-meter hurdles. His score was 4800 points.

Verdeur Breaks Mark In Nonregulation Pool

Monaco, June 29 (AP).—Joe Verdeur of Philadelphia bettered the world's record for the 100-meter breaststroke today but the mark cannot be recognized because the pool is not of regulation size.

Verdeur, La Salle College swimming ace, was timed in 1:07.0. The listed world record is 1:07.3, set by R. R. Hough at New Haven, Conn., April 15, 1939.

8-Year-Old Just Learning, Shoots 98-Yard Ace

Albany, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—Eight-year-old Bobby Kirkwood made a hole-in-one today.

The 62-pound golfer shot the ball 98 yards to the fifteenth hole.

"Jeepers!" he explained.

Branca Gets 10th Victory

Philadelphia, June 29 (AP).—Ralph Branca pitched a five-hitter tonight to record his tenth victory against only one defeat as the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5 to 1 at Shibe Park.

Lefthandeer Curt Simmons took the rap for the Phils who lost for the second straight night to the Dodgers.

Giants Clout Braves by 9-3

New York, June 29 (AP).—The New York Giants, aided by some sloppy Boston fielding, thumped Vern Bickford, ace righthander, and the Braves, 9-3, today.

Bickford, gunning for his tenth victory, was knocked from the box in the third inning when the Giants scored six runs on five hits and three errors.

Whitey Lockman paced the Giants' 11-hit attack with a triple, two doubles and a single.

West Virginian Tops Seniors Golf

Rye, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—Joe Wells of Newell, W. Va., won the national senior golf title today by adding a three-over-par 75 to his 70 of yesterday. Brackett B. Fernald of Providence, R. I., was second with 75-73—148. J. J. Ridell of Garden City, N. Y., defending champion, finished in a three-way tie with Ellis Knowles of Rye, five times senior champion, and Allen R. Rankin of Columbus, Ohio, at 149.

Baby Pauly Wins Charles Town Purse, Golden Pennant 2d

Bill Bennings . . .

At Charles Town.

Dear Folks:

While it isn't considered kosher, it is less cruel, so horsemen say, to apply a battery to the neck of a horse than to whip him or dig him with spurs. Spurs are worst of all. West Virginia is one of the few States in which the practice is banned. The stimulating cases at Delaware Park involve the same kind of dope as those here last April. I still say it was used to ease pain and soreness and not as a stimulant in the true sense of the word. But the rules say "No," although icing and other methods are okay. Mrs. C. Edson's Spring On broke down so badly in a morning workout that he had to be destroyed. When Zeygrey won the fourth race, exactly 11 persons appeared on the track to get in the victory picture. There was no room for the horse. BILL.

Tasajillo, Harianette Tie for 3d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 29. After knocking at the door in three previous races, Cohen and Fitzgerald's Baby Pauly raced his way into the winner's circle today. Victory for the Baltimore-owned 4-year-old, his first of the year in seven tries, came in the William Packett Purse, featuring the mid-week program.

Ridden by Jockey Webb Snyder, who returned yesterday from Ohio, Baby Pauly led from flag fall to finish, going into the wire a length and a half in front of Mrs. C. A. Lyon's Golden Pennant. The latter was second for the seventh time in 11 starts without winning this year.

Two and one half lengths farther back came Mrs. J. H. Miles' Tasajillo and V. L. Guessford's Hairanette locked in a dead heat for the show position.

Baby Pauly paid a $26.20 win mutuel and was clocked in 1.28 for the about 7 furlongs. Despite threatening skies, no rain fell before the feature event and the running strip was fast.

The event ended a four-race winning streak of Beverley Rhett's Wesley A. The 11-year-old, meeting better company than usual, failed to show speed at any stage and had only one horse beaten at the end. On a sloppy track, Wesley A. had beaten Baby Pauly by a length at the same weight assignments.

Three horses made attempts to get to Baby Pauly in the running. Gay Rocket, Cinch and Doreen's Dream were used up trying to dislodge him and then Golden Pennant rallied but not enough to make it interesting.

Freddie Kratz and Buddy Root who have been battling for riding honors here all spring, rode two winners each for the day. They had a hand in producing a $16.80 pay-off on the 8 and 7 combination in the daily double. Kratz rode J. Frederick's Royal Rogue home at $7.40 in the first race and Root was successful in the second with Galt Davis' Binge, a $3.80 favorite.

Root's second winner came in the third race aboard C. E. Brining's Marandan, paying $8.80 while Kratz accounted for the fourth aboard C. Pascal's Zeygrey, returning $9.80.

Luke Easter Has Operation Next Tuesday

Cleveland, June 29 (AP).—Luke Easter's troublesome right knee will be operated on Tuesday morning, according to present plans, his physician reported tonight.

On Sunday, said Dr. James Dickson, San Diego's hard-hitting first baseman will enter Cleveland clinic in preparation for the operation. Then it will be from four to five weeks before Easter will be back in uniform, he estimated.

The Cleveland Indians asked the San Diego Padres, one of their farm clubs, to send Easter here for an examination. X-rays showed the knee had a chipped bone.

Kiner Drives In Five Runs as Pittsburgh Whips Reds, 7-3

3-Game Sweep

Browns Win Again, 1-0, Over Chisox

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns scored a 1-0 victory here today to sweep a two-game series from the Chicago White Sox. Dick Kokos' eighth-inning single decided a pitchers' battle between Ned Garver and Billy Pierce.

One of Pierce's four bases on balls set up the only run of the game. Johnny Sullivan, who scored the winning run in St. Louis' 7-6 victory Tuesday night, walked to open the eighth.

Gerry Priddy sacrificed and Kokos singled Sullivan home.

The White Sox, held to five hits by Garver, didn't get a runner past second base in falling to within five and a half games of the last-place Browns.

Ralph Hits Four-Run Homer in 2d

Pittsburgh, June 29 (AP).—Ralph Kiner batted the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds today. He drove in five runs with a double and a grand slam homer. It was his 19th home run of the season.

Kiner doubled one run over in the first. He hit the jackpot in the second thrilling a crowd of 18,349 including 9346 "Kids' Day" fans. Kiner's blasting made it easy for little Vic Lombardi to twirl his second victory.

The tiny leftie gave up only nine hits. He was in trouble only once. That was in the fourth. Then Shortstop Virgil Stallcup belted a round-tripper with two on to tie up the Reds' scoring in one package. It was Stallcup's second homer.

Pirate Manager Billy Meyer was chased off the bench by Umpire George Barr in the eighth after he strongly protested a play at first in which Stallcup was called safe on the tail end of an attempted double play.

The grand slammer was Kiner's second of the year—both against the Reds—and the fourth of his major league career.

Now It's Michaels vs. Onslow

Chisox Are Feudin' Again

By Jerry Liska

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox clubhouse debating society is at it again.

This time it's Manager Jack Onslow, the undisputed anchor man of the "society," vs. Second Baseman Cass Michaels, an almost certain starter in the All-Star game July 12.

The subject: Whether Michaels could visit his home at Detroit tomorrow when the Sox have an open date and then join the club when it comes to Detroit Friday.

There was plenty of conversational fireworks when Onslow turned down Michael's request in the Pale Hose clubhouse just before last night's game with the St. Louis Browns here.

Michaels referred to Onslow as a "chicken manager" and otherwise belittled the managerial talents of the 59-year-old major league freshman boss. Michaels also threatened to quit the club in disgust one of these days.

When Cass acted as though he would walk out of the clubhouse on the equally hot Onslow, the bespectacled pilot roared he would slap a fine of between $250 and $500 if Michaels walked out the door. Michaels didn't walk.

While the two men were getting things generally off their chest, most of the rest of the squad quietly sat around the clubhouse and took it all in.

After the game, which the Sox lost to the Browns 7-6 in 12 innings, Vice President Charles Comiskey summoned Michaels and Onslow to his office. This morning, Comiskey said all was serene between the two.

The problem of Michaels' Detroit departure tomorrow, however, was not immediately settled, Comiskey admitted.

Onslow previously had heated chewing matches with Catcher Joe Tipton at St. Louis, and with General Manager Frank Lane here. In the Onslow-Tipton debate, things got so sizzling that players had to restrain the two from coming to blows.

Snead Has 68

Cooper Comes in With 67 at Prince Georges In Practice for National Capital Open Golf

Pete Cooper of Vero Beach, Fla., shot a 5-under-par 67 yesterday at Prince Georges, in a practice round for the National Capital Open, sponsored by the Evening Star. The open starts Friday.

Cooper, one of the younger tournament pros, tied the Prince Georges Country Club course record for nine holes when he carded a 30 on the front nine. He started off with three birdies, added an eagle three on the par five fourth hole and another bird on the fifth to be well on the way to his record.

The 72 holes of medal play gets under way Friday, preceded by a clinic at 5 p. m. today. The clinic will be held near the 10th tee to give spectators a clear view of all the shots.

Sam Snead, Masters and PGA champ, was 4 under par for his practice round yesterday turning in a 68. Snead rules as a favorite, although some support is going to Carey Middlecoff, National Open champ, Defending Champ Skip Alexander, who has never strayed over par on the Landover, Md., course, and Lloyd Mangrum.

Mangrum is really set on taking this one. The dapper-dressing pro can jump from third to first in the list of money winners if he can take down $400 more than Snead and $50 more than Middlecoff.

Vanderbilt Denies He's Selling Out

New York, June 29 (AP).—Alfred Vanderbilt said today his 51 per cent of the stock in the Maryland Jockey Club is not for sale but it could be purchased "if the price is right."

A story was published in Baltimore yesterday which said that the young millionaire was considering offers for his track holdings. The Maryland Jockey Club operates Pimlico and Laurel as well as the half-mile Timonium track.

Wampler Ousts Bub Worsham, 3-2, in NCAA Golf

Bill Johnston, Palmer, Ward Also Win

Ames, Iowa, June 29 (AP).—Purdue's Fred Wampler, cochampion of the Big Ten, led the field into the second round of the National Collegiate Golf Tournament here today by beating Marvin "Bubby" Worsham of Washington, D. C., 3 and 2.

Bubby, representing Wake Forest, and a former Washington Post schoolboy golf champion had trouble on the greens which led to his downfall. He is a brother of Lew Worsham, former National Open champ.

Medalist Arnold Palmer, also of Wake Forest and Southern Conference champion, continued his subpar shooting against Marion Pfluger, University of Texas, for a 4-and-3 victory. He had a 141 for medalist honors yesterday.

Harvie Ward, the North Carolina star, and Bill Johnston of Utah, closest challengers to Palmer in the 36-hole qualifying test, also came through with first round triumphs.

Ward eliminated Bud Timbrook of Louisiana State, 3 and 2, and Johnston, champion of the Skyline Conference, staggered to a 1-up decision over John Cleary of Purdue. Johnston shot 34, two under, for a four-hole advantage at the turn, then faded to a 40 on the inside. He didn't win a hole on the last nine.

Five of the 32 matches went into extra holes.

The longest was 21 holes, won by Keith LeClair of Michigan from Charles Hendrickson of Ohio State. LeClair canned a 25-putt for an eagle 2 to square the match on the eighteenth green.

Al Littleton of Wichita University halted L. M. Crannell, who led North Texas State to the team title on the twentieth green. Bob Travenick, Southern California, outclassed Don Byrd, Arizona, and Dave Faflin, Purdue, edged Roger Kessler, Michigan, also in 20 holes.

Ed Schalon of Michigan, Big Ten cochampion with Wampler, lost to Bob McCall of Colgate in 19.

TENNIS—From Page 19

Schroeder In Finals

the sunburned court. Sturgess' desperate attempts to lob were suicidal against a man who climbed into the air to smash the ball from any height.

The experts agreed tonight that Schroeder looks unbeatable. Drobny, although the best in Europe, will be given little chance against him on Friday.

The left-handed Czech, a notorious in-and-outer, gave one of his finer exhibitions today as he aced and volleyed Bromwich right off the court. Bromwich, who was beaten in last year's final by Bob Falkenburg, broke Drobny's service only once, in the third set.

Queen mother Mary, a keen fan at 82, sat straight as a net post for more than four hours of tennis. She stayed after the men's matches to watch Gussie Moran, of Santa Monica, Calif., and Mrs. Pat Todd, of La Jolla, Calif., drub Mrs. Patsy Rodgers and Mrs. Jean Walker-Smith, of Britain, 6—2, 6—2 in a doubles quarter-final.

Gussie did not wear her lace panties. She wore shorts.

An All-American line-up was completed for the women's singles semifinals tomorrow. Louise Brough, defending champion from Beverly Hills, Calif., beat Mrs. Molly Blair of Britain, 6—2, 6—3, and Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont of Bellevue, Del., ousted Mrs. Betty Hilton of Britain, 6—1, 6—3.

There also will be a strong American flavor to the men's doubles semifinals scheduled tomorrow. Two of the four surviving teams are all-American, while a third is half Yank.

In today's other women's double quarter-final, Mrs. Rihbany teamed with Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, to eliminate two British girls, Patsy Knight and Miss E. M. Sutton, 6—2, 6—2.

Rocco Pins Kampfer In Turner's Windup

Argentine Rocca made Hans Kampfer give up after 15 minutes of the main wrestling match at Turner's Arena last night with a drop kick and body press.

In other matches, Steve Karas drew with Abie Coleman, Ace Freeman pinned Joe Kamaroff, Babe Sharkey defeated John Barron and George Macricostas whipped Kola Kwariani. All of the prelims lasted 14 minutes.

Behrens Gains Easy Victory in Tri State Tennis

Cincinnati, June 29 (AP).—Top-seeded Buddy Behrens of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., scored an easy victory to move through the second round of men's singles in the 50th annual Tri-State tennis tournament.

Behrens, defending champ, took Chalmers Ratliff, Cincnnati, 6—1, 6—2, while Arnold Saul of Los Angeles, seeded third, moved past Ray Hensley, Cincinnati, 6-4, 6-0.

Fourth-seeded Straight Clark, of Los Angeles, defeated Dick 6—4. Gil Shea, also of Los Angeles, had a close call with Bud Igel, of Bellevue, Ky., finally winning 6—0, 4—6, 9—7, but Tony Trabert, Cincinnati, seeded seventh, experienced little difficulty in disposing fo Jim Johnston, of Hamilton, Ohio., 6—1, 6—2.

Newark May Go To Quebec Town

Montreal, June 29 (AP).—President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League—mum about the chances of the Quebec Braves entering the Triple A circuit—will inspect the park and facilities in Quebec City today.

Rumors that the Newark Bears' franchise would be transferred have been common in baseball circles recently. The Bears are far down in last place in the International League and attendance has been low.

Lanier Leaves To Rejoin Cards

St. Louis, June 29 (AP).—Left-hander Max Lanier, the National League's leading pitcher when he jumped to Mexico in 1946, notified the St. Louis Cardinals today that he is rejoining the club.

Lanier wired the club he was leaving for St. Louis today from Drummondville, Quebec.

What's all the Fuss about?

What's all the fuss about? The way to judge a beer is to taste it. And one sip of NATIONAL BOHEMIAN Beer is worth ten thousand of anybody's words!

That's the way most people in Washington seem to feel. And that seems to be why more and more Washingtonians have discovered that National Bohemian Beer seems to be their favorite.

They like its dryness. They like its paleness. They like its exceptionally satisfying full body, yet it costs no more than the average popular-priced beer.

It's only natural that one of the world's great beers should be so popular in Washington. For Washington is truly a cosmopolitan city—with the good taste that knows no boundaries.

Have you had your first sip of National Bohemian Beer? It's waiting for you. Try it, and we think you, too, will join the Washington throngs in saying—

Oh boy, what a Beer!

Sleek Fishing Cruisers Offer Comfort

By Ralph Murdock

J. STUART BOLTON, Vernon Palmer, and the writer had the pleasure of fishing from the Skippy, Jr., one of the best equipped fishing cruisers in this area. The Skippy, Jr., and the Smokey Joe were launched in Florida waters during the winter and are two of the fleet of 20 modern boats which are available at the Rod 'N' Reel Club and Wesley Stinnett's Pier at Chesapeake Beach. With this array of angling craft, there is an atmosphere of big time fishing at these locations.

Murdock

Bait, ice, and meals are at your finger tips to help make your trip more pleasant. Johnny Gross books the fishing parties for the club and Joe Riordan serves in the same capacity at Wesley Stinnett's Pier.

Thirteen of these fine boats are equipped with ship to shore telephones and several have dual control steering wheels whereby the skipper can operate his craft from the upper deck. From this crow's nest, fish that surface can easily be spotted with the use of binoculars at tremendous distances. A ship to shore phone carries a price tag of $400. As soon as the fish are located, the skipper contacts his cohorts on shore by phone. A boat captain leaving dock, through this acquired information, will head to the spot fish are biting instead of taking a wild course in the opposite direction.

FOR THE TRIP deluxe, the fee is $20 for six hours with eight fishermen plus $2.70 tax. Approximately $2.85 is the added fee for each angler over eight. Seventy-five rowboats are at your service. Phone numbers are North Beach 5001 and 5701.

Getting back to our fishing trip, we caught 67 croakers before dark. The fish were biting even better when we decided to head for port. Capt. Carl Sands was the skipper and a good one too. He made only one move to find the fish and even offered to clean as many fish as we desired. The awe-stricken anglers consented to having 17 dressed.

Captain James Howland has equipped his Gulf Stream fishing cruiser, Bill 'n Jim, with a fathometer. It has just been installed and this fastest cruiser in the Morehead City Gulf Stream fleet is the first boat catering strictly to the anglers to be so equipped. The fathometer will in a split second indicate the depth of the water and will be used for spotting ledges on the ocean floor where giant red snappers are found.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. McChesney, jr., of Frankfort, Ky., and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Clark, of Churchton, Md., caught 76 jumbo hardheads while fishing with Captain Roxy Neim of Deale, Md. It took three hours to accomplish the feat at the Gooses.

CAPT. JAMES WARD, at Deales, picked up 180 croakers off Sharp's Light. Here's a fishing spot that has produced more solid catches of heardheads than the Gooses. It is a shorter trip from Herring Bay and is only a 35-minute run from the Chesapeake Beach and North Beach fishing piers where the bulk of the fishing craft are located.

The big stripers which have been wrecking fishing tackle at the Gooses have gone into hiding. The trollers have not been able to locate these rock within the last three days. Kirk Miller, former sports editor, nabbed a hefty that weighed 22 pounds. Before Kirk could release the hook from the fish, the hook was drawn through his finger and a deep cut was the result. Kirk good naturedly said, "He was too tough for me to handle."

Some large white perch and pan rock are being caught at Seven Gables near the mouth of the Patuxent River. Bloodworms are their best bait. Dick Clark, at this point, has 20 rowboats at your disposal.

Allyn Ferrell, at the Gas Co., Ray Hardesty, Paul Meyers and Paul Meyers, jr., age 12, caught an assortment of 125 fish which included spot, perch, hardheads and pan rock off Bloome Island. About 30 rock were released because they were undersized. They fished from an outboard motor boat.

Weekend Suggestions:

Where They are Biting:

HARDHEADS — Best Bet—Sharp's Island Lighthouse. Larger and more consistent catches at this location. Fish in deep water. Frozen shrimp is the bait. Daytime and evening fishing both good. You shouldn't miss.

ROCKFISH — Have left the Gooses and are now hitting at Holland Point. Trolling is the procedure. Bucktails and drones with pork rind will do the trick.

WHITE PERCH—Large size at the mouth of South River. Good catches up to 100 are recorded.

Trans-Miss Favorites Gain

Lincoln, Nebr., June 29 (AP).—The favorites breezed through today in the opening round of match play in the annual Trans-Mississippi Women's Golf Tourney.

Co-Medalist Betty MacKinnon had a one-under-par 51 for the 12 holes it took to eliminate Frances Galus of Omaha, 7 and 6.

Tomorrow Miss MacKinnon will meet Mrs. Tilly Becker, the confident Kansas State champ

Keeping pace were the two other aces from Texas-defending champion Polly Riley of Fort Worth and Betsy Rawls of Austin, co-medalist with Miss MacKinnon.

Ex-Cardinal Krist Shot in Groin in Hunting Mishap

Wellsville, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—Howard Krist, 33, former St. Louis Cardinals pitcher, was recovering today from a bullet wound suffered Sunday in a hunting accident.

Krist, whose home is in Delavan, was brought to a hospital here with a .22-caliber bullet wound in the right hip and groin.

The accident occurred while he was hunting woodchucks in the town of West Union, Steuben County. He banged his rifle on the ground to try to catch a young woodchuck. The stock broke and the gun discharged, causing the bullet to enter the groin and emerge through the hip.

Jack, Giosa To Fight Here

Beau Jack and Eddie Giosa, who were being sought for a July 18 lightweight bout in the Polo Grounds, instead, will do their fisticuffing at Griffith Stadium, July 12.

Goldie Ahearn, who staged the Arturo Godoy-Elkins brothers heavyweight scrap at the ball park last Monday, is the promoter.

The July 12 match is supposed to be a build-up for young Giosa, who stepped into prominence a few months back by beating Charlie Fusari, and who outpointed the 34-year-old former champion Lew Jenkins in his most recent outing.

In his last appearance here a year ago, Jack stopped England's Eric Boon, but is considered over the hill as a contender, having been beaten several times since then.

Twentieth Century Sporting Club wanted to stage the Jack-Giosa match at the Polo Grounds, but was forced to bypass it because of trouble with the Managers Guild.

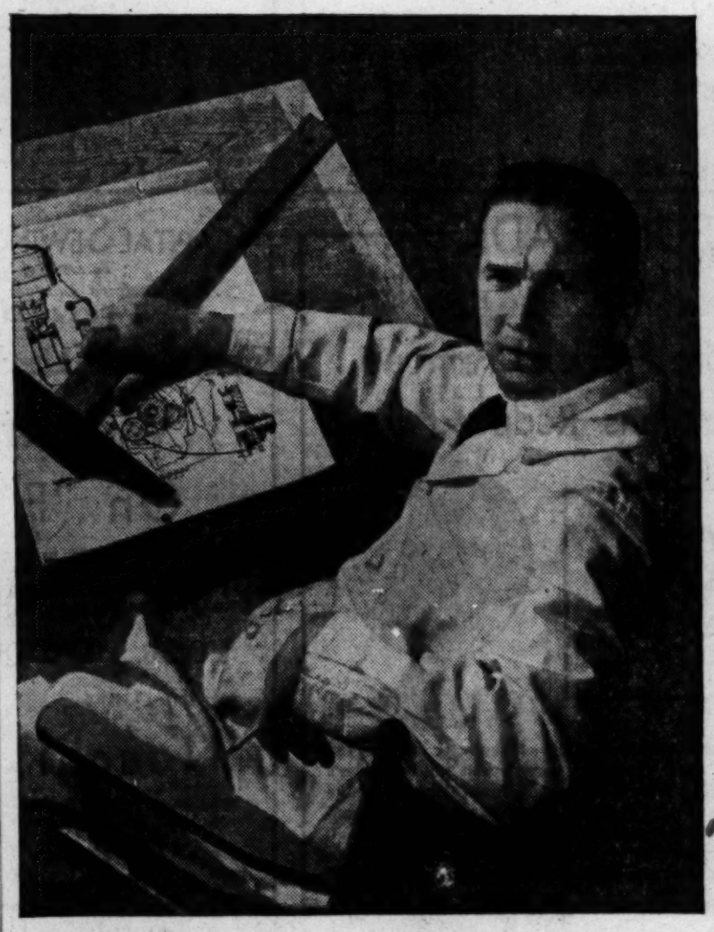
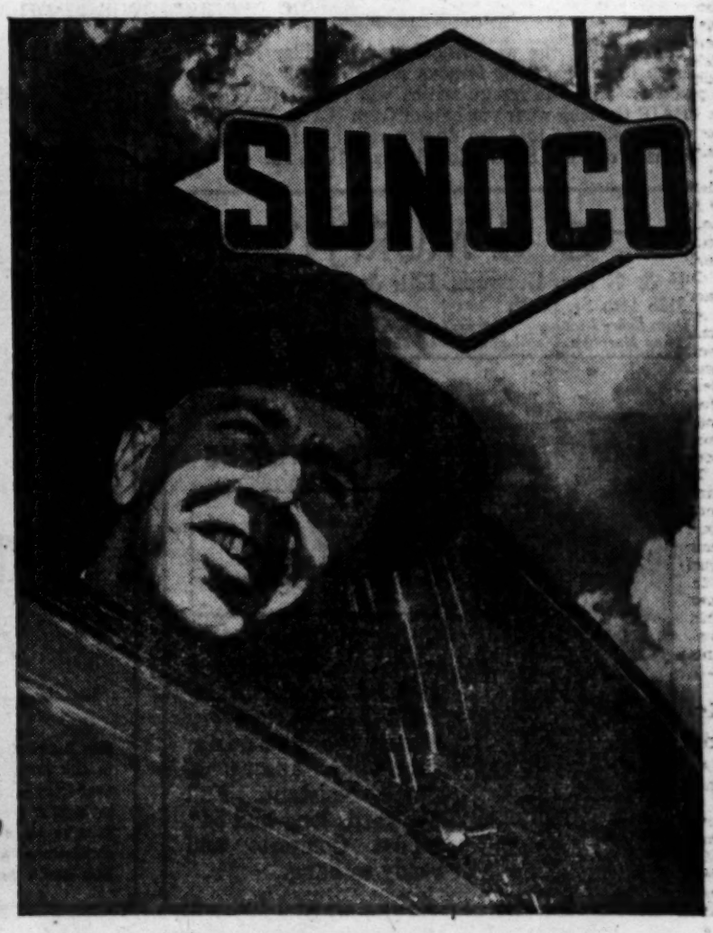
SUNOCO DYNAFUEL IS 4 TO 1 CHOICE OF AUTO ENGINEERS

Proved by this Detroit Gasoline Survey*





513 FOREMOST AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS in the Detroit area were asked what brand of gasoline they used in their own cars . . . and more said Sunoco Dynafuel than all other gasolines combined! To find out why Dynafuel is the 4 to 1 choice of men who know motors best . . . try just one tankful in your own car. Then judge for yourself.

FOR BEST RESULTS FROM YOUR CAR, don't dilute Sunoco Dynafuel with other gasolines. Wait until your tank is nearly empty and then fill up with Dynafuel . . . the gasoline that more auto engineers use in their own cars than all other gasolines combined. You'll get high-test performance . . . without paying premium price!

GASOLINE E 4%
GASOLINE D 5%
GASOLINE C 8%
GASOLINE B 12%

55% Prefer Sunoco Dynafuel!

*SURVEY WAS CONDUCTED by a nationally known, independent research company. Names of 709 Engineers in Detroit area were obtained from roster of a leading automotive engineering society. Personal conversation interviews were completed with 513 engineers. The others were persons who had moved, did not own a car, or were otherwise unavailable for interviewing.

The question:—"What brand of gasoline do you ordinarily use in your car?"—gave them freedom to name any gasoline.

Of the 513 engineers interviewed, 282 or 55% said they used Sunoco Dynafuel . . . 4 to 1 over the next nearest gasoline.

Bill for Pay Raises For 200 Top Officials Is Cleared to House

The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared the bill to raise the salaries of Cabinet members and about 200 other top-ranking Federal officials. The House will take it up next week.

In the Senate, meantime, there is a move on to introduce the executive pay bill as a rider to the House-approved bill to give retroactive pay raises to Foreign Service and the District's classified employes. The Senate won't get to the bill until next week.

GSA: Congress completed action yesterday on the bill to set up a General Services Administration. The President may sign it into law today. GSA will be made up of War Assets, National Archives, Bureau of Federal Supply, and the Federal Works Agency.

STORY: Harry L. Mickey, who was with President William McKinley when he was shot, will retire today as White House messenger after 50 years of service. He began his White House service on November 1, 1899, as butler to McKinley. Mickey will retire to his Virginia farm.

PAY HEARINGS: Representative Miller (D., Calif.) yesterday accused the House Civil Service Committee of lacking the courage to write a well-rounded pay-reclassification bill. He said Congress hadn't been fair in its dealing with Federal workers. Chairman Murray defended the employe record of Congress as being both liberal and fair.

RETIREMENTS: The oldest employe in point of service in the Treasury Department is retiring. He's M. F. Snider, chief of Internal Revenue's miscellaneous unit, who has had more than 50 years of Federal service . . . Another Revenue retirement is that of Ellis W. Manning of the legal staff, who will enter private law practice here . . . At RFC, Frank M. Eliot is retiring. He's a former director of RFC personnel, who has recently been special assistant to the board of directors . . . At Agriculture, Dr. David J. Price, an expert on the causes and prevention of dust explosions and farm fires, is retiring after 37 years of Federal service . . . Retiring from Agriculture's Forest Service are Lydia Marie Heisley, who has a record of 42 years of public service, and William W. Kinsley, a statistician.

Dr. Louis C. McCabe will rejoin Interior's Bureau of Mines as chief of its air and stream pollution prevention branch . . . M. B. Kinnikin is the new construction chief for the Public Buildings Administration here. He's being transferred from PBA's Richmond office . . . Paul Froehlich of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, has received an award from Gettysburg College for "notable services rendered" . . . At Government Printing Office, cash awards for economy suggestions have been given to Milton E. Harris, Roscoe E. Pratt and Quentin C. Stephenson.

GAO: A most unusual legal action was filed yesterday in the District Court here. It's a writ of mandamus to require the Comptroller General to reallocate the job of one of his employes to a position approved weeks ago by the Civil Service Commission.

The suit is unusual because the Comptroller General himself has ruled that the Civil Service Commission is the final authority in fixing the classification of jobs under its jurisdiction. Attorneys S. R. Carter and Edward P. Felker will ask why the comptroller doesn't comply with his own decisions.

The employe involved is F. Glenn Moseley, a CAF-10 claims examiner whose job was reallocated by Civil Service to a P.-4 in March. Civil Service people agree that the case is most unusual because GAO officials agreed that Moseley's and like jobs should be given a P-4 rating, but since then, they say, the GAO personnel office has done everything to prevent the reallocation order from going into effect. No wonder the personnel offices are on the pan throughout the Government.

FRANK DOW yesterday was appointed commissioner of the Customs Bureau. A career appointee, Dow has been acting commissioner for the past 18 months . . . John S. Kemp, assistant disbursing officer, will retire today from Treasury's disbursements division after 40 years of service . . . Navy's AFGE lodge has elected its first president, Frances M. Swiggett.

JOB: Nearby Montgomery County has an opening for a personnel assistant, $3080 to $3696. Those interested should send a Form 57 immediately to the county personnel board, Rockville, Md.

Skid Crash Takes Boy's Life; Man Is Killed in Collision

The Washington Post

RUN OVER BY AUTO—Mrs. Nelson Timmerman looks at the automobile tire marks on the shoulder and back of her 2-year-old son, Robert. Other than scratches, he suffered no injuries when the front wheel of the family car ran over him in front of the Timmerman home, 11807 Idlewood rd., Viers Mill Village, Md. The marks have been retouched in this picture

D. C. traffic deaths this year 33
Traffic deaths this date last year 38
Total traffic deaths last year 67

A 16-year-old boy and a 45-year-old man died yesterday as the result of traffic accidents in Greater Washington.

A 2-year-old boy miraculously escaped with cuts and bruises when he apparently fell beneath the wheels of his father's car. Tire marks on his body indicated the wheels passed over him.

The dead are:

George Allen Baumann, 16, of 9 W. Uhler ave., Alexandria. He died in Alexandria Hospital at 5 p. m., nine hours after his car skidded into a bus on the Mount Vernon Memorial blvd.

James Jones, 45, no fixed address. He was pronounced dead five minutes after an automobile in which he was a passenger was in collision with a taxicab at 21st and R sts. nw. at 8:45 a. m.

According to police, Baumann was en route to Washington when his car skidded on wet pavement and crashed head-on into an Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. bus near Roaches Run.

Skull Fractured

Baumann suffered a skull fracture when he was thrown out of his car onto a pavement.

A technical charge of reckless driving was placed against the bus driver, Charles Turesko, 30, RFD 4, Alexandria. He is to appear before United States Commissioner Stanley King on July 11.

In the other case, police said Jones was riding with John E. Coconis, 53, of 1454 Monroe st. nw., when the Coconis car collided with a taxicab driven by Albert J. Snead, 40, of 1355 U st. nw.

Jugular Vein Severed

Jones fell to the street and as he tried to get up, the rear bumper of one of the colliding vehicles caught him in the neck, severing the jugular vein, police said.

Both drivers later will appear before a coroner's inquest.

Police were mystified yesterday by the tire tread marks on the back of two-year-old Robert C. Timmerman of Viers Mill Village.

He was playing in his father's car when it rolled down an incline, stopping after it jumped a curb. The lad was found sobbing near by—tire marks on his back, scratches on his stomach, but apparently not otherwise injured.

Dr. John Brownsberger at Washington Sanitarium, where Roberts was taken, said "it looked as though he had been run over." X-rays, however, showed no signs of fractures.

Tommy yesterday was confined to his crib, but apparently not too worse off for the experience.

In another accident, Charles Gomez, 18, of 19 Fenton st. ne., suffered scalp lacerations when he was thrown from his bicycle at 7th st. and Mt. Vernon pl. nw. at 9:30 a. m. Police said a car operated by Paul James Menear, 25, of Thornton, W. Va., collided with one driven by Ronald Whitehead, 17, of 1503 S. Glebe rd., Arlington.

Whitehead's car skidded on the wet street and struck Gomez's bike, police said.

Bill for RFC Sesqui Loan Introduced

Measure to Finance Celebration Stems From Suggestion Made by Truman

Representative Mary T. Norton (D., N. J.) yesterday filed a bill to authorize a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan of two million dollars to finance the Sesquicentennial celebration.

The new attempt to win Federal backing for Washington's 150th anniversary was suggested by President Truman Monday when he met with members of the National Sesquicentennial Commission at the White House.

After introducing the enabling legislation, Mrs. Norton, a commission member, told reporters that she felt the proposed Freedom Fair was "a fine thing that will demonstrate to the American people, and the entire world, the benefits of democracy."

The bill was sent to the House Banking and Currency Committee for action.

The drive to seek an RFC loan was brought about by the House refusal, led by its Appropriations Committe, to agree with the Senate in granting a Federal appropriation of two million dollars for the Sesqui celebration. President Truman had asked for three million dollars.

Adventist Urges Drive To Save Youth

A Seventh Day Adventist youth leader yesterday called for an "all out" youth activity drive in the Washington area to combat a "widespread letdown of morals."

Advocate of the plan was Warren N. Wittenberg, youth leader of the Potomac Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, which represents 53 churches in Washington, Maryland and Virginia. He pointed specifically to the recently reported conduct of youths at Colonial Beach, Va. He spoke to more than 1000 young people at two different sessions yesterday at the annual 10-day camp meeting being held in Takoma Park, Md.

His program urged ministers and youth leaders of all churches to concentrate on engaging youths in definite gainful pursuits instead of letting them "run loose into drinking, lawlessness, and general immorality."

Metropolitan area pastors were urged by him to use teen-agers in definite church activities. "This will save them from lurid attractions offered by amusement parks, cocktail lounges and out of the way unchaperoned seaside parties such as reported in Colonial Beach," he said.

The great indifference of many parents in the interests of their children is one of the major contributing factors to juvenile delinquency today, he charged. The youth leader requested parents to "play with your children; be a companion to them; work with them; show an interest in their activities; and be a real pal in all of their problems and discussions."

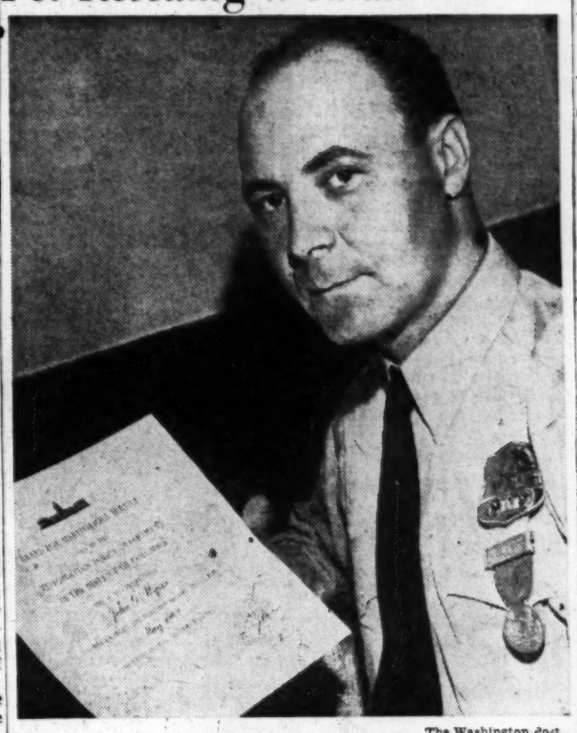
Wittenburg issued a stern challenge to the youths to make a "fighting issue against the popular sins of the world today and make every effort to launch a giant crusade for pure and clean living among the youths of this area."

Already, he said, SDA churches in the Potomac Conference have been fighting juvenile delinquency and lawlessness.

"Scores of Washington area youths will attend special summer camps which will engage them in swimming, camping, craft, and other useful worth-while activities instead of roaming the streets seeking useless adventure," he said.

Speakers scheduled for today are Elder Charles Longacre, secretary of the religious liberty department, general conference; Dr. Benjamin G. Wilkinson, president emeritus at the Washington Missionary College, and Miss Mary Walsh, Bible instructor for the Columbia Union Conference.

Police Private Gets Award For Rescuing Woman in Fire



The Washington Post

CITED—Pvt. John G. Myers, of 1756 Euclid st. nw., a policeman in the 13th Precinct, displays his citation and wears the medal for being chosen May's "Policeman of the Month." He was cited for rescuing an unconscious woman locked in a burning room

Officer Celebrated His 32d Birthday By Heroic Deed

Pvt. John G. Myers, 32, yesterday received the Policeman of the Month Award for carrying an unconscious woman to safety from a burning house at 2341 18th st. nw.

The award was presented by Inspector Floyd E. Truscott, executive officer, in ceremonies at the Hotel 2400, 2400 16th st. nw.

The 13th Precinct private rescued Mrs. Kathryn Price, 25-year-old waitress, at 4:10 a. m. May 28.

The citation said Myers was patrolling a foot beat with Pvt. Jack E. Jernigan when he saw smoke pouring from the front window of the second floor of the 18th st. address.

Myers told Jernigan to pull a fire box at 18th st. and Belmont rd. nw.

Meanwhile, Myers smashed a locked glass door on the first floor of the house and ran upstairs to the second-floor landing.

"Here he observed flames in the front room, the door to which was also locked," the report said.

"Private Myers smashed this door open and ran into the apartment bedroom, where he groped around in the dense smoke and located a person lying in the bed (later identified as Kathryn Price).

"Private Myers then carried Mrs. Price, who was unconscious from suffocation, from the apartment and to the outside of the building, where she was later revived."

Capt. Albert I. Bullock, who recommended Myers for the award, said that if it had not been for "the prompt and heroic action" of Myers, the woman would have perished before firemen arrived.

Myers, a former attendant at St. Elizabeths Hospital, has been on the force seven years. He celebrated his thirty-second birthday before coming on duty the day of the rescue.

City Manager Not Interested In Keeping Job

Alexandria City Manager Robert S. Marshall, jr., stated again yesterday that he will not seek permanent appointment to his job—despite a petition signed by 236 city employes asking him to apply.

Marshall said he deeply appreciated the expression of feeling from most of the city's white-collar workers. He pointed out, however, that he took the job last March after Nicholas A. Colasanto was suddenly dismissed with the understanding it would be temporary. He said he will return to his post as executive director of the Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority when the city finds a permanent manager.

He made the same statement a week ago when the City Council announced it was looking for a permanent manager.

2 Men Arrested For Larceny Sent To Warsaw, Va.

Two men arrested by Alexandria police were returned to Warsaw, Va., yesterday, where they have been charged with housebreaking and grand larceny in a $5200 jewel theft June 6.

William Buckner, 22, was arrested June 19 on a concealed weapon charge. A routine investigation led police to a bus terminal locker where they found $2000 in stolen watches and rings. Buckner reportedly admitted the theft.

By keeping a watch on the locker, police Monday arrested Herbert Muse, 29, who they said was Buckner's accomplice. Muse denied any part in the theft, police said, but some of the stolen jewelry was reportedly found on him. Police said both men are from North Carolina.

Anderson Quits As Head of ECA's Industry Division

Recovery Administrator Paul G. Hoffman yesterday announced the resignation of Samuel W. Anderson of New York as industry division director of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

The resignation is effective July 1. A successor will be named soon.

Anderson took the job in July, 1948. He agreed to serve for nine months, but was persuaded to remain until the end of this fiscal year.

Hoffman said ECA "was very fortunate in obtaining Mr. Anderson's service during an important period in the recovery program."

Anderson resigned from the investment banking firm of Lehman Bros. to accept the ECA post. He was formerly a partner in Goldman, Sachs and Co., New York. He served with the War Production Board as vice chairman.

Home Rule Antis Fear A Kind of 'Revolution'

See Mass Shakeup Of U. S. Employes; Nothing to It, Says Senator Kefauver

House members voiced new fears about District self-government yesterday to Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), author of the Senate-approved home rule bill.

Suggestions that home rule was a kind of revolution, and that it could mean a mass shakeup among Federal jobholders, were voiced by House District committeemen as they questioned Kefauver about his bill.

In return, Kefauver, sole witness yesterday in the home-rule hearing, gave renewed assurances that home rule would work successfully. Instead of revolution, he said, it was extending the democratic system. He said there would be no Government employe firings because of home rule.

Next Hearing July 7

Next step in the hearings will come July 7, when representatives of District organizations will testify before the House District Judiciary subcommittee starting at 10 a. m. Committee aides said citizens testifying as individuals will be heard later, but no further hearing date beyond July 7 was set.

House District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) and Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) questioned Kefauver yesterday, centering first attention on the voting plan under home rule. Key feature of this plan is to let all District residents who have lived here a year or more, and who are otherwise qualified, vote for city council members and school board members in Washington, without taking away any voting rights they may have in a State.

O'Hara said that under the Civil Service appointment system, Federal employes must keep their State voting residences. (Civil Service officials explained the apportionment system covers about 95,000 of the 200,000 Federal jobs here. Under it quotas are set up in proportion to State and District populations. Eastern States and the District are over their quotas, Western State quotas are unfilled because their residents often will not travel the great distance to take a job here.)

Says None Would Lose Jobs

McMillan asked whether the home-rule bill would change the apportionment, and how many would lose their jobs.

"I don't think any would lose their jobs," said Kefauver.

"I understand the District is some 2000 per cent over its quota, and some would lose their jobs if the apportionment were strictly applied," McMillan said.

Civil service officials said the District has a quota of 261 jobs, and District residents hold 10,311 jobs in the quota system, or about 40 times tht quota.

Some Would Lose Rights

O'Hara said about nine States had advised the committee their residents could not vote in Washington without losing their State voting rights.

Declaring that Washington now has the finest city government in the world, he asked, "What brings about this revolution?" Kefauver told him there are better city governments where the people have the say, and said there was great agitation on the part of the people here for self-government.

"A lot of historians say a benevolent dictatorship where the people have no control is the best, but here in the United States we're committed to another system where the people govern," Kefauver commented.

Diplomat to Speak

Paul Malone, Second Secretary of the Canadian Embassy, will address the luncheon club of Almas Temple at the Almas Club, 1315 K st. nw., at 12:30 p. m. Friday, which is "Dominion Day." Malone will speak on "Canada" and show a color film on the Dominion.

Robert T. (Bob) Barnett, veteran Chevy Chase golf professional who was found unconscious in his shop yesterday morning, was in critical condition at Georgetown Hospital early last night.

Barnett

Barnett, 51, still was in a coma. Dr. J. Lawn Thompson, jr., his personal physician, said he was "observing" Barnett, but still wasn't able to determine the cause of his collapse.

Dr. Thompson said he found no indications of violence. Montgomery County police, making a routine check, told reporters it appeared Barnett's condition resulted from a natural cause.

Found Slumped in Chair

William Hardy, assistant pro at Chevy Chase, found Barnett slumped in a chair in his office at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. R. J. Roper, club manager, said the last employe left the shop about 8:30 p. m. Tuesday while Barnett still was there.

The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad was called to the club and took Barnett to the hospital.

Barnett, a former Professional Golfers Association vice president, has been club pro at Chevy Chase in the summer for 28 years. Since 1930, he has been winter pro at Indian Creek Club, Miami.

Former Middle Atlantic PGA champion, Barnett was runner-up in the Maryland Open only last year. In the later tourney, he was defeated by Charles Bassler of Baltimore, a one time pupil.

Born in Pennsylvania

Barnett gave most of the leading pros in the Washington area their starts. Lew Worsham, 1947 National Open champ, got his first job as a professional through Barnett.

Other successful proteges include Gene Larkin, Woodmont; Allan Burton, Army-Navy; Buck Worsham, Congressional, and Ralph Beach, Baltimore.

Barnett was born in Paoli, Pa., near Philadelphia, and was an assistant pro in that area before coming to Washington. He and his wife live at 4503 Ridge st., Chevy Chase. They have one child, Mrs. William T. Nelson.

Doctor Held On Charge Of Assault

A 40-year-old doctor, who said he was once personal physician to Manuel Quezon, the late Philippine president, was held yesterday for grand jury action on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

He is Dr. Isabelo R. Villaroman, 40, of 6101 Landover rd., Cheverly, Md. He was released under $1000 bond after a hearing in Municipal Court. He is a cancer specialist.

According to police, he was arrested after Connie Cox, 21, of 1433 Columbia rd. nw., reported on May 14 that Dr. Villaroman hit him with a grease gun, breaking a cheekbone.

The defendant, who is crippled as the result of war injuries, testified that he had driven into a filling station with a new station wagon when Cox approached his car closely with a truck.

A few angry words were shouted, and the defendant struck Cox, it was testified. Dr. Villaroman said he feared that Cox would strike him with a crowbar and acted in self-defense.

Charged With River Pollution

A fat rendering plant was charged yesterday with letting industrial refuse flow into the Potomac River.

The company, Milton Hoffermaier Co. Inc., of 3300 K st. nw., and its manager, William J. Stryker, were ordered by the United States Attorney's office to post $50 collateral to face trial July 21 in Municipal Court.

Police said this is the fourth time the company has been summoned in connection with pollution in the three past years.

Nearby boathouse authorities complained, police said, that the overflow from a large grease trap caused a scum and stench on the river for more than a quarter of a mile.

7000 to Be Paid Early

About 7000 District workers who normally receive their semimonthly pay checks on Tuesday will be paid on Friday in order to enable them to have some cash for the Fourth of July weekend. District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton arranged the advance payment.

Beach Mayor Clears Most D. C. 'Teeners'

Colonial Beach, Va., June 29 (Spl.).—Mayor Norman F. Brewington tonight gave a clean bill of health to 9 out of 10 Washington teen-agers who visit the resort spot after school lets out each year.

Brewington emphasized that the conduct of all visitors to the beach should not be judged by the "troublemakers" who he said are in a decided minority.

Now Under Control

Brewington made these comments in closing the books on his "operations fraternity," a crackdown on alleged wild parties by Washington area high school fraternities and sororities. He said that police raids had brought the situation "under control." Six Washington area youths were fined yesterday as an outgrowth of the "crackdown."

It was evident that Brewington was responding to protests from parents of many of the youths in stating that a large majoriy of the youths were not involved. Many parents had called their children home or paid on-the-spot visits to the resorts after reading about the "goings-on." Some have expressed resentment at the blanket charges.

Well-Behaved Listed

Some of the student groups that have been properly chaperoned and well behaved, said Brewington, included Theta Kappa Chi and Tau Gamma of Washington-Lee High School in Arlington, Upsilon Nu Sigma of Central High School, Pi Alpha Chi of Anacostia High School and Alpha Omega of Front Royal, Va. He said there also were some other well-behaved groups, the names of which he didn't have.

Brewington said he hoped some arrangement could be worked out in the future whereby chaperones of such groups would register with local officials when arriving at the beach.

Chappell to Speak

Richard H. Chappell, chief of probation for the Federal courts, will speak at an open meeting of the Alexandria Community Welfare Council at 8:15 tonight, at the Alexandria YWCA, 602 Cameron st. The subject will be "Causes and Control of Juvenile Delinquency."

Rector Boy, Plagued by Heat, To Get Own Air Conditioner

The Washington heat is giving 4-year-old Michael Rector "a mighty tough time" at Casualty Hospital, his doctor reported yesterday.

Michael

That will be remedied for Mike, perhaps today, with installation of a special air-conditioning unit to cool the boy who last November was severely burned from his ankles to his armpits.

Loan of the Philco air-conditioner has been made by Joseph M. Zamoiski, head of the Philco distributing firm bearing his name, at 2122 24th pl. ne., it was disclosed at the hospital. Zamoiski said he made the offer when he learned the plucky patient was troubled by hot weather.

Michael, his doctor says, had a setback about two weeks ago, just at the time his remarkable fight for life was receiving Nation-wide publicity in Life magazine.

"He broke out in a rash shortly after," the doctor said. "Since then he has needed more transfusions, and has suffered a lot from hot weather."

Further skin grafting may take place within another 10 days, the doctor stated.

The boy suffered severe burns covering almost three quarters of his body last November 12. On April 4, generous skin grafts were from the seventh and eighth donors. Doctors hoped then they would be the last necessary; that the patient's own remaining skin could be used in patch-planting grafts to regenerate more skin over the raw surfaces.

Landover Hills Man Held on Lottery Charge

Neighbors reported to police that too many people visited the home of Vivian Walter Furneyhough, 51, 7120 Varnum st., Landover Hills, Md.

Prince Georges County Detectives Richard A. Pearson and Earl Huber investigated.

Furneyhough was arrested yesterday on charges of operating a lottery with numbers slips. He was held in $500 bond for a hearing September 15 in Hyattsville Police Court.

Railway Express Asks 4th Increase Since War

Railway Express Agency, Inc., yesterday asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a 10 per cent increase in first and second class rates.

It is the fourth increase asked since the war.

Beauty Parlor Safe Cracked for $660

Safe crackers early yesterday knocked off the dial and punched open a safe in the Lu-marn Beauty Shop, 1742 Connecticut ave. nw., and then removed $660 in cash.

Mrs. Nettie Koontz, manager, said the money represented part receipts and part payroll for the nine employes of the shop.

Entrance to the shop was gained by jimmying the front door.

The front door of the Fireside Inn, located at the same address, also was forced open but police said nothing was reported missing.

D. Patrick Williams, owner of a real estate firm at 3112 11th st. nw., reported a medium-sized safe, containing $50 in cash, was removed sometime early yesterday, after entrance was gained to the office by forcing open a trapdoor leading from the basement.

Let's Continue Negotiations and Protect the Public

An Open Letter to Capital Transit Employes

In order to protect the public, the Company has proposed the following to the Union for consideration at tonight's meeting:

That present wages and working conditions be extended for one month to permit continuance of negotiations. Any change in wage rates finally determined upon in the intervening period would be retroactive to July 1. We believe that continuing negotiations may find a solution. Employes cannot lose under this arrangement and the public would have service in the meantime.

Miss McFarlane Bride of Mr. Pitcock

Miss Bowdoin, Mr. Spaulding Wed

Harris & Ewing
MRS. JOSIAH A. SPAULDING
. . . wed in Cathedral ceremony

MISS HELEN HAMILTON BOWDOIN, daughter of Mrs. Edward H. Foley, jr., of Washington, and George Temple Bowdoin of New York, was married yesterday to Josiah Augustus Spaulding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Spaulding of Enchanta, Paxton, Mass.

The ceremony was held at 4:30 in the Washington Cathedral and a reception followed at the home of Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Foley on Thompson Circle.

The bride wore an off-shoulder gown of ivory satin made with circular train. Her veil was of rose point lace which had been worn by her mother and had belonged to Betsy Schuyler, wife of Alexander Hamilton, of whom the bride is a direct descendant. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Edward S. Travers, jr., of New York, was her sister's matron of honor and Miss Julia Irving Bowdoin, another sister, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Vilette Spaulding, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Jacqueline Bouvier of Washington; Miss Dorrance Hiel of Newport, R. I.; and Mrs. George B. Post, jr., of Montgomery, Ala. James L. Buckley of Sharon, Conn., was best man. Ushers included Edward S. Travers, Endicott Peabody Davison, F. Bolton Elwell, John Cullen Weadock, Harold R. Tyler, all of New York; Alexander Harvey 2d of Baltimore, Edwin Lyon Dale, jr., of Philadelphia; Irving Seaman, jr., of Lake Forest, Ill.; Samuel T. Brown of Colorado Springs, Robert Peter Bushman of Greenwich, Conn., and Copeland Robinson of Waterbury, Conn.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding will return to Washington to live. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Robert Fulwood Ligon of Montgomery, Ala., and the late General Ligon, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Temple Bowdoin of New York. She attended the Chapin School and was graduated from Foxcroft in 1946. She is a member of the Colony Club of New York and the Junior League of Washington.

Mr. Spaulding is a graduate of Hotchkiss School and Yale University, class of 1947. He was graduated from Columbia University Law School in 1949. He is a member of the Yale Club of New York. During the war he was a pilot in the Marine Air Corps for three years and was discharged as a first lieutenant in 1945.

Roy Pitcock of Graham, was his brother's best man and ushers were Ensign W. D. McFarlane, jr., of Annapolis, brother of the bride; Hugh Cundiff and George Harrell of New York, and Hugh Millis of Washington and Dallas, Tex.

The bride is the granddaughter of Judge R. W. McFarlane of Graham, and of Judge and Mrs. J. F. Carl of Edinburg, Tex. She was graduated from Texas State College for Woman where she was president of the graduating class. She has been with the Department of State.

Mr. Pitcock is the grandson of Mrs. Jurant Shepherd of Fort Worth. He was graduated from Southwestern University and during the war served in the Air Force for three years.

Pitcock—McFarlane

THE marriage of Miss Mary Ellen McFarlane, daughter of William Doddridge McFarlane, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, and Mrs. McFarlane, to Louis Pitcock, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pitcock of Graham, Tex., took place yesterday at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. John W. Rustin.

The bride's gown was of ivory silk satin made with portrait neckline with a bertha of French lace. The fingertip illusion veil was held by an illusion halo held by pearlized orange blossoms. She carried white roses and orchids.

Mrs. James J. McFarlane, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor and other attendants were Miss Betty McFarlane, Miss Barbara McFarlane, sisters of the bride; Mrs. W. S. Shepperson of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. B. W. Payne of Victoria, Tex.

Helms—Easterday

MISS RAE BROWN EASTERDAY and Jay Calvin Helms were married at noon yesterday at the home of Comdr. and Mrs. William Francis Bullis of Washington. A reception followed immediately afterward. The Rev. Henry W. Snyder of St. Paul's Lutheran Church officiated.

Mrs. William F. Bullis was matron of honor, and J. Vernon Smith was best man. Miss Starr Bullis, godchild of the bride, was maid of honor.

Club Hears Story of Grenfell Mission

By Nicha Soure

"BE YE A real doctor, sir?"

When the 27-year-old man, who had just arrived on the snow-bound shores of Labrador, answered in the affirmative, the old resident said, "We hasn't got much money, sir, but we is very glad to see you."

On that day in 1892 England lost a doctor and Labrador gained one in the person of Dr. Wilfred Grenfell who later was to be knighted for his work in Newfoundland and Labrador at the "Gr.nfell Mission."

Miss Eleanor Cushman, secretary of the Grenfell Association with headquarters in New York City and a personal secretary to Sir Wilfred for eight years, described the works of the early days of the Mission at the meeting of the Soroptimist Club yesterday.

When the doctor stepped ashore from the 90-ton schooner over 50 years ago, he found a country without medicine, doctors or schools. One man was crippled for 20 years by a broken hip that had never been set. Since dark glasses were unavailable, people in Newfoundland and Labrador had very bad eyesight as a result of the glare of sun or the snow.

In those days Dr. Grenfell had a dream of bringing medical, economic and social aid to the inhabitants of northern Newfoundland and Labrador. Through his efforts schools and hospitals have been built and industries established "to help these people help themselves."

Poor Eating Habits

The eating habits of the people had to be changed in order to rid the country of scurvy, Miss Cushman reported. There was no meat (the inhabitants had never seen livestock), no milk, and the people refused to eat black bread because "it was made of dirty flour."

Although great advances have been made in the country through the work of the Grenfell Association in the past half a century, there is still a lot of work to be done. Today there are five hospitals, seven nursing stations over a 1200-mile tract of land, three schools and one home for children.

The "international staff" of three doctors, one dentist and five nurses, as well as one eye doctor during the summer, is from Canada, England and the United States.

Malnutrition has been almost conquered with the advent of livestock and greenhouses, but the biggest worry today is tuberculosis. "It would be a wonderful thing if we could have a sanatorium for these people," Miss Cushman said at the meeting.

Manned by voluntary contributions, the Grenfell Mission receives from the Needle Needlework Guild of America both new and used clothing for the inhabitants. The "alumni list" of volunteer men and women who have gone up to Labrador and Newfoundland, paying their own expenses as well as room and board when they get there, numbers over 2000.

These volunteers call themselves "wops," short for "without pay," according to Miss Cushman. The young men work unloading boats and doing the heavy labor around the mission while the girls work in the clothing stores and help in the recreation work.

'Mother Penguin Rhymes'

In relating some of the incidents around the mission, Miss Cushman said Sir Wilfred had difficulty in teaching the children the old nursery rhyme, "Mary had a little lamb."

Realizing the lack of livestock in this northern country was the reason for the blank expressions on the children's faces, the doctor changed the wording to 'Mary had a little seal."

Most of the children did not know how to play, according to Miss Cushman. Not realizing the competitive spirit of baseball, when one team made a run the other team was allowed to make one too so it would be "fair."

St. Anthony's Hospital at the Grenfell Mission is recognized by the American College of Surgeons, according to Miss Cushman, equipped with the latest drugs and facilities. But it is still difficult for the nurses to travel to all the surrounding sections of the country where they are needed. A nurse has to travel with a dog team and a rowboat in order to cross the ice on land and water, putting the dogs in the dory to cross rivers where the ice has melted.

The Grenfell Mission is paying dividends, Miss Cushman said, in the second generation. For example, the head nurse at the hospital is a Labrador girl, educated in the United States at the expense of the mission.

The immediate past president, Mrs. Edith Claude Jarvis, presided at the Soroptimist meeting. Two new members, Mrs. Mary S. Laber and Mrs. Gladys Jesselsohn, were given certificates of membership. Yesterday was the last meeting of the club until the fall season.

MISS MARTHA ROUNTREE (center back), owner and originator of the radio program, "Meet the Press" received her first glimpse of the Cora Rigby Bowl at the Women's National Press Club's installation reception held yesterday at the Statler Hotel. She looks on as the traditional president's bowl is being inspected by Miss Jane Stafford, medical editor of Science Service, incoming president (left), and Miss Dorothy Williams, outgoing president

Science Writer Jane Stafford Made Women's Press Club Head

Miss Jane Stafford, medical editor of Science Service, was installed as the 21st president of the Women's National Press Club yesterday at a gala party at the Statler. She succeeds Miss Dorothy Williams of the Washington Bureau, United Press.

In a colorful ceremony, the club's Cora Rigby Bowl was exchanged between the retiring and incoming president. The late Cora Rigby, head of the Christian Science Monitor Bureau here was the second president of the WNPC.

At the end of her term, Miss Rigby was presented a silver bowl for her leadership. In turn, she passed the bowl down to her successor. Hence, each succeeding president has given the bowl to her successor.

Other officers installed included Miss Ruth Crane, director of women's activities for WMAL, first vice president; Miss Eleni Sakes, fashion and beauty editor of the Washington Star, recording secretary; Mrs. Sarah McClendon, of the Sarah McClendon News Bureau, corresponding secretary, and Miss Margaret Davis, of the public relations staff of George Washington University, treasurer.

Miss Ruth Montgomery of the New York Daily News, who is vacationing in Europe, was inducted in absentia as first vice president; Miss Maxine Davis, magazine writer, who is also out of town, was installed as historian.

New board members inducted included Mrs. Mary Cottrell, Cottrell News Bureau; Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, magazine columnist; Mrs. Gladys Montgomery, Washington editor of Electronics and Nucleonics, Miss Josephine Hemphill, Department of Agriculture public relations; Miss Estelle G. Welsh, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Miss Josephine Ripley of the Christian Science Monitor, now on a European assignment.

Sharing honors with the incoming and outgoing officers were 57 members who joined the club during the past year. Mrs. Nancy Osgood, Radio Station WRC (NBC) presented the new members with rhymes.

British Envoy Sails Today To Visit Home

The British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Shewell Franks, is leaving today for London, sailing on the Queen Elizabeth. In England he will join Lady Franks and their two young daughters, who left Washington two weeks ago. The family will return the end of July, proceeding immediately to Nantucket for the remainder of the summer.

W. P. N. Edwards, British Counselor, and the Hon. Mrs. Edwards are leaving Washington soon to return to London. Parties in their honor are a daily occurance in their circle of friends.

Last Saturday Ambassador Franks entertained at a luncheon for them at the embassy.

The Attache for Colonial Affairs at the embassy and Mrs. Sabben-Clare are giving a cocktail party on July 5, and Sir Derick and Lady Hoyer Miller will entertain at cocktails on July 7. A joint cocktail party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will be given on July 9 by First Secretaries N. W. H. Gaydon, P. S. Stephens, and T. E. Bromley. Charles Campbell, director of British Information Services here, will give a cocktail party on July 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will sail from New York on the Britanic on July 14.

No Bathing Suit Yet? Get in the Swim!

By Peggy Preston

THOSE OF US who failed to buy a bathing suit early in the season are frustrated shoppers today. Swim suit stocks are already at low tide—and this with two months of good swimming weather ahead of us.

However, it is possible to find a nice one, provided you are not too insistent on a certain color, size or style. Make up your mind to be content with a one-piece royal blue, instead of the two-piece dusty pink you had set your heart on. If the size is not exactly right, resign yourself to letting out or taking in the seams. In other words, don't quibble if you locate a suitable suit. It is all but impossible for stores to guarantee reorders these days, for manufacturers are wrapped up in designing and making fall collections and have small thought for the lady who forgot to "shop early."

Cottons Plentiful

Brightest spot on the bathing suit horizon for shoppers are the "Nylastics" by Jantzen, which are still available in sizable numbers at a few stores. Cottons are still relatively plentiful, and these are important in that they are comparatively easy to alter.

The suits made of nylon, laton and rayon have a great deal to offer for the price. They are exceptionally comfortable, and are practical to the extreme.

Nylon's great strength makes possible lighter weight fabrics which still have the needed durability, and in elasticized versions offer maximum figure control with minimum weight.

Quick-Drying Fabric

The quick-drying quality of nylon is a particular asset in beach wear, eliminating the discomfort of sitting for long in a wet suit. And, if the garment is packed while damp, the fibers are not weakened.

If you are fortunate enough to discover a collection of swim suits large enough to allow you to be selective, keep in mind these rules, laid down by Rose Marie Reid, one of California's leading swim suit designers:

1. Buy your suit according to your dress size.
2. If you are too thin, try pastels to compliment your skin tones, soft shirring for camouflage and flattery, and a good inner bra for a well-rounded contour.
3. If you are tall, look for suits made on extra long lines, and adjustable straps.
4. If you are large enough to be self conscious about it, try and seek out a suit with some of the glamour devices to keep your figure under control. There are, for instance, deft diaphram designing to hide built in bras for firm support, "spare tires" and unattractive bulges; half-skirts in back as well as in front, princess paneling and stripes manipulated to minimize the waistline.

"SUNAIRE" is the name of this brief two-piecer, made of the newest of swim suit fabrics—"Nylastic," a revolutionary combination of nylon, laton and rayon. Lightweight, quick-drying and sturdy, it is soft-as-silk with two-way elastic action. Auxilliary straps are suppled with the suit and may be attached at either side of the bra and worn halter fashion. A Jantzen product, it is available in white and pastel shades, sizes from 11 to 17, in the Junior Miss Sportswear Department of Woodward & Lothrop's

COTTON plaid makes a cunning beach ensemble, consisting of shorts, bra and box coat. The latter is lined in terry cloth, straps button on, come with the boned bra. Colors of the plaid are blue and green. In sizes from 10 to 16, it is available at Peck & Peck

Who Was Smartest?

Air Force Cadet Merges His Toughest Competition, Proving Tactical Ability

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

DOWN near San Antonio, Tex., at Lackland Field, where Air Force enlistees of both sexes are trained, occurred a most romantic happening. Some 16 young members of the women in the Air Force were sent to the officers' training school. They competed, of course, on equal footing with their male counterparts. As often happens when smart females compete against men, they work harder to come out on top.

Lead student in the class was a most attractive WAAF. Number 2 was an equally attractive Air Force man. The graduation, at which the WAAF was to be conspicuously honored, is set for today.

A week or so ago, those of sensitive nature couldn't help but notice that Number 1 and Number 2 students were decidedly "that way" about each other.

The denouement came unexpectedly last week. They announced their engagement and impending marriage. Then, as a gesture to supposed masculine superiority, the WAAF resigned so that her future bridegroom could shine in first place!

Misses Muschlitz, Tennant, Newell to Be Brides

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Muschlitz of Silver Spring have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Dorothy Muschlitz, to Charles Thomas Hellmuth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Raymond Hellmuth of Alexandria.

Miss Muschlitz attended Montgomery Junior College and Maryland University, where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority. Mr. Hellmuth served overseas with the Twenty-fourth Infantry division. He was graduated from the Bullis Preparatory School and is now a senior honor student at the University of Notre Dame.

The marriage will take place on August 27.

Tennant—Gorman

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander A. Tennant announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to William Joseph Gorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Gorman of Monessen, Pa.

The bride-elect is a senior at St. Mary's College of Holy Cross in Indiana. Mr. Gorman is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame. He served in the European Theater of Operations and is at present engaged in engineering services in Washington.

Newell—Parsons

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling R. Newell announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Ann, to Robert Parsons of Westfield, Pa. Both Miss Newell and Mrs. Parsons were recently graduated from Alfred University. The wedding will take place this summer.

About Removing Stains

Could you tell me the best way to remove the annoying little spots and stains made by insects on laundry hanging on the line (always on the best and whitest things)? Sponging and rubbing with water is a lengthy process and does not always take them out. E. L.

To remove the stains from cotton and linen, if the stains are pretty much all over the pieces, wash them in sudsy water to which a cup of household bleach to each washer of water has been added. If there are not many spots you could dampen them with cold water and sprinkle powdered sodium perborate on them. This is mild bleach which is safe to use on all materials, including rayon and wool. Allow the perborate to remain on the stain for an hour or so and completely rinse.

We have spilled milk on a plain green upholstered living room chair. An attempt to remove the spot with shampoo was unsuccessful. Can you suggest something to use? B. L. C.

If it appears that some of the grease from the milk still remains, this can be removed by applying carbon tetrachloride which has been mixed into corn meal to make it moist. Rub the meal into the stain, let stand until dry and brush away or remove with brush attachment of vacuum cleaner. Repeat as long as you see improvement. When the fat has been completely removed, shampooing the chair with one of the upholstery shampoos should completely remove it.

Can you suggest how I can mend rubber gloves in which a hole has been cut? A. B. C.

If you plan to use the gloves in water, you may not have much success attaching a patch to the cut. However, you might try attaching a piece from an old glove to the reverse side with a good rubber cement. Or, you might find a tire patch successful.

Would you help me to decide what covering to put on my kitchen floor? Are asphalt tile or inlaid linoleum the best coverings or are there still others? I would like something that comes in a light shade, preferably tan and green to match the walls and woodwork in my kitchen. A Reader.

Linoleum is a more suitable cover for kitchen floors than asphalt tile would be. Generally speaking, there are four types of linoleum: inlaid, jaspe, plain linoleum and printed. In the best grades the colors go entirely through to the back. The inlaid has colors going through to the back to form a pattern. The jaspe is several colors in a watermark or mottled effect, but without pattern. The plain comes in solid colors and is less costly than the above two, but just as durable, grade for grade. The printed linoleum has the pattern printed on top and is the least expensive. Because the design in printed linoleum comes off with wear, it is not as durable as those which have the color all the way through. There are different thicknesses in each type; the thicker it is the better wearing the linoleum will be. Thickness must be checked in making your choice.

You should be able to find your color scheme in all types of linoleum.

To get the best wear from your linoleum, be sure the floor on which it is laid is absolutely smooth. Raised places will cause the linoleum to wear there first. Also, linoleum gives better wear with infrequent washings. When washing it use a minimum of water so it doesn't have a chance to soak under the linoleum and loosen it. Using wax or a linoleum gloss on the floor will protect it and reduce the need for washing.

Check Your Own Choices!

Weight, Food Habits Run Close Parallel

By Ida Jean Kain

TELL me your food habits, and I can come pretty close to telling you what you weigh. That's a broad statement, and sometimes the answer may be away off, but by and large we do take on our food habits—and the scales prove it.

Just for a lark, check your food choices and see if they don't tally with your weight. Dinner is the important meal, so that is the meal we'll take. The rule of the game is that in the following menu you make the choice according to habit, that is, according to your usual pattern of eating.

DINNER

Soups: choice of cream soup, vegetable soup, bouillon
Main course: choice of roast duckling, roast beef, baked ham with raisin sauce, lamb chops, veal cutlet, chicken broiler
Vegetables: choice of 3—Potatoes: French fried, candied sweet potatoes, mashed Broccoli with Hollandaise sauce, creamed onions, succotash, string beans, spinach, turnips
(Salad may replace one vegetable)
Desserts: assorted cakes and pies, pie a la mode, French pastry, half grapefruit, fruit compote, orange ice, crackers and cheese
Specialty of the house: ice cream cake with fudge sauce.

IF YOUR regular choice would be something like this: cream soup, the duck or ham, sweet potatoes or French fries, the vegetable with sauce and perhaps succotash, hot rolls, buttered, topped off with a rich dessert—you are overweight, from 15 to 20 pounds past pleasing. If your choice is a double dessert with a good-sized dinner, and you quite often eat that way, chances are your weight is 20 to 30 pounds over streamlines.

If you choose bouillon; lamb, veal, chicken or beef; either potatoes or one roll, vegetables without sauce and a salad; and for dessert, fruit, fruit ice or crackers and cheese—and this is your regular way of eating—chances are your weight is around normal. If these food habits are from actual preference, your weight is slightly below normal; if it is from calorie discretion and you don't say "just this once" too often, your weight is just slightly above normal, less than 10 per cent above.

Of course it isn't one meat that determines your weight—it's the day-to-day choice of food. And in the final analysis, you really choose to be fat, thin or normal weight.

Am I right?

Indirect Threats

Most of us realize that threatening a child with a policeman or a bogeyman is unwise. We recognize that even if we secure the behavior we want through such a method, it won't make up for the fear that is likely to be aroused. Or we soon find that some of our children learn to pay no attention to such idle threats.

But even when ruling out the bogeyman, we may threaten children in other ways almost without realizing we are doing it. For instance, witness the mother who says, "If you don't eat your lunch you won't grow up to be as big as your daddy." Or the father who promises some special treat IF Susanne will do this or that. Actually, in such situation, we are holding a club over the child's head, telling him in effect that if he doesn't act as we wish him to, something unpleasant will happen to him.

No one can deny that we parents often are at our wit's ends to know how we can get the child to do what we believe he should. It's a real temptation to use a shortcut method that seems to get results. In the long run, though, such indirect threats have an undesirable effect.

Peach-Pineapple Pie Is 'Extra Special'

Made with cream cheese, frozen peaches and pinapple, here's "extra-special" pie—with that "extra-special" flavor—for that "extra-special occasion.

Pineapple-Peach Cheese Pie

- 1 package frozen peaches
- 1 package frozen pineapple
- ½ pound package of cream cheese
- 3 eggs
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon almond flavoring
- 1 cup heavy sour cream
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon brand or sherry, optional but desirable

Defrost fruit according to instructions on package; drain. Put drained peaches through seive or mash with fork. Beat cheese, eggs and sugar together; add flavoring and 1 cup peach pulp. Pour into a 9-inch unbaked pastry shell. Bake 325 degrees for 25 to 35 minutes or until firm. Cool.

Mix sour cream, 2 tablespoons sugar and brandy. Spread over top of cooled pie. Return to 375 degree-400 degree oven for 15 minutes or until sour cream topping is firm. Garnish with cubes of pineapple—serve warm or cold—small portions, please!—with coffee. Serves eight or more.

Fine Houses Are Not Always Fine Homes, Research Shows

San Francisco, June 29.—Family life research as a new field of endeavor for home economists and some of the experiments now underway to develop this type of research were described here today by Dr. Gertrude E. Chittenden.

Speaking before members of the American Home Economics Association, Dr. Chittenden said the research work done so far is only a beginning in the attempt to discover the "particular patterns of relationships among persons living in families." Dr. Chittenden is head of the department of child development at Iowa State College.

Accent on Economics

Dr. Chittenden explained that most of the research carried out in the family field so far has dealt with determining the economic status of the family, the physical environment of the home and the type of work performed in the home.

"There is little evidence," she said, "to bear out the assumption that as the economic status and physical environment of the home are improved, the quality of living and the welfare of individuals are automatically improved."

Research to date indicates that the attitudes of family members as they affect the general atmosphere of the home are more important to the personal adjustment and development of family members than are the more physical aspects of the home, she added.

Dr. Katharine Whiteside-Taylor, coordinator of Family Life Education in the Long Beach City College of Long Beach, Calif., told an afternoon session of the AHEA yesterday that "cooperative play groups are the most fruitful source of significant education for family life."

Such cooperative play groups represent a democratic effort to solve a common problem, she continued, and have "unlimited potentials as vital centers of education for family life."

Dr. Whiteside-Taylor discussed the preschool parents' observation classes in Long Beach which have been incorporated into the general adult division of the Long Beach City College, a part of the public school system of Long Beach.

Family-Centered Areas

Under skilled leaders the parents make written records of the behavior of their children in a group, she said, with the records being analyzed later in a class to develop better understanding of the nature and needs of preschool children at successive levels of development.

It is the goal of the Board of Education in Long Beach to sponsor training for family life for all ages of the population from preschoolers through grandparents and to work toward the establishment of communities which Dr. Whiteside-Taylor described as "family-centered."

Hume School P-TA Hits Lag On New Site

By Don Olesen

With Arlington's venerable Hume School facing the most serious overcrowding in its history this fall, the school's P-TA yesterday charged the County School Board has "done nothing" toward picking a new school site.

The accusation was made in a letter from the P-TA executive committee to the School Board made public yesterday. The board says it never received the letter.

The P-TA says 145 students were crowded into the school's three classrooms during the past year, and the building is a "highly dangerous fire hazard." This fall attendance may run as high as 165.

Money to build a new Hume School on a more adequate site was voted in a May, 1947, bond issue. More recently, the School Board scheduled the new Hume School for completion by next February.

Five months ago, condemnation of an 8-acre site on S. 24th st. near Ode and Nash sts. was contemplated when the owner of most of the land refused to sell. Since then, the P-TA charged, the board has permitted "one delay after another" with no condemnation action yet instituted. School Consultant E. J. Braun, admits the school will not be ready in February.

School Board Chairman Barnard Joy said the delay was due to a "misunderstanding" between the people working on the case as to exact boundaries of the property.

Since the board "is faced with the slow process of obtaining the land by condemnation," the P-TA letter said, the board should pick another "suitable site" such as the one of nearly 10 acres on S. 23d st. near Army-Navy dr.

Braun said the State Board of Education approved the S. 24th st. site, and the 23d st. property, which is sloping, would require expensive grading, new topsoil, and a retaining wall, and would be "far less satisfactory than the other site."

Admitting condemnation was slow, Braun declared: "You're not building the Hume School for next year's children—you're building it for many, many years to come."

Writ Denied Dad to Free Son

An Iowa lawyer put up a futile battle yesterday in District Court to get his son out of an Army stockade where he was sent for black market operations in Japan.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff refused to issue a writ of habeas corpus for the son, Arthur Curtis Bush, 27-year-old former editorial analyist, but offered his sympathy to the father, grey-haired Curtis Bush of Davenport, Iowa.

The son was earning $5600 a year with the War Department in Tokio when in 1947 he suddenly left for America. On September 30, 1948, while enroute to Siam to accept employment, his plane landed in Tokio, the father said.

He was arrested immediately and later was tried for having illegally sold in 1947 a quantity of hose, whiskey, coffee, penicillin, saccarin and streptomycin. A Provost Court sentenced him to a year confinement and fined him 75,000 yen.

The father told the court that he has "done little else" since September, 1948 but fight for the son. His tone throughout the hearing yesterday was tragic but he never used an emotional word. It was all in legal language as he declared that his son's Constitutional rights had been violated.

In ruling against the son, Judge Holtzoff said "I realize you are under a strain because the petitioner is a member of your immediate family."

The elder Bush said he didn't know whether he would appeal.

But outside the courtroom, he said to two Army majors who were part of the Government counsel in the case:

"So help me, if it takes as long as I live, I'll harpoon those guys in the Pentagon."

Delta Socialite Found Guilty in Mother's Slaying

Greenville, Miss., June 29 (AP).—Mrs. John Dickins, member of a wealthy Delta plantation family, was found guilty today of the rose shears murder of her mother.

An all-male jury disagreed as to punishment, making a life sentence mandatory under Mississippi law.

Circuit Court Judge Arthur Jordan immediately passed sentence. Later he denied a motion for a new trial and refused a petition for immediate bail. He granted an appeal to the State Supreme Court and announced he would take the bail bond plea under advisement.

The 43-year-old socialite sportswoman and cotton planter was charged with hacking her frail 69-year-old mother, Mrs. Idella Long Thompson, to death last November 17 in the bathroom of her mother's fashionable Leland, Miss., home.

Mrs. Thompson was the widow of a former president of the Mississippi Levee Board.

County Awards Contracts For School Construction

Contracts for five additions to Prince Georges County schools were awarded yesterday by the County Board of Education.

Contract for construction of a four-classroom, multipurpose room and kitchen, a teachers' room and clinic addition to Ager Road Elementary School was awarded to the B. & J. Construction Co. of Washington with a low bid of $110,265.

W. M. Chappell Inc., of Washington was low bidder on three other projects. They were Suitland Elementary, four classrooms and addition to the heating plant, $58,369; Oxon Hill Negro Elementary, two classrooms, teachers' room and clinic, $28,000; and District Heights Elementary, four classrooms, multipurpose room and kitchen, storage room, toilets, teachers' room and clinic, $80,834.

Whalen & Purdy, Inc., of Washington won the contract for installation of complete heating and sewage facilities for the eight-room Lincoln Negro elementary school at Buena Vista, plus new toilets, offices and a teachers' room, with a low bid of $63,500.

Preliminary drawings for a new 10-classroom, multipurpose room and kitchen, library and clinic building for the Mount Rainier-Brentwood area were approved. The board meeting was held in Upper Marlboro.

The board, in other actions, awarded a scholarship to Morgan State College to Lloyd J. Tilghman, 4540 Bennett st., North Brentwood, high scorer in the competitive examination.

Safety Engineers To See Sinclair Film

The Washington chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers will meet at 6:30 p. m. today in the Officers Club of the Naval Gun Factory.

Program features will include a movie film, "Miracle in Paradise Valley," prepared by the Sinclair Refining Co., and reports from the group's committees on inter-industry safety and war trophy safety.

At Olney Theater

'Guy Madison Loves Mary MacArthur'

"GUY MADISON LOVES MARY MacARTHUR" at the Olney this week. Lest half the teenagers in the land learn of this and feel their Guy is being untrue to them, let them also learn that he is doing it for the sake of acting experience, in the cleverly contrived piece of froth written by Norman Krasna.

Madison certainly needs the experience. He is a personable young man who has had stardom thrust upon him by an adoring public whose critical acumen must exist in an inverse ratio to the good looks of their hero. Let it be here understood: Madison is no actor; at least, not yet.

This week he is being exposed to acting with legitimate stage performers and the difference between the quality of their work and his is clearly discernible. He can learn a great deal through this exposure. We're sure he shall, since he seems to be trying very hard to make his character of Sergt. John Lawrence a likable, confused young man who wants very much to marry Mary McKinley.

As the girl who has waited three years for John to return from the war, Mary MacArthur is a case in point of exposure to the legitimate stage acting-disciplines. Last year she was self-conscious and unsure when she first appeared at Olney. This year she has shown a marked improvement in her three appearances so far. As the Mary of the title role she is being given her first major part this season. She is showing that she is versatile, having broken from the cockney types of her previous appearances; she is showing a developing sense of comedy timing; she is showing the ability to improve. Granted, she has a long way to go, since she is still nervous and somewhat stiff when the focus of attention is not on her; like Madison, she should develop the feel of being in a scene, of being a part of it, always reacting to the moods and nuances of the dramatic moment, rather than being a nervous observer, self-conscious of the presence of the audience.

Take Dean Harens

As an example of an actor who is always in a scene, Dean Harens is a good one to study. His reactions might sometimes seem overdone or extended but they are there; he is constantly trying to help keep the dramatic action alive. As Fred Taylor, the boy who saves John from death on the battlefield and to whom John feels indebted, Harens is fortunate in having one of the funniest roles in the play. Still, he does not throw it away; he gets all the laughs he can out of the part. Rather than playing it as a comedic conception, Harens' Taylor is farcical and this disparate element is readily apparent when seen against the naturalistic, un-styled performance of Madison and MacArthur.

As the parents of Mary, Morton L. Stevens and Viola Roache are very fine. It is from troupers such as these that Madison and his young colleagues can learn much. Their timing, their projection, their bodily control, their participation in a scene, all reflect the value of constantly working before live audiences over a long period of time.

THE CAST

Mary McKinley	Mary MacArthur
Olive Dugan	Philippa Bevans
Fred Taylor	Dean Harens
John Lawrence	Guy Madison
Senator James McKinley	Morton L. Stevens
Mrs. Phyllis McKinley	Viola Roache
Lt. Victor O'Leary	Porter Van Zandt
George Beechwood	William Futch
Lily Herbish	Vicki Marsden
Harwood Biddle	Donald Foster

Vicki Marsden, as Lili Herbish, the British girl whom John marries so she can come to this country to be reunited with her beloved Fred (who has married and is expecting a baby during the course of the play), is another good example of professional polish. Although Lili is not onstage too often, when she is, Miss Marsden makes you aware of her presence with a forceful extroversion which is the root of Lili's character.

Beechwood Good

In lesser roles, George Beechwood does exceedingly well with the smallest role in the play, the Red Cross man who brings Lili to her husband, John. Donald Foster, as General Biddle, is to be congratulated for bringing the stage to life whenever he is on it.

Porter Van Zandt, as the erstwhile Lieutenant O'Leary, now Paramount usher, plays his part in a minor key. He has failed to exploit many of the comic aspects of his role. As it is, he is adequate when he could have been very good. However, it is obvious that Van Zandt is not completely to blame.

More so than any other play is a comedy the reflection of a director's ingenuity and imagination. "John Loves Mary" is almost a farce, but muchly a comedy of manners. Actually it is a mixture of both; much of the fun relies on physical action, much of it on the line wit. The latter is fairly easy to discern, since the playwright has already supplied it; the former is not, since the director must provide it. Sad to say, Harry Ellerbe has not done so. Many potential laughs are frittered away by failing to supply any inventive business for the actors; pictorial compositions are often so bad that the audience has difficulty in seeing the actor who is speaking; movement is confined to sitting down on and getting up from the two sofas and two chairs in S. Syrjala's striking hotel-apartment set.

Luckily enough for "John Loves Mary," it does not have to rely too much on the director; it is inherently a funny play and you can have much fun this week out at Olney if you go with an open mind and a light heart.

JOHN M. COPPINGER.

"TULSA," now in its fourth week at the Trans-Lux, features Robert Preston and Susan Hayward

'The Big Steal' Movie Proves Fast and Exciting

"THE BIG STEAL" should have been called the "Long Chase," because that's what it is: 71 minutes of Robert Mitchum and Jane Greer chasing Patric Knowles, being chased by William Bendix. It's fast and exciting most of the time.

Don Siegel has directed this new RKO release now at Keith's. He has built a suspenseful film around the attempt of Robert Mitchum, as Duke Holliday, to retrieve his honor and an Army bankroll stolen from him by Patric Knowles. Jane Greer turns up as a frill who's been dodging around with Knowles until he gives her the double-cross. Against her will she teams up with Bob, who is busy trying to dodge Bendix, who represents the United States Army. How it al comes out is very wry and unexpected.

The picture could be called a trip through Mexico, since all of the scenes were shot there. This realistic setting helps give a sharp flavor to this highly melodramatic, often racy, mystery thriller.

West Maryland Chicken Tour Set Friday

Hagerstown, Md., June 29 (AP).—The State Poultry Council came to Hagerstown tonight to be informed that western Maryland has plenty of fowl, too.

While the Eastern Shore is generally considered the concentrated area for poultry, members of the council will learn that it is quite an industry in this section also.

They'll be shown on an all-day tour Friday. Among the several farms they will visit in Maryland and nearby Pennsylvania are:

Alvey S. Baer at Maugansville, which has almost 20,000 chickens, chicks and turkeys; Adam R. Martin at Maugansville where 12,000 turkeys are being raised; Fiery Poultry Farm and Hatchery at Smithburg which has a 31,000 capacity.

The directors of the Poultry Council met tonight to start the eighteenth annual summer meeting. All day Thursday the council will hear technical talks relating to the poultry industry.

The busy day will wind up with a banquet, featuring fried chicken a la Maryland.

13 Nations Agree On Wheat Pact

The State Department announced last night that 13 importing nations have notified the United States of their ratification of the international wheat agreement.

The 13 nations have agreed to buy 284,506,545 bushels of wheat annually from exporting nations.

Austria, South Africa, The Netherlands and Peru gave notice of ratification yesterday. Others which already had given notification were Belgium, Ceylon, Ireland, Israel, New Zealand, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

In addition to Canada and the United States, other exporting countries in the agreement are Australia, France and Hungary.

Antistrike Act Repealed By Missouri Senate

Jefferson City, Mo., June 29 (U.P.).—An eight-hour filibuster during which two Senators were arrested and legislative doors were padlocked for the first time in Missouri history ended today with repeal of the State's anti-strike law.

After a stormy session that lasted from dusk to dawn the Senate voted, 18 to 12, to repeal the two-year-old Madison Act which prohibited jurisdictional and sympathy strikes, secondary boycotts and strikes against the Government.

Minority Republicans staged the filibuster in an effort to force recess.

Million Dollar Fire Laid to Arsonist

Barberton, Ohio, June 29 (AP).—A million-dollar fire destroyed the American Vitrified Products Co. plant in this city's north end today, and Fire Chief E. H. Perry said the blaze "was started by an arsonist."

In addition to a loss of about $900,000 for the company, which makes sewer pipe, about $100,000 worth of rubber toys and other goods stored in the building by the Sun Rubber Co. of Barberton were destroyed.

Bomb Explosion Blows Car High as 9 Floors

The car, a 1948 sedan, was unoccupied at the time.

Police were at a loss to account for the blast. They said the car had been used by Herbert Taina and Jerome Friedman, both of Newark, N. J., who were here on business for a Newark linen supply company.

20 Pct. of Cases Held Valid for High Court

Los Angeles, June 29 (AP).—Only 20 per cent of the cases brought before it really justify consideration by the United States Supreme Court, Associate Justice Harold H. Burton declared today.

The jurist told judges of nine Western States that:

"At least 60 per cent of the cases brought before the U. S. Supreme Court should never have been taken there. Another 20 per cent are in the doubtful class. And only 20 per cent are valid cases for the high tribunal."

Steel Strike July 15 Held 'Possibility'

Buffalo, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—A Nationwide steel strike July 15 is "a strong possibility," Joseph P. Molony, regional director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO) said tonight.

Molony also is chairman of the national CIO negotiating committee for the Bethlehem Steel Co.

"The steel industry," Molony said, "shows an unwillingness to grant pensions and other benefits to employes. In fact they are extremely reluctant to discuss the matters at all."

Canadian Wholesale Prices Drop in May

Ottawa, June 29 (U.P.).—Wholesale prices dropped in Canada during May for everything except vegetables, iron products and some building trade materials, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The wholesale price index was 156.4 in May, compared with 157.5 in April and a peak of 159.6 last December, the bureau said. This was still 6 points higher than for the same month last year.

2 Negro Scholars Take Top Honors At Harvard, Brown

Boston, June 29 (AP). — Two Negro scholars today won academic "first" honors at two New England universities.

Harvard University announced appointment of the first Negro professor in its more than 300-year-history—Dr. William A. Hinton, clinical professor of bacteriology and immunology in the Medical School.

Brown University announced a visiting professorship in English for alumnus Jay Saunders Redding of Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., and said he was the first Negro ever appointed to the Brown faculty.

Dr. Hinton has been on the Harvard medical staff for more than 25 years and is an authority on venereal disease, in which field he has contributed the Hinton and the Davies-Hinton tests.

Professor Redding will lecture on "The Negro in American Literature."

Doctor Declines To Introduce Barkley at Dinner

Greenville, S. C., June 29 (AP).—The physician chosen to introduce Alben Barkley when the Vice President speaks at a Democratic Party "harmony" dinner Friday has declined because of "political agitation" surrounding the event.

Dr. W. L. (Buck) Pressley of nearby Due West, the American Medical Association's "Family Doctor of the Year" in 1948, today wired the dinner's sponsors:

"When I accepted the invitation . . . I was assured there was no special political significance associated with this meeting. The past few days have revealed increasing political agitation. Hence I will have to decline the invitation. I regret having to do this, for I hold Mr. Barkley in high esteem."

The $15-a-plate dinner will be held in Columbia. Its sponsors, officials of the South Carolina's Democratic Party group which supported President Truman, say it is intended to close the gap between the state's divided Democrats.

Turbine Speeds To U. S. Mark In Upset at Detroit

Detroit, June 29 (AP).—S. M. Newmeyer's Tubine, making his first start on the turf course at Detroit Fairgrounds, blazed his way to a new American record today.

The Maryland-owned 7-year-old ran the mile and a sixteenth on the grass in 1:42 2/5 to win the $7500 added St. Clair Handicap by a nose from S. I. Crew's Castle Beau. Hal Price Headley's Pellicle, the 2-1 favorite, was two lengths behind in third place.

Turbine, a 14-1 shot, clipped almost a full second off the Old American record of 1:43 1/5. It was set by Grasshopper II at Hialeath Park in 1944.

Maryland Group Picks Candidates In 'Boys State'

Port Deposit, Md., June 29 (AP).—Schoolboy citizens of "Boys State" held nominating conventions today and picked candidates for governor and other State offices.

The general elections will be held tomorrow.

Named gubernatorial candidate of the Federalist Party was Carroll Campbell, jr., of East Riverdale, Md. He defeated William Lancaster, Mt. Savage, and Robert James, Baltimore.

The standard bearer of the Constitutionalist Party is Warren Jackox, Baltimore. He was picked over Ragan Carpenter, also of Baltimore, to make the race for the governorship.

Sponsoring "Boys State" — a sort of training school in government and citizenship—is the American Legion.

Move to Split Deaf, Blind School Aided

Richmond, Va., June 29 (AP).—A legislative study committee today heard considerable support expressed for separation of the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blindat Staunton into two institutions.

The strongest plea for separate schools came from the Virginia Association for the Deaf, which long has advocated such action. At a public hearing conducted by a Virginia advisory legislative council committee studying separation of the schools, the VAD presented statements and other matter supporting its position.

Garner Brothers Face Execution on July 15

Judge Richmond B. Keech yesterday set July 15 as the execution date of Lawrence J. Garner, 24, and his brother, George A. Garner, 25.

The brothers were convicted last year in District Court of the hold-up murder of Taxicab Driver Howard Jones, 27, of 417 Irving st. nw., in February, 1948.

The Supreme Court has refused to act in the case. The President will be petitioned for executive clemency, it was announced in court.

Bookie's Phone Calls Go to Church Office

Indianapolis, June 29 (AP).—A typographical error on a business card cost a horse bookie a lot of business today.

The bookie must have moved and notified his patrons his new telephone number was Franklin 2134. He couldn't have done much worse.

That's the number of the Indiana Council of Churches.

Moisture Is Key Word in Maryland Weather Report

By The Associated Press

Moisture is the key word in this week's crop and weather report issued by the Department of Agriculture, the University of Maryland extension service and the Weather Bureau.

Lack of moisture is "becoming extremely critical" in some sections of the Eastern Shore, the report said. Other parts of the State have had adequate rainfall, however, and along with hot and humid weather has resulted in excellent crop growth.

Suffering the most damage, the report said, were potatoes and fruit, in areas which have not received enough rain.

Good harvests were reported for small grains, hay and snap beans. Corn, soybeans and tobacco are still making excellent progress.

Good development was also reported for cantaloupes and watermelons, lima beans, cucumbers and tomatoes.

Streams Swollen By Rains Overrun Banks in Virginia

Richmond, June 29 (AP). — Rain-swollen streams overran their banks in several sections of Virginia today. Blocking numerous secondary roads and at least one primary highway.

The State Highway Department said road damages in Southern Virginia alone might run to $30,000. The flood waters were expected to recede by Thursday morning, leaving all routes open to traffic except a few across which bridges were washed away.

A cloudburst in the southwest mountain areas Tuesday night and early today brought the initial reports from Roanoke, Floyd, and Montgomery counties. In Henry County near Bassett, primary Route 57 and all secondary routes were blocked by the overflowing South River. An 80-foot steel bridge was washed out across Otter Creek on Route 40, together with a 50-foot fill at Starry Creek, east of Ferrum, and a 22-foot span across a creek on Route 605.

1949 Red Cross Goal Reported Oversubscribed

Atlantic City, N. J., June 29.—Royal C. Agne, national director of the Red Cross fund-raising committee, said today the Red Cross 1949 goal of sixty million dollars has been oversubscribed by $7,500,000.

Agne told the annual convention of the National Red Cross Americans will be asked to contribute from sixty million to eighty million dollars annually for the next five years. Agne said postwar relief costs continue to be high.

Frank T. Cleverley, administrator for foreign operations of the Red Cross, said during the past year $1,700,000 in supplies and equipment were made available to Red Cross societies of other countries.

Henry W. Dunning of Geneva, Switzerland, executive secretary of the League of Red Cross Societies, said there are now 100 million Red Cross members in 68 countries.

Dunning said one of the major jobs of the International Red Cross in the past year was providing relief for "about one million Arabs," refugees of the war in Palestine.

S.C. Judge Cracks Down On Boys' KKK Prank

Gaffney, S. C., June 29 (U.P.).—Three teen-age boys who burned a cross here in prankish imitation of the Ku Klux Klan today had a month to become expert on the subject of Klan activity.

A magistrate sentenced them not only to pay $25 fines but to write 20-page essays on the KKK within 30 days.

Libertytown Citizens Refuse Town Title

Libertytown, Md., June 29 (AP).—Residents of Libertytown in Frederick County have decided they don't want to be a "town" in the eyes of the law. They voted 120 to 94 yesterday against a proposal to incorporate. Opponents had argued that town officials would be a needless expense.

Price Guarantee On Wheat Is Cut 4 Cents a Bushel

By the United Press

The Government yesterday announced a 4-cent cut—from $2 to $1.96 a bushel—on its price guarantee to farmers for this year's wheat crop.

The cut reflects a drop in the parity price for wheat since last June. Wheat parity came down in the general price declines, on farm products and manufactured goods since that time.

(Parity is a standard calculated to establish a price fair to both farmers and consumers. In the case of wheat, it means a price that will give farmers the same purchasing power per bushel as they had in the 1909-14 base period. The Agriculture Department is required by law to support the price of wheat each year at 90 per cent of June parity.)

Wheat parity was calculated at $2.17 this month. That means an average support price of $1.96 a bushel on a national average, compared with $2 for last year.

Gov. Dewey Says He Won't Seek Wagner's Seat

Albany, N. Y., June 29 (AP).—Gov. Thomas A. Dewey today definitely eliminated himself as a prospective candidate to succeed U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, veteran New Deal Democrat who resigned yesterday.

Dewey, the defeated GOP presidential candidate last fall, was asked at a news conference:

"Do you plan to run for the United States Senate this year?"

"No," he said flatly.

Dewey said he expected to make an interim appointment of a Senator "in the near future."

He ruled himself out as a prospective choice for this appointment.

Dewey was asked whether the interim appointee, who would serve until December 1, presumably would be the Republican candidate in November to fill the remainder of Wagner's six-year term expiring January 3, 1951.

He said, "Not necessarily at all."

Man Pleads Innocent In Double Murder Case

Tappahannock, Va., June 29 (AP). — Landy David McGalliard pleaded innocent to double murder charges today while court officials still were attempting, without success, to find a jury to try him.

Only seven men out of a panel of 40 which reported today were qualified to sit in judgment on the 28-year-old North Carolinian accused of slaying Frank and Helen Spindle early in March.

Judge E. Hugh Smith ordered a panel of 70 to be summoned into Essex County Circuit Court tomorrow. Out of this panel five more jurors, plus two alternates, must be selected.

Two Counties Seek Highway Work Bids

Baltimore, June 29 (AP).—Contractors were invited today to submit bids on highway resurfacing jobs in Anne Arundel and Montgomery counties.

The State Roads Commission will open the bids July 12. One job calls for concrete resurfacing of one mile of the Eastport-Bay Ridge Road (State Route 181). The other is to resurface three-tenths of a mile of Bradley Boulevard (State Route 191) and 1.1 miles of Leland street (State Route 82).

Foreign Farmers To Tour Maryland

Frederick, Md., June 29 (AP).—Some 100 farmers from 18 foreign countries are to tour Washington, Frederick, and Montgomery Counties tomorrow as guests of the Maryland Farm Bureau.

The foreign farmers were delegates to the recent International Federation of Agricultural Producers convention in Canada and are now touring the United States. They are scheduled to make various stops in Maryland en route from Shepherdstown, W. Va., to Washington.

Detector Finds Ring

London, Ont., June 29 (U.P.).—The army dragged out a mine detector today to help Jeanette Putnam find her engagement ring. She said she lost it playing baseball.

What's the Verdict?

DEFECTIVE STAIR

Q. The laundry equipment in a large house was in the basement. The steps to the basement were wooden, and one of them had come loose. There was no danger unless someone stepped on a particular part of the loose step, in which case the end of the board would fly up. Everybody in the house knew the trouble spot, and avoided it. The wife tried to get her hus- band to fix the step, but he never did. Each time a new laundress came, the wife pointed out the trouble spot, until the plaintiff was hired as a maid. Nobody ever told her about the step, and finally one day she stepped on the sensi- tive spot, the board flew up and injured her side. She claims damages. Is she entitled to them?

A. The answer to this is that persons employed in households are just as much entitled to safe working conditions as persons em- ployed in stores and factories. If anything they are entitled to ex- pect safer conditions. The ques- tion of whether the new maid is entitled to damages hinges on whether the employing family was negligent. All the facts point in- evitably to negligence—knowledge of the danger, failure to repair, failure to warn . . . The laundress recovers.—F. L. D.

The Lyons Den By Leonard Lyons

FERENC MOLNAR sat with some of his old Hungarian friends, who told him that many of their colleagues, who had obtained American citizenship, were joining the exodus of vacationers to Europe this summer. "Will you too go to Europe this year?" Molnar was asked . . . Molnar shook his head and said "I like it here" . . . "But don't you like Europe anymore?" he was asked . . . "Oh, yes. Very much," said Molnar. "To be specific about my feelings toward Europe, I must borrow an American expression from Hollywood—we are divorced, but are the best of friends."

Lyons

A UNIQUE kind of chain letter is making the rounds in New York—a chain-letter to Federal Judge Medina, expressing confidence in his patient handling of the 11 Red defendants now on trial, by way of counteracting the organized letters of attack against the jurist . . . Judge Ferdinand Pecora, with White House backing, still remains the favorite for the Democratic Mayoralty nomination . . . Justice McNally, a dark-horse for the Mayoralty, is favored by Clarence Neal, the deposed Tammany Hall leader, and Vito Marcantonio . . . Burns and Allen will arrive in New York next week, en route to an engagement in London's Palladium . . . During his European stay Salvador Dali will write a sequel to his "Secret Life," covering the past 10 years.

JUSTICE WM. O. DOUGLAS, flying to Israel last week, stopped for a day in Athens, where Foreign Minister Tsolidaris gave a dinner party for him, scheduled to begin at 8:30. Some American friends took Douglas to Attica for the afternoon, and under-estimated the length of the auto-drive. He didn't reach the Foreign Minister's home until 9:30 . . . Two hours earlier Mrs. Tsolidaris had received a phone call from an anonymous lady who sobbed: The judge won't be able to come to dinner tonight. He's sick." Mrs. Tsolidaris phoned the United States Embassy, but could get no news . . . "We now know who the caller was," Tsolidaris told Douglas, in relating the story of the phone-call. "She's a Communist, and her message was part of the war of nerves. In this part of the world they seize every opportunity to make all officials worry, worry, worry."

"INSIDE USA" grossed more money in Chicago last week than it did during any week of its New York run . . . Johnny Lindell, the Yankee outfielder, told a recruit: "The first thing you must remember is 'Never read the papers when your team loses' . . . London soon will see a production of "Carousel" . . . Serge Rubinstein, the financier convicted of draft-dodging, entranced a group of listeners at a party in China before the war. He told them about currency-dealings, how easy it was to make money with these international dealings. When he then said he was planning to go to America, a listener bet him $500 that within five years of his arrival in America he'd be indicted and would go to jail. Rubinstein hasn't paid the bet yet.

A member of the American Diplomatic Corps in Stockholm took his young daughter to a regatta, where they saw King Gustav remove his jacket and sit in his shirt sleeves. The little girl was introduced to His Majesty, and stared at his suspenders. "Do these surprise you?" said the King, snapping his suspenders. "I have to wear them, because trousers sag without suspenders or a belt—yes, even a King's."

FRIDAY afternoon Martha Stephenson Kemp Mature, the young widow of Hal Kemp and former wife of Victor Mature, married Hays Goetz, the MGM producer. They were married by Justice Ferdinand Pecora, who this month is presiding at the Lonely Hearts murder trial in the Bronx. The best man was Robert Goldstein, the movie executive who owns an interest in the Cleveland Indians. While they waited in Pecora's chambers in Bronx County Courthouse, they looked out the window, overlooking Yankee Stadium, and saw the Yankee-Tiger game . . . "Judge Pecora is ready," said a court attendant, inviting them into the office. But the wedding party waited—for this was the seventh inning and the Tigers had tied the score.

Barkley Jokes Liven Up Paris Talks

By Drew Pearson

When Secretary of State Acheson got back from Paris, he expressed his thanks to Vice President Barkley for his help at the Foreign Ministers' Conference. Barkley was mystified. It was news to him that he had been helping.

Barkley

Acheson then explained.

At the start of the Paris conference, the atmosphere was cold. Finally Acheson invited Foreign Minister Vishinsky to dinner. But even after cocktails the guests were aloof. So the Secretary of State decided to mellow the Foreign Minister of Russia with some of Alben Barkley's famous stories.

As a result Vishinsky was almost in tears. Even the interpreter had a hard time keeping a straight face. Acheson told every Barkley joke he could remember, and after the dinner was over, Vishinsky put one arm around Acheson's shoulder and remarked:

"I may not win anything negotiating with you, but it is certainly a pleasure to visit with you."

Barkley's Latest

One of Barkley's latest stories is about a Kentucky friend who helped him get elected to the House a quarter of a century ago. After the election the friend came around to tell him:

"I want you to know that I sweat, bled and almost died for you. There isn't anything I wouldn't do for you, and all I want is for you to be a great Congressman."

A few years later Barkley was elected to the Senate. Again his friend came to see him, and said:

"I want you to know that I sweat, bled and almost died for you and I know you are going to be a great Senator. There isn't anything else I want from you."

Finally, when Barkley was elected Vice President, his friend came back and this time he said:

"When you were elected to the House of Representatives, I did my best to help you. When you were elected to the Senate, I went down the line for you again. I also sweat, bled and almost died to make you Vice President. Now I want you to do something for me."

"What is it?" asked Barkley, worried.

"Help me take out my citizenship papers."

Coplon Checkup

The inside story of the Judith Coplon case is that at one time the Justice Department almost dropped the investgation.

Original tip regarding the good-looking young Government girl was picked up, strangely enough, aboard the Polish steamship Batory. The FBI had a plant aboard the vessel and overheard Judith Coplon's name mentioned during a conversation.

Making a routine check of her name, the FBI found that she was working in the Justice Department, and put her under surveillance. This all began shortly before Christmas. The surveillance soon showed that the young lady was spending nights in the apartment of another Justice Department official, H. P. Shapiro. She brought her suitcase from his apartment to the office next morning, and probably took Government documents away in it at night.

A loyalty check was made of Shapiro which turned out O. K., and the Justice Department then figured it was wasting money shadowing Miss Coplon. It almost decided to drop the case. In the end, however, the surveillance was continued for another two or three days.

It was the very next day, and after spending the night with Shapiro, that Miss Coplon went to New York to meet her Russian boy friend, Gubitchev.

Repentant Nazi

The United States Army has strange ways of doing things.

Only Nazi defendant to plead guilty and turn state's evidence at the Nuernberg trials was Ernest Wilhelm Bohle, who was finally acquitted of war crimes or crimes against peace and humanity, but was sentenced to five years for being an SS man.

Believe it or not, the Army has now imprisoned Bohle with some of the hard-boiled SS life-termers against whom Bohle testified. As a result he is in danger of his life.

When Bohle was first sentenced to Landsberg prison he was actually put in solitary confinement, usually reserved for those waiting death. The cells have no ventilation, and Bohle was denied exercise and the right to shave. Other war criminals were treated more leniently.

Following protests, Bohle has been assigned to hard labor but is under constant threats from other SS prisoners.

Representations by the American Civil Liberties Union to the Army so far have gone unheeded.

Diplomatic Pouch

The French and British fleets are staging a secret rendezvous off the French coast today to test out very important new radar equipment . . . At one point during the Paris conference when Vishinsky stalled, Acheson stood up and said: "Mr. Vishinsky, I didn't come to Paris to dance a diplomatic minuet. I came here to get something accomplished." Vishinsky immediately went back to real work.
